Local Business Sets New Record For Production Of Roof Trusses

by Carol Canan

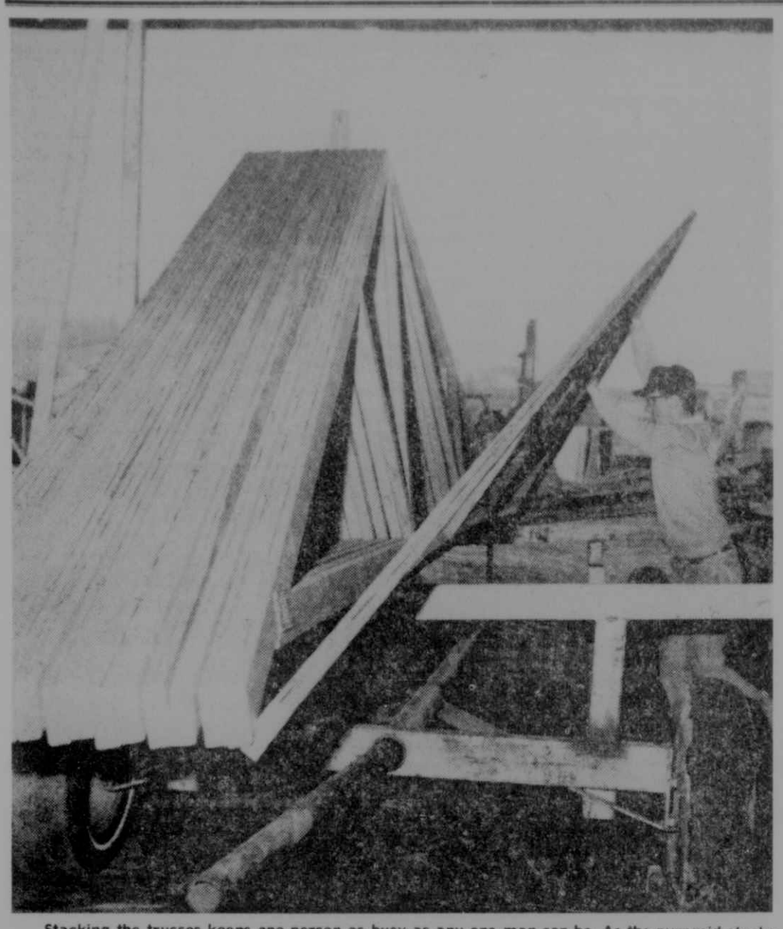
A Garrett County business topped a worldwide production record for an eight-hour shift Monday, April 3.

On that day, workers at Rigidply Rafters south of Oakland turned out a total of 611 roof trusses, soundly defeating the previous record of 555 trusses in an eight-hour day.

Employes at Rigidply turned out 592 rafters in just over seven hours, with enthusiasm and energy still running so high that they pleaded for a chance to finish another job order.

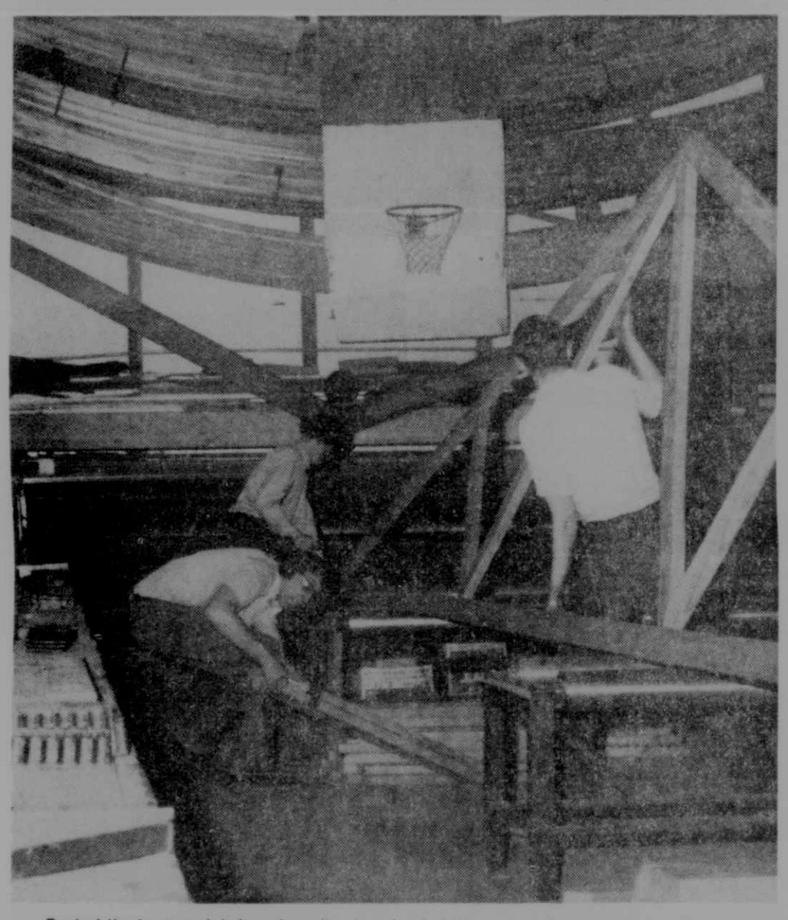
The men hammered together 480 29 foot, 4-inch trusses; 112 26-foot trusses and 19 28-foot trusses, all of standard 2 by 4 Southern pine. Average weight of each truss is nearly 100 pounds.

Teamwork was smooth, fascinating, and non-stop as they loaded the table with the necessary board lengths, pounded in the 14 steel holding plates, moved the trusses to the press, and then vertically stacked the trusses for removal by a forklift.



Previous world's record was held by Imperial Components, Inc., a mid-west company, which set the 555 record August 13, 1977.

Manager of the company here, Emmanuel Miller, and his wife were so proud of the crew's efforts they provided ham sandwiches at morning break and Mrs. Miller's special homemade apple pie during the afternoon. Energy food notwithstanding, the men turned out an exceptional day's work. The effort was made just slightly easier since most of the trusses were the same size, and there was no need to change adjustments on the work table.



Five of the 13-men crew at Rigidply work on actual truss assembly. These are Arlin Maust, Carlton Orendorf, Marlin Bender, Dave Maust and Raymond Schlabach. Other employes are Ray E. Miller, Bernard Orendorf, Leonard Orendorf, Chester Yoder, Ross Crowe, Merlin Yoder and Millard Yoder.

Rigidply is a local division of a parent company located in Richland, Pa. The Oakland branch was started in 1971, under Mr. Miller's managership. Officers of the corporation are both from Pennsylvania: Arthur Shirk, president; and Marlin Horst, vice president.

The trusses made by Rigidply are designed and engineered by Interlock Steel Co., Youngstown, Ohio. The 29-foot trusses are designed for 46.7 pounds of stress per square foot, with a 15 percent stress increase. The Interlock nail-less design incorporates steel plates which are formed with sharp projections taking the place of ordinary nails. After the plates are hammered in place, the press permanently crimps them together for a lasting bond.

Stacking the trusses keeps one person as busy as any one man can be. As the pyramid stacks mount, another employee brings a fork lift and removes the trusses for storage until time for shipment to order destinations. All trusses at Rigidply are constructed on a job contract basis.

Part of the teamwork is knowing when to get out of the way, as demonstrated by Dave Maust, who had to crouch each time a truss was completed and moved to the press. Even while crouching, Dave was gathering pieces for the next truss. The press crimps in the steel plates used to hold the trusses firmly together, and then conveys them outdoors for stacking and loading for transport.

Steel plates formed with extremely sharp points are engineered by Interlock Steel Company of Youngstown for use in the trusses manufactured at Rigidply. Five of the 13-man crew work at actual hammering, while the others keep supplies ready at hand so the operation flows non-stop.

Concentration, coordination and efficiency enabled these men to break the world's roof truss record Monday at Rigidply Rafters. Teamwork was so smooth and rapid there was never a pause in the operation, from start to finish.

The new record, verified Tuesday by Don Carlson, editor and publisher of "Automation in Housing" magazine, meant that the crew put together 1.41 trusses per minute, or one approximately every 45 seconds. Previous record was 1.35 trusses per minute.

AURORA-EGLON NEWS

The marriage of Carlie Ennis and Jay Lambert was solemnized in St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland, on Saturday, March 25 at 2:30 p.m. Officiating at the double ring ceremony was the Rev. George Porter, pastor.

The bride appeared in a white, lace-trimmed gown and was attended by her sisters. The bride's brother was best man for the groom and they wore white tuxedos trimmed in green.

Mrs. Lambert is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ennis, Masontown, and a 1977 graduate of Valley High School. Mr. Lambert, a 1976 graduate of Aurora High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Lambert, Aurora.

Word was received from Mrs. Gilmour Fike in Parkersburg that her husband is showing some improvement but remains a patient in the Worthington Care Home there. He was visited recently by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Fike of Dayton, Ohio. She also reports that her son, Roy Fike, of Parkersburg, was recently hospitalized but is home and much improved.

Only thirty-eight were in attendance for the meeting of the Union District Senior Citizens held April 1 at 6:00 p.m. in the Aurora United Methodist Memorial Building. Following the covered dish supper, the president, Ted Hardesty, welcomed three first-time visitors and a new member, Brooke Stemple. Mr. Hardesty read the 100th Psalm and Mrs. Margaret Crawford read "My Favorite People."

During the business session it was decided that the group would buy a Bible for Mr. and Mrs. Truman Kisner, Location, who lost everything when fire destroyed their home on Easter morning.

Dave Hauser, Preston County Health Council coordinator, was present to explain the function of the Health Council and the membership drive. He also announced that elections will be held in May to bring new members to the Council Board.

Jan Shackelford also spoke of the Health Council activities and announced the Senior Citizens' Health Screening Clinic for Monday, April 3, at the Eglon Clinic. She also announced that there will be a trip to the Maple Sugar Festival in Meyersdale on April 18 and that there is room for a few more for the trip to Florida the last of this month.

Guests present for the evening were Linda Wylie, Texas, a friend of Miss Shackelford, Clifton and Nica Shaffer of Cumberland, Mr. and Mrs. Coy Allen and daughter Susan K. Allen of Solon, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stemple of Aurora spent the weekend in Buffalo with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Melton and daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miser returned to their home on Stemple Ridge last Wednesday after spending most of the winter months in Florida.

Also returning to their home on Mt. Top last week were Vera Stemple and Ruth Hoover who had spent the winter at Bridgewater, Virginia.

Rosalie Kisner and children, Debbie, Christine, Eric and Charlie, of Salem, Ohio, spent the week prior to Easter visiting her parents in Aurora, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Snyder.

Guests last Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Lantz in Aurora were Mr. and Mrs. Dale Siegel and daughter Linnette of Mt. Lake Park.

Visiting in the home of Evelyn Shahan at Aurora last Easter weekend were Mr. and Mrs. David Shahan and Michell Lee of Oakland; Michell Renee and David Shahan, Thomas; and Bill Mayle, Oakland. On Easter Sunday, dinner was served by candlelight to Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Nicholas, Janet Robin, and Jimmy Keith Nicholas and Kathy Sisler, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shahan, Kim, Chris and Steven, all of Aurora; Frank Newman of Baltimore; Bill Mayle, Oakland; Bill Nicholas and Kimm Knotts, John and Patty and Sammie Jo Shahan, Norma and Kevin Shahan, all Aurora.

Mrs. Elmer (Mine) Stemple returned last week to her home at Aurora where she is recuperating from recent surgery at WVU Medical Center. Mrs. Nina Schmidt returned to her Youghiogheny Forest home on Sunday from Garrett County Memorial Hospital where she had been recovering from a heart attack.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hardesty of Aurora visited Sunday in Terra Alta with Oakretta Hardesty and Ruby Knight.

Weekend guests of Mrs. Martha Crowe in Aurora were her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Coy Allen and their daughter, Susan, of Solon, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Harsh and children Sandy and Mike, Brookside, went Sunday to Bridgewater, Virginia, where they visited with his brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Harsh, John and Susan.

Mrs. Devan Armentrout of Charleston is spending two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Slaubaugh, at Eglon.

Visiting last week with Mrs. Grace Myers, Stemple Ridge, were Mrs. Arva Baker, Mt. Lake Park; Mrs. Eva Seal, Oakland, and Mrs. Merle Stemple, local.

Saturday overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Harsh, Stemple Ridge, were their grandson, Brian Harsh, and his friend, Robin Graham, both of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miser were Sunday visitors.

Mrs. Gladys Teets of Amboy fell last week and was taken to Broaddus Hospital, Philippi, where she remains a patient with a broken shoulder.

Mr. and Mrs. Phra Paugh and Chip of Vienna, Va., were weekend guests of Mrs. Paugh's mother, Mrs. Myrtle Teter, in Eglon.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Teets, Eglon, attended the Founder's Day Banquet on Friday evening at Bridgewater College, Bridgewater, Va., where their son-in-law, James May, was honored by the college as an Outstanding Alumnus of the Year in the area of Achievement. This was based on his personal achievement since becoming a paraplegic during the Vietnam Offensive and for this work with others who are paraplegics. Mrs. Teets returned with the Mays to Silver Spring where she will remain for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kowalkoski of Aurora announce the birth of their first child, a daughter, born on March 26, her father's birthday. The little girl weighed 4 lbs. 12½ ozs. at birth in West Virginia University Medical Center and at this date, remains there in an isolette. She has been named Kelly Rae. The mother is the former Mary Stemple and Mr. and Mrs. Brooke Stemple of Aurora are the maternal grandparents.

Due to the cancellation of the usually held Easter Breakfast at the Aurora United Methodist Church, the members of the congregation met on Sunday, April 2, for a dinner following church.

Although some of the people in the area are without power from Saturday morning until Wednesday evening last week, it seems to now be back to normal for everyone. Crews were kept busy in a lot of instances when lines were repaired in one place, they broke at another.

There was a letter published this past Thursday in The Preston County Journal which disparages the work of the Preston County Health Council and the qualifications of the doctors working with it. These doctors are qualified to practice medicine, are not just out of medical school with no experience as implied there. You may place your confidence in any of them although in the area of obstetrics and gynecology, none had much experience nor extra training and did not feel confident in these fields. When so many people of the county have worked so hard to get medical service into the needy areas, I would hate to see some slighting remarks thwart that effort.

Rev. and Mrs. Galen Fike of Eglon spent Friday and Saturday in Virginia where they visited relatives in the Harrisonburg-Bridgewater area and attended the Founder's Day Banquet at Bridgewater College on Friday evening. Among those honored was their brother-in-law, Dr. Jacob Huffman of Dayton, Va., for his service to the college and community.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Simpson of Martin's Ferry, Ohio, were last weekend guests of Mrs. Simpson's mother, Mrs. Mildred Wilt, in Eglon. On Sunday, all were Easter dinner guests of another daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spaid, Aurora. Bernard Wilt was also a dinner guest there.

W. E. Harsh left Friday for Fayetteville, N.C., where his wife had been staying with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Imes and their daughter, Amber. They returned to Eglon last Monday night.

Word was received by Mrs. Virgie Donham, Aurora, of the death of her sister-in-law, Lena Sell, on March 28 at her home in Winston-Salem, N.C. Mrs. Sell died quite suddenly and is survived by her husband, Carl. Attending services on Friday were Mr. and Mrs. Hancel Teets, Alberta Burch and Alma Snyder from here.

W. P. Winters and P. L. Milkint of Horse Shoe Run area were both admitted to Garrett Memorial Hospital during the extended power outage.

Visiting the doctor's office is enough to make anyone sick. I live in mortal fear of doctors for several reasons:

First of all, scheduling an appointment with the doctor is an art. It's best to have someone else call the doctor for you and say that you're too weak to come to the phone. If that doesn't work, try collapsing on the putting green of the golf course. Within minutes an entire medical team will have arrived — they'll probably tell you to move.

If you're lucky enough to get an appointment, you must endure the doctor's waiting room. What an ordeal! The only available seat is usually next to an old man with a terminal cold. He'll wheeze, cough, sputter and sneeze for hours, infecting you and everyone else in the room.

The person on the other side of you is a grandmother, who smells of Lilac toilet water and wears corrective shoes with the toes cut out. Not only has she endured every illness known to man (and she'll tell you about each one in chronological order) but she will bring out a wallet the size of a briefcase and display pictures of her grandchildren.

Sometimes you can avoid talking to fellow patients by absorbing yourself in a magazine. The doctor's office always has such a wide selection. Your first choice is "Hospital Practice." Every page is full of gory advertisements showing heart transplants, bruises, contusions and lacerations. If you are being treated for a stomach disorder, this one's not for you.

Your other choice is a 1965 copy of "House Beautiful" — you know, the one with the "before" and "after" pictures. Even that upsets me since my house always looks like the "before" picture.

Finally, you are called into the doctor's examination room. A nurse, complete with squeaking shoes, comes in and tells you to disrobe. She then hands you a flimsy white thing and tells you to "slip it on over your head" as she leaves the room.

I don't think they sort their laundry very well, because one time when the nurse returned she found me sitting in my birthday suit with a pillow case over my head. She wasn't amused.

When you do get into the "gown" there's never any back in it. Besides that, they usually parade you around the medical center, from x-ray room to lab with your Fruit of the Loom in plain view. Reminds me of when I was little and Mom always made sure I had on clean underwear in case I got hit by a car and had to go to the hospital.

One of my other gripes is those stupid paper slip covers on the examining tables. Did you ever try and get off the table and leave the paper on the table? Never. That paper is stuck to you for life.

And finally the doctor comes in, tells you to open your mouth and stick your tongue out. If he only knew how long I'd been sticking my tongue out at him behind his back.

Carry-Out Food To Be Taxed

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — A 5 percent sales tax would be levied on carry-out food under a bill passed by the Senate and sent to the House of Delegates for approval.

The bill, passed 27-14 Tuesday, would impose a 5 percent sales tax on carry-out food costing more than $1.

It would generate about $8.5 million in state revenues to compensate for revenue lost from another bill, already passed by the Senate, that would eliminate the 5 percent sales tax utility customers now must pay on power companies' increased costs caused by rising fuel prices.

"Kids buying hamburgers are going to end up paying for the coal strike in Western Maryland," said acting Gov. Blair Lee III of the bill.

The coal strike forced Potomac Edison Co., which supplies Western Maryland with electricity, to buy more expensive power from a regional energy grid.

The higher fuel cost was reflected in soaring utility bills for Western Maryland residents.

Supporters of the plan to tax carry-out food to provide tax relief in utility bills said it is unfair for consumers hit with greatly increased fuel rate adjustment bills — a separate item on their monthly utility charges — to have to pay a sales tax on the fuel hikes.

Although the House has passed the carry-out food tax bill, the Senate made some changes that require House approval before the bill can go to Lee for his signature.

The Senate gave preliminary approval to a bill that would allow Secret Service agents to arrest without a warrant people who they believe will be a threat to the public due to mental disorders.

Other peace officers already have that power.

The Senate adopted an amendment offered by Sen. Harry McGuirk, D-Baltimore, to limit the Secret Service agents who qualify to those who guard Camp David.

Carter Addresses Congress Leaders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter told congressional leaders today he has not made a final decision on the controversial neutron warhead, according to House Democratic Leader Jim Wright.

"He said he would discuss it further with members of Congress before announcing his decision," Wright told reporters following a White House breakfast meeting.

But Wright said there was virtually no discussion of the neutron warhead — which kills people with little damage to property — despite recent reports that Carter is leaning toward banning its production.

"There was no discussion of the neutron bomb beyond the president's comment that he was considering it and was going to come to a position on it, but he wasn't there yet," Wright said.

Carter also reportedly indicated to the congressional leaders that:

—He plans to deliver a major address on his new anti-inflation program in a few days.

—He would probably veto a massive "inflationary" farm bill now in Congress. The bill is expected to come before the Senate and House next week.

Postal Service Seeks Surcharge

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The U.S. Postal Service is seeking a 13-cent surcharge on non-standard size first-and third-class mail.

The service's board of governors Tuesday voted to file the surcharge request wih the Postal Rate Commission within the next few weeks.

Edward McCaffrey, assitant postmaster general for rates and classification, said the surcharge — which would apply to non-standard single pieces of first-class mail weighing one ounce or less and single pieces of third-class mail weighing 2 ounces or less — would generate an extra $114 million.

The service said the proposed surcharge is justified because mail larger than standard size cannot be processed through automated mail sorters.

A non-standard size piece of mail is defined as anything larger than 6/ inches in height, longer than 11¼ inches and thicker than a quarter inch.

"We don't think the size standard we have approved is going to hurt the mailer," McCaffrey said.

"The only thing up for discussion with the Postal Rate Commission is the level of the surcharge," he added.

In another action, Postmaster General William F. Bolger called a special board meeting for May 19 to discuss PRC recommendations on a Post Office request for a 3 cent rate increase for first-class commercial mail.

The increase would affect only commercial mailers. Most consumers would continue to pay 13 cents — or "citizens rate" — for a first-class letter.

At Tuesday's meeting, the board also selected James V.P. Conway as the new deputy postmaster general.

Conway, 60, who served as assistant postmaster general for employees and labor relations since 1975, begins his new duties immediately, according to spokesman R.V. Hoobing.

UMW Construction Workers Okay New Three-Year Contract

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Union mine construction workers have ratified a new three-year contract, officials said today, marking the end to four months of strikes against the soft coal industry.

A final tabulation was not yet in, but with 43 of 51 locals reporting from United Mine Workers districts, 2,402 men had voted "yes," and 1,360 had voted "no."

"The rank and file has approved it, yes," a union vote-counter said this morning. He said the construction workers, about 14,000 in all, were heading back to work.

Late Tuesday night, UMW Vice President Sam Church was cautious. He held back from making a formal statement until he had a firmer idea of the vote totals.

Motion Picture To Be Filmed In Eastern Maryland

Universal Pictures plans to film a new motion picture, tentatively entitled, "A Public Affair," in Maryland. The original screenplay was written by Alan Alda of the "M-A-S-H" television series, who will also star in the film as will Barbara Harris. Jerry Schatzberg will direct and Martin Bregman is the producer.

The State Department of Economic and Community Development has been working with the producers of the film and was instrumental in bringing the filming to Maryland. In a meeting with Acting Governor Blair Lee, III and Executive Producer Lou Stroller, it was concluded that the filming in Maryland would be advantageous to both the film and the state.

"A Public Affair" is the first major motion picture to be filmed in Maryland in many years. Herbert B. Cahan, Secretary of the Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development, said the Department is making an aggressive effort to encourage other film producers to avail themselves of the potential that Maryland offers for film making.

The filming will be done principally in Annapolis and Baltimore. The State Department of Economic and Community Development and the Office of the Mayor of Baltimore will be working with the production executives.

According to Mr. Stroller, "Motion picture filming in the location area will be a boon to the local economy." During the three months of the filming, the company will spend over $1 million for lodging and food and to employ skilled workers such as carpenters, electricians and other support personnel. The $1 million does not include monies spent by the crew for clothing, restaurants, entertainment, laundry, and other services. Stroller said that "he knows of no other business that can bring this much money to an area, in such a short period of time, with the added advantages that a film production company does not pollute and takes nothing from the area other than what is captured on film."

New Cancer Drug Is Developed In California Lab

HOUSTON (UPI) — California researchers using a computer system called Prophet have developed a drug that is a better cancer killer in mice than any other known anti-cancer drug.

The effectiveness of the new compound in humans, however, is unknown. The agent must pass extensive animal safety testing before it can be tried on people.

The drug's development was reported Sunday by Dr. Martin Apple, head of a pharmacology research team at the University of California at San Francisco. He called the compound Azetomicin.

"Supplies of this new drug are very limited but enough data has been gained from the few milligrams so far prepared to suggest it is a very effective anti-cancer drug," Apple said.

He said a single injection of Azetomicin routinely eliminated large bone cancers in mice. It also was very effective against Leukemia in mice.

"No other drug known to be active in human cancer is that effective," he told an American Cancer Society symposium.

But Apple emphasized that just because a drug works well in mice does not mean it will have the same effect in humans. And a National Cancer Institute spokesman cautioned that a drug that appears so effective against a cancer cell may have serious unwanted side effects.

Unlike most anti-cancer drugs which were discovered accidentally, Apple and colleagues used the computer to design compounds with specific anti-cancer activity.

"An average day of Prophet study is often more useful than a year or two of trial and error in the lab," Apple said.

Five Iron Stops Rape Attempt

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An 18-year-old woman who came to the defense of her mother with a golf club and severely beat an intruder was credited by police Tuesday with the capture of a man alleged to be the "pillowcase rapist," hunted for 162 rapes.

D'Anza Bringier, 5 feet tall and 115 pounds, stopped to call police before launching her attack with a No. 5 iron.

The intruder was "flying around the various rooms, looking like a caged animal," in his desperation to escape Miss Bringier's blows when officers arrived, police said.

At one point he broke a bathroom window, causing minor injuries to a police officer outside. After Miss Bringier's brother, Fraun, 19, threw him into a wall, the battered intruder fled to the roof and tried to leap to a neighboring house.

He missed and fell 15 feet to the ground, where officers found him.

Reginald Muldrew, 30, was treated for cuts and bruises at West Adams Community Hospital and booked on suspicion of burglary.

"We're confident we have the pillowcase rapist," said Capt. Matthew Hunt, commanding officer of the southwest area, where many of the rapes occurred.

Hunt said Muldrew matched the description of the "pillowcase rapist," so called because he usually assaulted women in their homes, raping them after pulling a pillowcase over their heads.

He said Muldrew's fingerprints matched prints found at the scene of one of the 162 rapes — 20 of them this year — attributed to the elusive assailant since 1975.

Police said Muldrew broke into the home of Parnell Bringier, 38, early Tuesday by climbing through an unlocked window and was tying her up when her daughter heard her screams.

Miss Bringier first telephoned police and was waiting with the 5-iron in hand when Muldrew emerged from her mother's bedroom.

"I just started beating him on the head with the club," she said, estimating she landed about 10 solid blows.

"The daughter was very cool-headed and quick-minded and had the presence of mind to call police before she did anything else," Hunt said.

"The 5-iron turned out to be a very handy weapon."

Congress Determined To Aid Farmers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional efforts to provide emergency economic aid for the nation's farmers and to roll back increases in Social Security taxes are gathering momentum.

Congress apparently is courting a presidential veto, however, with its determination to pass the farm aid bill. Key provisions of the measure were approved by a House-Senate conference committee Tuesday despite administration warnings that President Carter intends to veto the bill if it comes his desk.

The bill, backed by members of the militant farm strike movement, would raise federal price supports for some major crops this year. The conference committee planned to complete formal action on technical details of the bill today.

The administration says the higher price supports would increase retail food prices as well as government spending.

Both the House and Senate were looking at ways to ease the Social Security tax bite.

House Democrats were called together today to consider endorsing legislation that would cut the taxes and for the first time finance part of the Social Security program with general revenues. Senate hearings on the issue also were getting under way.

On Tuesday, the House Budget Committee proposed a $7.5 billion cut in Social Security taxes next year.

In other developments on Capitol Hill, Tongsun Park completed two days of public testimony before the House Ethics Committee.

Committee sources said the information gathered during the panel's investigation indicates that five or six present members — all Democrats — may be vulnerable to possible disciplinary action as a result of their accepting money from the South Korean rice dealer.

During his testimony, Park denied that House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., had asked for campaign contributions. O'Neill also issued a statement denying such a request.

Maneuvering on the Panama Canal treaties continued as opponents pushed for a House vote on the issue. Supporters of the treaty say the U.S. Constitution only requires the Senate to vote on treaties.

Meanwhile, Senate leaders were trying to get agreement on a mid-April date — possibly April 17 — for the Senate to vote on the second of the two canal treaties.

Key members of the conference committee on energy legislation held a secret meeting to consider the progress — or lack of it — being made on the issue of natural gas pricing.

The conferees indicated that if agreement is not achieved soon, they may have to abandon the effort.

Top Senate leaders predicted a tough fight when the president submits a new strategic arms limitation treaty for ratification. Sens. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., and John Tower, R-Texas, said the difficulty would be compounded if Carter decides to abandon the neutron bomb.

5 Miners Killed By "Black Damp"

BUCU, Va. (UPI) — When old mine shafts are sealed, poisonous pockets of stagnant air are often trapped inside. Coal miners know about it only too well — they call it "black damp."

At midday Tuesday, miners were working about 280 feet inside a new mine known as McClure No. 2 when suddenly they bored into an abandoned mine shaft and struck what coal company officials believe was "black damp," a pocket of air without oxygen.

Five men were killed in the worst mine accident since UMW workers ended the nation's longest continuous coal strike eight days ago.

Officials of the Clinchfield Coal Co. identified the victims as Richard Carson, 29, William Arden, 25, and Marion Johnson, 34, all of Abingdon, Va.; Willie Danis Ison, 45, of Isom, Ky.; and Lawrence Shelby of Jenkins, Ky., whose age was unavailable.

Carson was the mine supervisor.

Six miners were apparently working in the new shaft when one of them bored into the abandoned mine that held the "black damp" air, said a spokesman for the Connecticut-based Pittson Coal Group, which owns Clinchfield.

Three men escaped to the surface and alerted Ison, an official of the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration.

Ison and Shelby, an equipment maintenance man with National Mine Service, went into the shaft to try to help the men below and were overcome by the "black damp."

Two other men, Earl Castle Jr., 19, and Strickler Mullins, 60, were hospitalized for observation. A third man, Charles Breeding, was sent home without apparent injuries.

The Pittson spokesman said Mullins, the superintendent of Clinchfield's Moss No. 2 mine, saved Breeding, a mining machine operator who had collapsed from lack of oxygen.

Author Defends Book On Cloning

NEW YORK (UPI) — Science writer David Rorvik, scoffed at by geneticists on both sides of the Atlantic, says he's not trying to prove the existence of a human clone with his new book — but he's personally convinced it really happened.

Rorvik, starting a publicity tour for the book, "In His Image: The Cloning of Man," said in an interview Wednesday he was not worried about the possibility he was the victim of a hoax.

"I know in my heart it happened," Rorvik said. "And I have the inner serenity that comes from that."

In the book, which goes on sale Friday, Rorvik claims he was approached by an aging millionaire who wanted a clone — an exact copy of himself — produced so he would have an heir.

Rorvik claims he put the man in touch with a scientist who carried out the man's wishes — extracting a single cell from the millionaire, removing its genetic material and implanting it in a human egg whose nucleus had been removed.

The egg, Rorvik said, was placed in a woman's uterus where it grew into a human being, a genetic duplicate of the millionaire.

Rorvik identified the man only as "Max" in his book and said the woman, "Sparrow," was approaching 17 when she got involved in the cloning, has a slight deformity and is of a mixed racial background.

According to the book, Sparrow was taught English and brought to America for the birth. She is living on Max's estate, Rorvik said, and Max feels more kindly toward her every day, but is taking steps to make sure the clone does not come to regard her as his mother.

Theoretically, cloning is posible. But most scientists are very dubious that it already has happened. They argue that no scientists involved in such a project would keep quiet about it.

Rorvik said he was confident Max paid the scientists well and added it was a "good guess" the principal scientist was "between jobs" when he agreed to help in the cloning.

Rorvik said he, himself, got only expense money for his part in the project — along with the publication rights. He would not say how much expense money was involved.

Asked if the clone resembled Max, Rorvik said, "I can't say there's a fabulous resemblance."

But he did say the clone will be the sole heir to Max's fortune.

"His having an heir will come as a surprise to a lot of people," Rorvik said. "And, actually, Max is delighted every time someone calls this a hoax."

Rorvik said tests were conducted to assure Max the cloning took place and that he wasn't taken for a ride.

Rorvik confirmed a part of the book that said Max will have himself put in a cyrogenic vault when he dies. That is, he will have his body frozen, preserving it indefinitely.

"Several decades down the road, there just might be breakthroughs that would enable medical science to restore cyrogenicaly suspended persons by thawing," Rorvik said in his book.

And, Rorvik said, Max told him there is a codicil in his will in which the millionaire stipulated that in the event of his being restored to life after death, he abandons any right to his former assets.

U. N. Troops Bar Israeli Patrol

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — U.N. peace-keeping troops asserted their authority in south Lebanon by barring an Israeli patrol from entering a southeastern village but Palestinian guerrillas reportedly fired on U.N. soldiers at a checkpoint near Tyre in the west.

The refusal of Norwegian soldiers of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon to allow an Israeli patrol into Hebbariyeh was the first such incident reported since U.N. troops entered the south nearly two weeks ago.

In the southwest, Lebanese sources said Palestinian guerrillas fired briefly on French U.N. troops with rocket-propelled grenades and machine guns, but no casualties wee reported.

The cause of the reported incident was not known. It occurred at the Maaliyeh area, just south of Tyre, where the blue-bereted U.N. forces have set up checkpoints between Palestinian and Israeli lines.

About 100 Lebanese internal security men arrived in Tyre today as the central government worked to reestablish its authority in the embattled south for the first time in two years.

The Lebanese forces joined the French U.N. troops at checkpoints around Tyre and one group took up its position at the Kakia bridge over the strategic Litani River in the central sector, the Lebanese sources said.

In the southeastern area, witneses reported that Norwegian soldiers stationed at the entrance of the village of Hebbariyeh prevented an Israeli patrol from nearby Rachaya al Foukhar from entering the town, saying they had written orders to do so.

U.S. Warns Japan To Reduce Huge Trade Surplus

TOKYO (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Mike Mansfield warned today an irate Congress may enact trade restrictions unless Japan reduces its enormous trade surplus and opens its markets to more American goods.

Mansfield, speaking to a group of leading bankers, businessmen and industrialists in Osaka, said the Tokyo government must demonstrate its commitment to free trade by bringing down unfair import barriers.

"Japan's remaining import restrictions, its rising exports and the problems American manufacturers have in selling their products here have brought about the serious situation in the American Congress," the former Senate majority leader said.

"Japan's current account balance in January and February has been extremely high, and this has imposed heavy burdens on other countries," he said. "This situation should be reversed.

"If it does not begin to improve soon, Congress will, in all likelihood, begin to lose patience and may well consider legislation which hurts trade and the economic interests of all trading nations, especially Japan. The weight of our specific problems could become so heavy as to override our larger interests."

Japan's annual trade surplus of about $17 billion is in large part a consequence of its export drive to compensate for a prolonged business recession.

The United States, on the other hand, has for months been importing more goods than it has sold abroad and most recently suffered a record trade deficit in February of more than $4.5 billion.

"Both countries have strong economies and we have a strong trading partnership, but it is absolutely essential that we both recognize our mutual interests in complete equality of opportunity in both of our markets," Mansfield said.

"If Americans have the same access into your market that you have in ours and still cannot compete successfully or balance our bilateral trade, then the blame for that imbalance will fall squarely upon the U.S.

Mansfield, ambassador to Japan for the past year, noted that Japan is America's most important customer and said he hoped trade could increase between the two countries. But, he said, "the road runs two ways."

Senators Try To Involve House In Treaty Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate opponents of the Panama Canal treaties, narrowly defeated in the first test, are trying to involve the House in the final decision on the treaties.

An amendment by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, scheduled for a vote today, would require approval of the House as well as the Senate for turning over the canal to Panama in 2000.

The Senate has agreed to vote by April 25 on the treaty ceding the canal to Panama.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia planned a meeting today with Hatch and Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee in hope of setting a mid-April date — possibly April 17 — for an earlier vote.

Treaty opponents apparently believe the House has a majority opposing the treaties. A total of 235 House members — 17 more than a majority — voted for a resolution demanding the right to vote on the treaties.

All of the House's 435 members, except for those retiring, face re-election this year, while only one third of the senators face the voters.

Under the Constitution, the Senate alone ratifies treaties. But ambiguity exists. The Constitution's Article IV also says Congress — meaning both Senate and House — must act to dispose of federal property.

Treaty opponents argue that the Panama Canal is U.S. property, and therefore cannot be ceded without approval by both houses.

The United States paid compensation to Panamanian land holders for the land on which the 51-mile canal was built. The Army Corps of Engineers built the canal, and the U.S. government — through the Panama Canal Company — runs it.

Win or lose, the House eventually will be involved in decisions over the canal anyway. Legislation to implement the treaties and finance the closure of U. S. installations in the Canal Zone will have to go before the House and Senate once the treaties are ratified.

Ethics Committee Finishes Tongsun Park Questioning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House ethics committee investigators, on completing their questioning of Tongsun Park, want to know more about his ties to some incumbent congressmen but have little reason to suspect Speaker Thomas O'Neill of wrongdoing, sources said today.

Committee sources said investigators singled out five — perhaps six — Democrats as being vulnerable to possible disciplinary action for taking payments from the South Korean rice dealer. They said they could not judge whether the full committee itself would agree.

The members are, according to the sources, Reps. Edward Patten, D-N.J.; John Breaux, D-La.; California Democrats John McFall, Edward Roybal and Charles H. Wilson, and perhaps Assistant Majority Leader John Brademas, D-Ind.

The committee and Special Counsel Leon Jaworski summoned new witnesses today after Park concluded two days of testimony Tuesday with a long statement defending his $850,000 in payments to 16 past or 14 present congressmen and again denying he had ever been a secret agent of his government.

Interest in Park's relationship to O'Neill, D-Mass., was triggered by the committee's release of a mysterious Korean document found in Park's home. It said O'Neill, then majority leader, had requested campaign contributions for congressmen accompanying him on a 1974 trip to Korea.

But Park said he did not know how it got into his house, could only guess that it might have been written by a Korean CIA associate of his, and in any case it was not true because O'Neill never asked for money.

O'Neill quickly issued a statement branding it all "absurd" and "a total fabrication." Committee investigators called the allegations unsubstantiated at best.

Jaworski and his staff plan to spend another couple of weeks studying Park's testimony before advising the committee on possible disciplinary proceedings.

Shantytown Evacuations Ordered To Halt African Cholera Epidemic

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Authorities have ordered a mass evacuation of Nairobi's shantytowns in a drive to halt a cholera epidemic that has killed an estimated 1,000 people in eastern Africa, the Standard newspaper said today.

In Tanzania, where most of the deaths took place, the government shut down all schools in the capital of Dar es Salaam and launched a crash program to build emergency sanitary facilities.

Special health committees were established in parts of Kenya to instruct the population on preventive methods and Somalia slammed shut its borders to Kenyan and Tanzanian produce in an effort to stop the spread of cholera.

"A mass evacuation affecting about 150,000 slum dwellers in Nairobi has been ordered as part of an intensified drive to prevent a cholera epidemic in the city," the Standard said in a front-page story.

"People living in high-risk areas will be forced to leave homes which have unsanitary toilet facilities and no running water," it said.

Thousands of shantytowns and grocery shops constructed of cardboard, tin and twigs have sprung up on the city's outskirts in the last few years to accommodate a burgeoning population.

Many of these shacks will be pulled down under the city's plans to stem a cholera epidemic.

Chessie Expects Good Year Despite Deficit Of 66.9 Million Dollars

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Chessie Systems says it expects to have a good year in 1978 despite a loss of $66.9 million during the coal-short months of the year's first quarter.

The railroad firm, which depends largely on its coal hauling operation, said the loss was nine times more than the corresponding quarter last year.

Chessie said it expects to have a "reasonably good year" in 1978 and its 58 cents per share quarterly dividend will remain unchanged.

The net loss of $66.9 million in the first quarter amounted to $3.41 per share, compared to a net loss of $7.4 million, or 39 cents per share, during the first quarter of 1977, the company said.

Net earnings of $87 million were reported for the full year of 1977.

The company said the 110-day coal strike and the weather resulted in a drop of its coal, coke and iron volume to 294,000 carloads below expectation, nearly four times the 76,000 carloads lost last year due to severe weather.

Total operating revenues of Chessie's railroads - the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Baltimore and Ohio, and the Western Maryland - are $254.8 million in the first quarter. Last year it was $314.9 million.

Chessie Chairman Hays T. Watkins said, "We came back from last year's first-quarter loss to post the fourth best year in our history.

"As of this moment, however, we are not as optimistic we can make a similar recovery this year because of the magnitude of the loss, the uncertainty over the economy and business levels for the rest of the year."

But Watkins said the firm is financially sound and would have shown a first-quarter profit if there had been no coal strike.

He said the demand for coal moved by Chessie trains will be very high as utilities and companies begin to replenish their inventories.

Company spokeswoman Vera Le Clerq said the company has begun calling back a number of employees who were laid off during the coal strike and that the rest will be recalled "as needed."

The company has never released the number of employees laid off during the strike.

BLUEPRINTS

Back of every well-built house is a set of blueprints. Without plans how would the electrician know just where to install the outlets and switches? How would the plumber know where the pipes belong? Would the doors and windows be located correctly?

With knowledge and vision, the architect designed the house. The workmen followed his specifications. No guesswork!

Without plans, life would soon be hit-or-miss. All our intentions must be founded on some vision of the course we are going to follow . . . the goal we want to reach.

A man's religion is his primary help in determining the right plan of his life. As he grows to understand the God who created life, he learns how life can be used to bring the greatest good and richest happiness to himself, his loved ones, his neighbors, his world. That vision guides his everyday planning. His plans are right because his aims are right!

By following God's blueprints, you can put an end to guesswork in your life.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

A MAJORITY OF ONE

Lesson for April 9, 1978

Background Scripture: Acts 5:12-42
Devotional Reading: Psalms 37:30-40

Rev. Althouse

From our contemporary perspective it is easy to identify ourselves on the side of the disciples who were thrown into prison by the Sadducean party (Acts 5). Of course the really important question is not, where do we stand today (when it doesn't cost us anything), but where would we have stood if we had been their contemporaries?

Go and stand

Let's try to look at this event as it must have been seen by most of the citizens of Jerusalem in those early days after the death and resurrection of Jesus. For one thing, we would have seen this tiny band of Christ's disciples as a trouble-making minority group. The great majority of the people of Jerusalem were quite satisfied with their Jewish religion. The followers of Jesus, most of whom were from Galilee and other areas—and therefore not natives—were simply creating trouble and were not wanted in Jerusalem. Why couldn't they go home where they belonged and practice their new religion there? What is more obnoxious than a trouble-making minority group of outsiders!

Then, too, their contemporaries regarded them as fanatics with whom there seemed to be no compromise, no appeal to reason. For example, when they are freed from jail by an angel of the Lord, instead of letting tensions simmer down, they went right back to the temple to continue their provocative preaching and activities. Certainly if they had been reasonable, law-abiding men they would have avoided yet another confrontation with the authorities. Instead they provoked one.

Rather than men

The disciples would also probably be criticized for escaping from jail. Can you imagine our response today if someone were to explain his or her escape from prison as an act of the Lord! Angel or no angel, they should have "stayed put," shouldn't they?

Furthermore, it wasn't just the fact that they were preaching, but what they were teaching. The angry high priest says to them: "We strictly charged you not to teach in his name, yet here you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching and you intend to bring this man's blood upon us" (5:28). The disciples weren't just bringing people a spiritual message, they were accusing the Sanhedrin of Jesus' murder—in short, it seemed they were inciting to riot!

Despite the Sanhedrin's legal orders to the disciples, they continued to preach and teach just the same. Wouldn't you and I hold that, despite the promptings of their consciences, they should obey the legally-constituted local authorities? What would happen to people's respect for law and order if everyone were to say as Peter said: "We must obey God rather than men"? What about the will of the majority?

DON'T BE FOOLED!

There will be a great many practical jokes played on the 1st of April and for the most part they will be harmless fun. But there is also a meaningful lesson that we can associate with April Fools Day.

Health quacks play people for fools by tricking them about their most important possession—their health. They promise quick and easy cures where really none exist and because people want to believe, they blindly go along. Don't be fooled. Rely on health professionals such as your physicians and pharmacists.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound yours?

POPULAR CULTURE:

Mirror of American Life XI:

ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN — Like many other movies dealing with politics, this film, starring Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman, emphasizes that corruption is often at the center of political power.

Editor's Note: This is the 11th in a series of 15 articles exploring "Popular Culture: Mirror of American Life." In this article, Andrew Hacker, Professor of Government at Queens College of the City University of New York, discusses how politics has been portrayed in the mass media and how television has affected the political process. This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

POLITICS AND POPULAR CULTURE

By Andrew Hacker

The combination of politics and popular culture makes for an awkard alliance.

Images arise of candidates emulating entertainers, of campaigns reported as athletic contests, and of platforms with the appeal and veneer of commercials. However, politics still deals with complex and consequential issues, which deserve to be taken seriously. Candidates should be judged on their character and competence, not as coached or photogenic "personalities."

Popular culture, in contrast, is meant mainly for relaxation. Thus political issues are simplified, often to suit the media's modes of presentation. In like manner, politicians tend to be judged by how well they come across as public performers.

There is, of course, no shortage of purely fictional performances dealing with political themes. Every season comes up with a quota of TV scripts and series devoted to politics. While these treatments run the range from farce to tragedy, they share at least one denominator: they avoid controversial issues that might offend substantial segments of their audiences.

Most Americans still feel deeply about issues carrying political overtones. (There is less apathy than appearances often suggest). Hence the risk of arousing resentments if issues seem unfairly presented. Indeed, there are many questions people would rather leave unraised. Like how equitably we distribute the nation's income; or the public's responsibility for Watergate and Vietnam.

So on the whole the media stick to "safe" political subjects, or ones in which the audience itself comes out clean. Perhaps the most recurrent of these is corruption. At least everyone is against it.

The Triumph of Virtue

Virtue can of course triumph over corruption, as it did in Frank Capra's fabled "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" (1939), where a naive United States senator wins out over his cynical seniors — as it happens, by mobilizing some boy scout troops. The more solemn movies like "Advise and Consent" (1962) and "The Best Man" (1964) also showed the victory of principle, if by some skewed casting of the villain.

A reverse approach has politics corrupting innocence. For example "All the King's Men" (1949), based on Robert Penn Warren's prize-winning novel, turns a rural idealist into a populist despot.

A more "modern" portrayal came with Robert Redford's performance as "The Candidate" (1972). Here the central figure was a young, public service lawyer from a comfortable, middle-class background, impelled into politics by his concern for the plight of the poor. However, the "system" gradually seduces him. Media experts persuade him to reduce his messages to 30-second spots; interest groups exact concessions in return for contributions and endorsements.

Bit by bit he learns to live with these "realities," which the script implies are inevitable. (It even adds infidelity with an attractive campaign worker, presumably par for the political course). Having the hero from suburban surroundings suggests that even well-meaning liberals must suffer a loss of innocence — and integrity.

Television, the most "mass" of the media, tends to skirt politics at its edges. Soap operas and situation comedies introduce issues — abortion, crime, race prejudice — but they either keep on a plane of interpersonal relations or attack offstage targets. Politicians come across as stock characters: crooks or buffoons or cynics. We turn on TV to unwind, not to ponder the state of the nation.

Popular Protests

In marked contrast, popular music has become a format for political expression, especially to younger audiences. Artists like the Beatles in the early 1960s, and Bob Dylan and Joan Baez amid the civil rights and Vietnam protests, offered subtle indictments of their society. Even today, popular performers such as James Taylor and Carole King show an America so gripped by materialism and amorality that political participation is futile. It may well be that all those stridently amplified stereos are the "radical" demonstrations of our era.

Moreover, politicians are attacked by both liberal and conservative cartoonists every day on the editorial pages of our nation's newspapers. And Trudeau's purely political comic strip, "Doonesbury," won a Pulitzer prize.

Thus via scripts, songs, cartoons, and scenarios, politics has found a place in our popular culture. But what of the reverse relationship: the impact of entertainment on the world of politics?

In simpler days politicians crossed the country by railroad, pausing at whistle-stops and shaking hands at county fairs. Newspaper reports came in leisurely, gray-columned lengths, which were in turn discussed in general stores and city cafes. Citizens knew candidates at firsthand, and issues hit close to home.

Were things really that way? Fact and fancy often get entangled. Even so, we do know that voting reached its all-time highs in the 1890s and has been on a downswing ever since.

Campaign by Media

It has become commonplace to observe that people have little firsthand experience of politics. "A modern campaign is conducted nearly wholly in the press, especially on television," says Jann Wenner, editor of Rolling Stone. "There is the so-called news, which is at least half-contrived, controlled events; and there is advertising, wholly contrived and unashamed propaganda."

According to this analysis, the mode of presentation decides what will be seen. Televised news requires theatrical on-some-spot settings. Better, therefore, to carry cameras to a vandalized, half-finished housing project than have an economist explore prevailing paradoxes in interest rates.

Indeed, problems which defy easy depiction may get no mention at all. Much the same can be said of the spot advertising used by candidates during elections. (Or can we say that watching an aspirant walking pensively on a beach gives an underlying clue to his character)?

The Great Debates

The conclusion in many quarters is that the best way to attract an audience is by adding the dramaturgy of debate. This strategy apparently succeeded, both in 1960 and 1976, when the Kennedy-Nixon and Ford-Carter encounters broke records for political broadcasts.

Actually, they were less "debates" than two-person press conferences, responding to panels of reporters. At the same time, voters apparently felt they had gained added insight on the contenders, particularly in their composure under pressure. Still, subsequent discussions dwelled more on "who won?" than with the substantive content of the presentations.

Is it the main interest of the media to make politics a spectator sport: a sort of stretched-out counterpart of the Super Bowl? The primaries can be seen as weekly episodes of a serial. Polls measure the nation's mind, finding enough "don't knows" and "undecideds" to keep even one-sided contests alive. We "watch" a campaign as if it were an event created for an audience, rather than a process whose very core is personal participation.

Thus many argue that by merging politics with popular culture, appearances win out over reality and the media constrain the message. Yet the critics are not agreed on the culprit. Some blame the top decision-makers of the media, saying they impose their preferences on the public. Others claim that the communicators are simply responding to a citizenry that wants its news and views in capsules.

Yet it is possible to suggest that Americans are still political creatures, with ideas and interests of their own. Even at a distance they can size up the stature of a candidate and see the issues at stake in an election. Citizens certainly make mistakes and can succumb to alluring but misleading presentations. But it seldom happens when the outcome really counts.

"Voters are not fools," was the way a political scientist once put it. Indeed, it can be argued that exposure to modern media has heightened our sophistication. If that is so, we have a more acute political understanding and seek a politics that will meet our expectations.

A reception followed at the Oakland Country Club. The wedding cake was baked and served by Mrs. Edith Cooper and Mrs. Louise Rodeheaver, aunts of the bride.

The couple is now residing in Oakland.

Man Pleads Guilty Of Incest Friday

Judge Fred A. Thayer ordered a presentence investigation after a man had pleaded guilty of incest. Counts against three, charged with storehouse breaking and larceny were dismissed, last Friday.

John Woodard Lee, 48, P. O. Box, Swanton, pleaded guilty of incest at a trial last Friday. Judge Thayer then ordered the investigation. Lee was released on personal recognizance pending sentencing. The charge followed from carnal knowledge of a daughter in July 1973 and before. The case was transferred from District Court April 1977.

Three persons were charged with storehouse breaking and larceny of the Southern High Band Room last July. Michael Roger Allison, Reese Street, Oakland; William Michael Jose, Rt. 219, Oakland, and Sonja Denise Graff, Mt. Lake Park, were those charged. All three cases were dismissed in open court by the State's Attorney.

Preservation Policy Adopted By Board Of Public Works

The Board of Public Works has adopted a policy on the Preservation of Properties of Historic and Architectural Significance owned or to be acquired by the State. This policy is the product of long-term study and recommendation by the Departments of Natural Resources, General Services and State Planning. The adoption of the policy was called for by the Maryland Historical Trust in order to prevent further deterioration of state owned historic properties and to define the responsibility of state agencies to maintain the architectural heritage they manage for the state.

The adoption of this four-part policy is a step towards the state's assumption of a leadership role in historic preservation and is further assurance that the Trust, the official state historic preservation agency, has the authority and support of the Board of Public Works to accomplish the legislative mandate which established the Trust in 1961.

The Board of Public Works' commitment to preservation was stated in the words "it shall be the policy of all State agencies to endeavor to protect and preserve such properties that are deemed to be of historic value to Maryland." The policy covers as worthy of protection any site "designated as historically or architecturally significant property by the Maryland Historical Trust." According to the policy, by 1981 state agencies must survey all historic properties they own and make this information available to the Trust, the Clearinghouse of the Department of State Planning and the Board of Public Works.

Specific directives are included in the policy for the maintenance and use of historic structures. Whenever possible those originally intended for private use should be returned to such use except when essential to the state's program or where the state's use corresponds to the historic use. When it is necessary to sell a historic property, the sale must include an easement to the Trust. In considering the purchase of historic property by a state agency, the policy requires that the intended use of the buildings be included in the purchase proposal to the Board of Public Works. The acquisition of only those historic properties which will have specific use and benefit to a project is emphasized.

Byron To Testify On Tax Relief Measures

Rep. Goodloe Byron will testify before a congressional committee next week on tax relief measures aimed at housewives and the elderly.

The House Ways & Means Committee is currently considering the Administration's $25 billion tax reduction proposals and final approval of a comprehensive tax package is expected sometime later this spring.

Byron indicated he would push for a bill he co-sponsored earlier this year allowing housewives to establish individual retirement accounts.

"There are about 40 million forgotten homemakers in our country who are discriminated against because they are not paid a regular salary," Byron said. "This measure would end that inequity and increase the after-tax retirement income of housewives by almost 100 percent."

"During my testimony I will also urge for action on legislation providing a $1500 elderly care tax deduction for families who care for dependents aged 65 or older in their own home," he said.

Byron also noted he would address the issue of providing additional dollar exemptions from income tax for amounts received as annuities, pensions or retirement benefits.

"I have sought passage for this kind of legislation for several years now and the opportunity for favorable action in this area seems better than ever," he concluded.

Northern Garrett Squad Members Certified CRT's

Six Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad members recently received certification as Cardiac Rescue Technicians (CRT's) and will be providing cardiac rescue services from the Accident station of the Northern squad. The new CRT's are Barry Beal, Ron Bowser, Pete Crowell, Carolyn Deniker, Paul Frank and Cindy Sweene.

A person must be a certified emergency medical technician-ambulance (EMT-A) before being eligible to take the CRT course which is taught by physicians. CRT's are trained to start intravenous injections, obtain electrocardiograms which show the electrical activity of the heart, administer certain drugs under a physician's direction via radio communication and to generally administer advanced life support, primarily to the heart attack patient while enroute to the hospital.

Through Garrett Central Alarm, voice communications can be established between the CRT and a physician on duty in a hospital. The same system also enables the physician to receive an electrocardiogram from the patient in the ambulance. With the EKG and information provided by the CRT, the physicians can prescribe medication for the patient which can be administered by the CRT before arrival at the hospital.

4-H Club News

Goat Club Meets

The regular meeting of the Garrett County 4-H Dairy Goat Club was held March 21, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kepple. Members attending were Jill Margroff, Tom DeBerry, Robyn Hutzel, Tina Kepple and Louise Gay. There was a large number of parents and guests present also.

Robyn Hutzel reported on the outcome of the county speech contest. The members representing the club at the contest were, Jill Margroff, red ribbon; Robyn Hutzel, red ribbon; Diana Savage, red ribbon; and Tina Kepple, blue ribbon and champion.

The members were told that they must begin learning the anatomy of the Goat and Tom DeBerry and Louise Gay volunteered to draw a large picture of a goat, to be used as a teaching aid. Members were also reminded to keep records, and weighing charts were passed out for this purpose. The members will start working outdoors with their goats, teaching them to be lead by the collar and to obey commands.

The process of recording goats was explained to the members. Any member of the club and other 4-H or FFA goat owners may bring their grade goats to Kepples on April 15 and 12 noon when Mrs. Jane Burkle of the Cumberland Valley 4-H Dairy Goat Club will be there to record goats. This will be the only chance to have this done before the Garrett County Fair.

The next regular meeting of the club is scheduled for April 18 at 7 p.m.

Health Systems Plan Ready For Public Hearings

The Health Systems Agency of Western Maryland will hold four simultaneous hearings on its draft health systems plan beginning at 10 a.m. on April 17, in Garrett, Allegany, Frederick and Washington counties.

Garrett county's hearing will be held at the Will o' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake. A copy of the plan is located in the directors' offices of the central branches of public libraries in Oakland, Cumberland, Frederick, and Hagerstown; the Frederick HSA Liaison office, Winchester Hall, and the Health Systems Agency of Western Maryland's office, 134 N. Mechanic Street, Cumberland.

The National Health Planning and Resources Development Act of 1974 created a nationwide network of Health Systems Agencies and State Health Planning and Development Agencies to provide the American people with a mechanism through which they might have a strong voice in the development of the health care delivery systems in their local areas.

According to HSA, the legislation was introduced to provide health service in ways that respect individual dignity, values and rights; and that the health care system should provide equal access to quality health care at reasonable cost, with lack of income no barrier to needed care.

The Health Systems Agency of Western Maryland, one of five in the state, was established September 1, 1976 as a public regional planning body chartered to oversee the health care needs of the four western counties. The Agency operates under the auspices of a Governing Board of 16 members, 12 of whom are Commissioners of the four counties or their representatives. The functional operation of the agency is under supervision of a 30-member governing body, a majority of whom must be consumers rather than providers of health care. The Governing Body is advised in its operations by seven committees made up of some 75 members, both consumers and providers, the majority of whom are not members of either the Governing Board or the Governing Body.

Day to day work is carried out by eight full-time employes, five professional and three supporting staff.

The current draft health systems plan establishes goals and objectives believed essential to provide improved health care and contain the rate of the rapid rise in cost of such care, in the next five years.

The plan first defines western Maryland as a semi-rural to rural region of generally Anglo-Saxon derivation. There is a greater number of older citizens than in the state as a whole, and health care problems are often aggravated by adverse terrain, winter climate, and transportation deficiencies. Much of the area has been subject to chronic economic depression and high unemployment and is remote from major medical centers. The western Maryland health systems also act as a service center for the residents of neighboring West Virginia and Pennsylvania counties.

The plan examines the principal causes of illness and death in the area and finds that they resemble closely those of the state and the nation. It noted that the apparent explanation for higher mortality (death) and morbidity (illness) rates in the area for such diseases as heart disease and some forms of cancer is the larger number of older residents.

The plan concentrates on the following health status areas:

1. Ischemic heart disease and related hypertension, as a major disabler and killer.
2. Infant mortality, as symptomatic of sometimes inadequate maternal and child care.
3. Dental health, a particular concern in the younger population.
4. Mental health, and related addictions and mental retardation, in which coordination and expansion of the systems appears essential.

After evaluation of primary care services, it was noted that there is an unmet demand for this level of contact with the health care system in parts of western Maryland. The plan urges that steps should be taken to establish primary care centers, provide incentives for more physicians to settle in those areas and encourage more widespread use of nurse practitioners and physician's assistants. The feasibility of founding a Health Maintenance Organization (prepaid medical plan) in the area is also under consideration.

In other recommendations, the plan urges adoption of a single emergency telephone number throughout the area. Emphasis is placed on dealing with mental health problems at the community rather than the institutional setting. Development of satellite mental health centers and expansion of community mental health programs are suggested.

Education programs in the field of alcoholism and drug abuse are advocated, and the provision of quarterway houses urged.

Improvement in dental health through educational programs, community preventive measures such as fluoridation of water supplies, easier access to dental care services and augmentation of dental manpower by greater use of dental assistants and hygienists are all planned.

Rupli Attacks Potomac Edison

Citing an Environmental Action Foundation survey of the nation's 100 largest electric utilities, Democratic Congressional candidate, Dan Rupli called for an immediate halt to Potomac Edison's policy of collecting more taxes from its customers than it actually pays to the Federal government.

Rupli charged that in 1976, Potomac Edison collected $12,527,060 in federal income taxes, but only paid $5,874,000, resulting in a $6,652,760 overcharge to its customers.

"The congress of the United States has sat on its hands while the electric utilities have ravaged the pocket-books of the hardworking families of central and western Maryland. Our families cannot tolerate such abuse any longer. We are being robbed blind and none of our public officials are doing anything to stop it," said Rupli.

Rupli called for immediate refunds by Potomac Edison of all tax overcharge in the form of rate reductions. "The use of the 'phantom tax' device is a common practice in the electric utility industry, and it amounts to legalized theft said Rupli. He went on to cite that a total of $2,078,000,000 in tax overcharges was collected by the nation's 100 largest utility companies in 1976.

Mary Moreland First Paid Female Firefighter To Join Howard Company

Mrs. Mary Moreland, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James (Red) Fries, King Wildesen Road, near Gorman, was recently featured in an article in the Baltimore Sun newspapers as the first woman paid firefighter in Howard County.

Mrs. Moreland was introduced to the work through volunteer service, enjoying it so much it became first a hobby and now an avocation.

The 28-year-old Mrs. Moreland is a parttime firefighter, working eight-hour shifts on Tuesday and Thursday of each week at the Elkridge fire company. The county fire service includes 65 paid firefighters and 375 paid volunteers.

In addition to her paid work, Mrs. Moreland plans to continue her volunteer duties at the Elkridge station, working Mondays and Fridays on the 6 p.m. to 8 a.m. shifts. She will also continue helping her husband, Bob, in their trailer sales business in Laurel.

Mrs. Moreland said in her interview that her interest in the fire service stems from her husband Bob, who has been a volunteer since 1967. She added that he was proud of her achievements with the fire company. She also noted that their nine-year old son Bobby has "lived with the fire department since he has been little."

Mrs. Moreland, who intends to apply for a permanent position as a firefighter when a vacancy occurs, has been a cardiac rescue technician for the past year. She said she has about 200 hours of training and is also certified to drive a fire truck.

Although only 5 feet, six inches tall, Mrs. Moreland will be on the truck in full gear on fire calls, and will also make ambulance runs. She noted that she has the training, and "I don't worry. No one wants to go into a burning house, but it has to be done. We look out for each other, and I don't think about the hazards.

"I think that a woman who has the training and knowledge can do this job. I don't have the strength of a six-foot, 200-pound man, but I can handle the hose, raise the ladders and go into a burning house, I know what my limits are."

She is a daughter of Mrs. Rosellen Brown, Savage, and the late William Evans. Her husband is a son of Charles Moreland, Gorman, and the late Mrs. Moreland.

Kidney Donation Cards Available

The Kidney Foundation of Maryland, through the efforts of many volunteers in Western Maryland, has organized a campaign to encourage residents to give a post-mortem donation of their kidneys for use in the life-giving kidney transplant operation.

Western Maryland residents can help make more transplants possible for many Marylanders afflicted with kidney disease by signing one of the donor cards included in every Kidney Foundation Passkit distributed throughout the area.

The Foundation calls the donor card an official "pocket will" that may be signed by anyone over eighteen years of age who wishes to donate his or her kidneys, or other organs, at the time of death. Donors need only to destroy the card should they change their minds.

Due to recent advances in medical science, many patients with kidney disease can be completely restored to health by the transplant operation. However, of the 11,000 Americans eligible for a kidney transplant, only 4,000 will be able to receive a new kidney due to the lack of available organs.

The Foundation states that transplant operation techniques have improved tremendously since they were begun in 1954. Currently, approximately 85% of all transplants are still successful with functioning grafts after two years.

For further information on organ donation or to obtain a donor card, persons should call the Kidney Foundation, toll free, by asking the operator for Enterprise 9-5040 or by dialing direct, 685-5040.

Stiff Fine Given In Eluding Case

Fleeing or attempting to elude a police officer drew a stiff fine in District Court by Judge Lewis R. Jones during the week ending April 3. A number of cases involving less serious offenses were also heard.

Vincent Craig Slagle, Bruceton Mills, W. Va., pleaded guilty of fleeing or attempting to elude a uniformed police officer and was fined $255. He was also charged with exceeding the posted speed limit by traveling 110 mph but this charge was dismissed in plea bargaining.

Other cases were not as serious.

Ralph V. L. Wolfe, RD 2, Oakland, pleaded guilty on two motorcycle charges. For driving an unlicensed vehicle on a highway and operating the vehicle without license for that class (E), he was fined $30 on each charge.

Richard D. Large, Star Route, pleaded guilty of having a load extending beyond the fender line on the left and was fined $15.

Dolores J. Chloros, RD 4, Deer Park and Michael R. Allison, Mt. Storm, W. Va., pleaded guilty of failing to obey a stop sign and were fined $15 each.

Arnold R. Strickland, Hagerstown, pleaded not guilty of exceeding the posted speed limit but was found guilty and fined $30.

Marvin J. Deal, Star Route 219, Accident, pleaded not guilty of failing to keep to the right side of the road but was placed on probation for 60 days before judgment and paid costs.

All others forfeited collateral.

Sportsmen's Group Reviews Hunting Rules And Seasons

Eight member clubs of the Allegany-Garrett Sportsmen's Association met March 21 at the Maple Shade Farmers and Sportsmen's clubhouse.

Dennis Tompkins explained to the 19 members present the March 18 public hearing in Annapolis on hunting regulations and seasons, and gave a summary report. He mentioned the Wildlife Administration's decision to close the fall turkey season statewide, and the doe season in the four westernmost counties, because of the hard winter weather.

He reported that the Administration decided to reject all provisions submitted by the Western Maryland Muzzle-loaders Association and to remain with the initially proposed winter three-day season for bucks only with flintlock weapons only. One change resulted in moving the three-day season from the 14th through the 16th of December to December 7 through 9.

John Barton, District Game Commissioner, who participated in the decisions, said the Administration still feels a conservative muzzle-loading season the first year is necessary, and said that the use of percussion guns was rejected because the officers feel the percussion guns are superior in shooting accuracy to flintlocks.

At its next meeting the group will vote on a position paper distributed by the Citizens Coalition on Surface Mining. The group has generally supported the Coalition since coal mining was first started in the Savage River area and the Coalition was formed to oppose mining there.

Western Maryland Wildlife Federation officer Lonnie Bray asked the Association to recommend to him five areas of the state which could be suggested to Bernard Halla, Wildlife Administration Director, as locations where the annual public hearings could be held on a rotational basis in case the Administration declines to hold regular yearly hearings in Western Maryland.

The group unanimously approved a vote of appreciation for former secretary Louis Crowe for his services over the previous years.

The next meeting will be at the Barrelville Sportsmen's Club on Tuesday, April 18, at 7:30 p.m.

The Puch has pedals like a bicycle and a motor like your motorboat. Which means it can whip you around town in great style without worrying about things like being out of breath, or cardiac arrest.

Remember the sports car you had? It's that kind of fun.

The upkeep is low. And if you ride it 1500 miles next year your fuel bill will be about $15!

Come on in, ride one, and see for yourself: it's been a long time since this much fun made this much sense.

University Of Maryland Scientists Study Brain Development Patterns

Scientists at the University of Maryland have identified what they feel could be one cause of improper brain development and retardation in infants.

Dr. Anthony T. Campagnoni, Dr. Mark Keeney and Mary C. McKenna, biochemists working with the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station, say that improper brain development can be linked to a deficiency of essential fatty acids (EFA) in the diets of pregnant women and young infants.

Essential fatty acids are needed for proper myelination, a process that produces membraneous "insulators" around nerve fibers which transmit brain impulses. Myelination occurs in the last trimester (3 months) of pregnancy in humans and continues for the first year of life.

Brain development in mice corresponds very closely with the development pattern of the brain in humans, according to scientists who study brain development. In two years of laboratory comparison, pregnant mice and their offspring were placed on EFA-deficient and control diets. This enabled the Maryland scientists to observe a well-defined development pattern.

The EFA-deficient mice had a one-week delay in general brain development as evidenced by DNA, RNA and protein measurements. DNA is a nucleic acid, an organic compound which gives an indication of the number of cells in the brain. RNA is a different kind of nucleic acid which, in association with protein, gives indication of the size of brain cells.

A one-week delay in general brain development in mice is equivalent to a seven-month delay in humans. This delay could cause serious learning problems for a child.

In addition, the EFA-deficient mice had up to 50 percent less body weight, and 10 percent less brain weight than their counterparts on the control diet. They also tended to exhibit baldness, scruffy fur and scaly tails. In addition, there was a lower birth rate among the EFA-deficient mice and less of a mothering instinct in the females which did give birth.

Dr. Campagnoni says that professional persons working with mal-nourished children see many of the same external symptoms observed in mice. One of the first signs in humans of EFA deficiency is the occurrence of skin lesions and dermatitis. Many babies stop growing when there is a lack of essential fatty acids in the diet. These babies need one and one-half times the normal amount of calories in order to maintain normal gains in weight.

Premature infants placed on intravenous feeding without a fat supplement are very susceptible to EFA deficiency. Parents whose children are born prematurely should make sure such children receive adequate EFA in their diets.

For a long time it was believed that adults could not develop an EFA deficiency. Recent work with hospital patients has disproved this.

An EFA deficiency occurred with patients who underwent major surgery in which part of the intestines was removed. Also, patients who were on intravenous feeding for two weeks or more developed skin lesions and other clinical signs of EFA deficiency.

The Maryland team feels that problems of EFA deficiency and improper brain development can be overcome and prevented through adherence to a properly balanced diet.

People who could run into serious problems with EFA deficiency are young pregnant women whose diets consists of certain "junk" food which is too low in unsaturated fats. This type of diet does not provide the necessary EFA for proper brain development in babies.

A balanced diet supplies plenty of EFA. Most vegetable oils are an excellent source. Corn and soybean oil rate high in this respect.

Although the Maryland scientists believe there may be a brief span of time when it is most important to receive EFA for the human brain to develop properly, they recommend that diets be monitored for women during pregnancy and through the first year of life for the child.

The U. S. Recommended Daily Allowance for EFA in the diet is two percent of the caloric intake for infants and one percent for adults. Milk from well-nourished mothers supplies five percent of its calories from essential fatty acids. Dr. Campagnoni and Ms. McKenna, along with many other biochemists, think that a five percent level would be a more acceptable amount in the diet.

The scientists would like to continue their research with EFA deficiency, looking specifically at myelin composition and maturation.

They feel that abnormal myelin may be produced in growing infants which may adversely affect their mental and motor development (physical coordination). Also, they would like to determine if there are one or more "vulnerable" periods when the developing brain is particularly susceptible to EFA deficiency.

Dr. Campagnoni, Dr. Keeney and Ms. McKenna are all associated with the nutritional sciences program at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Chaired by Dr. Keeney, nutritional sciences is a multidisciplinary program involving faculty members from the animal sciences, chemistry, pediatrics, poultry science and the Department of Foods, Nutrition and Institution Administration.

GRANTSVILLE

Plan Bible Study Sessions

The Spring Bible Study of St. John's United Church of Christ, Grantsville, will be held Sunday evenings at 6 o'clock during April. Additional sessions may be scheduled for May.

This spring's Bible study deals with values, family life and related subjects. Rev. Douglas Garland, pastor, will be leading the sessions.

No meeting will be held April 30, to allow church members to attend the spring meeting of the Somerset Association at Ebensburg.

On Easter Sunday, during the morning worship, Pastor Garland noted that two plaques had been placed in the church sanctuary and were on display for the first time.

The plaques designate memorial gifts of chimes and carillon which were placed in St. John's Church through the Memorial Fund. The gifts were dedicated at an earlier date.

Carcass Evaluation Seminar Scheduled At Westminster

Dr. Bill Kunkle, Extension Animal Science Specialist with the University of Maryland, has announced a Carcass Evaluation School which will be held on Wednesday, April 12, at the Carroll County Extension Office in Westminster from 11:00 a.m. until 2:15 p.m.

Dr. Kunkle related that many local county fairs, as well as, the State Fair in Timonium, are currently using carcass evaluation data as a part of their livestock shows. Increasing interest in measuring the meat producing ability of the beef, sheep and swine exhibited at livestock shows throughout the State of Maryland has created the need to train leaders and older 4-H & FFA members in the procedures of carcass evaluation.

The tentative schedule includes a review of slides showing carcass quality and cutability grades of beef, sheep and swine. The session will cover beef in depth and lamb and swine if arrangements can be made. The group will then go to Bullock's Country Meats where they will have a first hand opportunity to participate in a carcass measurement demonstration. The session will conclude with a summary on computing yield grades and information on hew to set up a carcass contest at any one of the many local fairs or livestock shows held throughout Mafyland.

Transportation to this seminar will be provided from the Garrett County Extension Office in Oakland. The group will leave at 6:00 a.m. from the Oakland Post Office on Wednesday, April 12. To reserve a place in the carcass evaluation school, persons should contact the 4-H Office at 334-2145.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our mother, Grace E. Resh, who departed this earthly life, March 30, 1971:

Today is the day for remembering
And many sad regrets.
Today we shall always remember,
When the rest of the world forgets.
A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we love is still.
A place is vacant in our home,
Which can never be filled.

CARD OF THANKS

On behalf of my wife and I, I want to take this opportunity to publicly thank and commend the many wonderful people who came to our assistance at the time of our automobile accident, January 15, on Marsh Hill Road. A sincere thanks to Northern Rescue Squad, McHenry Fire Department, Md. State Police and ambulance service for responding to the scene and working so efficiently. A special thanks to the Southern Rescue Squad for its concern and efficient handling at such a difficult time. We are indeed fortunate to have these services so close at hand. Hats off to these great volunteers — their untiring efforts are certainly praiseworthy.

Nation's Longest Hiking Path To Be Protected

President Carter has signed into law the bill introduced by Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) that ensures completion and preservation of the Appalachian Trail, the nation's longest hiking path.

"We are witnessing the achievement of a great dream," Senator Mathias said. "Benton MacKaye's vision of a 2000 mile footpath up in the mountains away from the hurry of daily life is becoming a reality. The Appalachian Trail is one of the least expensive recreational experiences Americans can enjoy. Yet the mental and physical rejuvenation one experiences walking the Trail is priceless."

The Senate Committee report accompanying this law directs the Secretary of the Interior "— to make all reasonable efforts to acquire the necessary lands by negotiation." The Secretary is also required to "—make every reasonable effort to exclude from the boundary any improved residential properties which he determines in his discretion are not necessary for protection of the values of the Trail."

The Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, and both houses of Congress, made it clear that eminent domain will be used to complete and preserve the Trail only as a last resort after negotiations have failed.

As further insurance, individual and corporate property owners are included on the Advisory Council established to advise the Secretary of the Interior on selection of rights-of-way, standards for trail markers, and trail management.

Mathias praised a unique public-private partnership that has developed to maintain the Trail. The Appalachian Trail Conference, an organization of over 60 trail clubs from Maine to Georgia he said, has played "a major role in ensuring volunteer maintenance of the Trail."

"This voluntary maintenance program has cost the American taxpayer nothing and has demonstrated great devotion for the preservation of the Trail," Senator Mathias said.

March Is Cool, Snowy But Dry

Temperatures for March averaged four degrees below normal. Rainfall was about half of normal. Snowfall, however, was slightly above normal.

Precipitation for March totaled 2.42 inches or 2.13 below normal. This follows February's shortage of 2.36 inches and January's excess of 2.7. The shortage for the year so far is then 1.79 inches below normal. The wettest day was 26th with .75 inch, falling as rain. Snowfall of the month totaled 17.7 inches or 1.8 inches above normal. The heaviest single day's fall was 4.5 inches on the 3rd. The total for that storm produced seven inches of snow. The storm on the 16 through the 18 totaled 7.2 inches.

Snowfall for the 1977-78 season now totals 127.4 inches.

Temperatures for the month averaged 31.9 degrees or 4.1 below normal. Highs averaged 42.3 degrees or 5.1 below normal. The high for the month was 64 degrees on the 21st, the next being 63 on the 31st. The mercury stayed at the freezing mark or below on ten days, mostly the first week of the month. Lows averaged 21.3 degrees or three below normal. The low occurred on two days, being zero on the 7th and 8th. The mercury dropped to freezing or below on all but four days, the first week being in the teens and single digits.

Spring arrived on the evening of the 20th under mostly cloudy skies and mild temperatures.

Jeff Opel To Begin Voluntary Service In Elkhart, Indiana

Jeffrey D. Opel, son of Joan and Park Opel, of Accident, has begun a one-year term of Voluntary Service with Mennonite Board of Missions, Elkhart, Ind. He is a member of the Glade Mennonite Church, Accident.

Jeff is working as a counselor at Paul's Porch, Columbus, Ohio. Sponsored by the Neil Avenue Mennonite Church, Paul's Porch is a short-term emergency residence for transient males 18-30. VS'ers are involved as residential counselors assisted by congregational volunteers. The facility offers lodging for up to three days and acts as a referral agency to help meet needs of the young men. Other involvements are also projected for the unit.

Jeff is a 1975 graduate of Northern High School, and attended Rosedale Bible Institute, Irwin, Ohio, for a year. Before entering service he worked at Foxtown Hickory Rockers in Accident as a carpenter.

Currently more than 200 youth through senior adults serve with Mennonite Board of Missions in 40 Voluntary Service locations in Canada, the United States, and Puerto Rico.

Wheels For Life Chairman Named

Rev. John Grant of St. John's Episcopal Church in Deer Park and Ms. Karen Fauber of Friendsville have been selected as chairmen of the 1978 Wheels for Life Bike-a-thon for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

William J. Kirwen, SJCRH Director of Development, said that those named above have agreed to head a campaign to support the only research center dedicated exclusively to conquering childhood cancer and other deadly diseases of children.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, founded by entertainer Danny Thomas, is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory, and provides treatment free to patients admitted after referral by a doctor. Discoveries in Leukemia and solid tumors of children have already brought it international acclaim by the medical profession.

The drive is planned for later this spring.

Fat America . . .

Utility bills, food prices, unemployment, crime, politics, labor strikes, pollution...all of these major problems are read about in the newspapers and seen on TV every day. We get tired of hearing about it.

However, there is another critical problem which is not often read about nor taken seriously enough — our health.

The general physical condition of most Americans ranks somewhere between poor and pitiful. The majority of Americans are overweight and out of shape. One need only watch people on a busy street, take note of an audience at a theater or glance around a crowded supermarket to realize just how many Americans spent entirely too much time eating and not nearly enough exercising.

Our diets leave much to be desired also. We eat an excessive amount of red meats. Oh, the protein in the meat is great, but the fat and cholesterol can kill. Although scientists have made tremendous progress in combating heart disease, there will probably never be a wonder drug that will allow us to eat all the junk food we desire without clogging up the old ticker. So many of the thousands of heart attacks Americans suffer each year could be avoided with a proper diet and some exercise.

The benefits of good physical condition are numerous. By being in shape, one feels good, looks good and can think more clearly. There seems to be a lot of decision-makers in this country who are not thinking too clearly. It would be interesting to get some statistics on how many of our legislators are overweight and/or out of shape. It's probable that the majority of them fall into this category.

It costs nothing to get into shape. It takes only willpower and determination. The human body is such a wonderful creation, it takes only about 1% of our time to keep it in top running condition. Sacrificing 1% of our time — either jogging, jumping rope, stretching and exercising — to feel great 100% of the time is the best bargain going.

Volunteers Canvass For Cancer Society

Volunteers for the Garrett County unit of the American Cancer Society will be canvassing all area homes this month in the annual fund drive for the organization.

Volunteers will be carrying informational packets explaining expenditures of the Cancer Society, and will give receipts for donations.

They will also be explaining the hemoccult test kits available free of charge at county drug stores to test for cancer of the colon and rectum. The simple kits and all needed information are available at Enulander's, Gregg's, Proudfoot's and Deist Pharmacies.

Kits are also available from all health department centers in the county.

Man Found Dead In Oakland Garage Tuesday Morning

Services will be conducted tomorrow at Newman Funeral Home, Friendsville, for Barney L. Teats, 24, who was found dead early Tuesday morning in a garage in Oakland.

Young Teats was found in the Coca-Cola garage off Center Street about 7 a.m., when Tommy Fratz, a co-worker, went to the garage to get one of the trucks. Fratz immediately notified authorities, and Officer David Crossland of the Oakland City Police, Deputy Harland Tschnell and members of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad soon arrived at the scene.

Dr. James A. Feaster, county medical examiner, was called and pronounced the cause of death as carbon monoxide poisoning and ruled the death a suicide. A note was later found in the young man's car parked outside the garage.

According to Officer Crossland, the ignitions were turned on in two of the company trucks, but only one truck was still running at the time the victim was found. All doors had been locked from the inside. Teats had been an employe of the plant for over two years.

The police report noted that Barney had left another employe at the plant and had gone to park a truck in the garage about 6:30 Monday evening. Barney's mother had called the plant shortly before 8 a.m. to see if the young man was at work, as he had not returned home the evening before.

Born in Dayton, Ohio December 27, 1953, Barney was a son of Winston and Eleanor (Fike) Teats, of Riverside Drive, Friendsville.

He was a member of the Friendsville United Methodist Church and was a 1972 graduate of Northern High School.

Also surviving are two brothers, Gary Teats, Accident, and Ronald Teats, Charleston, S. C.; the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Fike, Friendsville, and paternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Mary Long, Whitmer, W. Va.

Friends will be received at the funeral home today from 2 until 4 and 7 until 9 p.m. Services will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p.m. with the Rev. Brian Schofield officiating. Interment will be in Garrett County Memorial Gardens, Oakland.

The green and white Blazer was valued at $5,000.

Kingwood Youth Killed Wednesday In Cycle Mishap

A Kingwood, W. Va. youth was killed instantly last Wednesday evening when his motorcycle struck a steel cable spanning a private road near Mt. Lake Park.

The victim was identified as Robert A. Crane, 18 of 103 Swartz Road, Kingwood. Police reported that the accident occurred at 6:23 p.m. when Crane was heading north on the private road off State Route 135, 1.3 miles east of Mountain Lake Park, when he failed to see the steel cable. The motorcycle struck the cable and the youth was nearly decapitated.

The youth had been taking his newly purchased motorcycle, for which he paid $598 in cash moments before the accident, for a ride on the dirt road. Police said that Crane, a senior at Central Preston High School, bought the motorcycle from Mellinger Enterprises in Deer Park, about 6 p.m. and was killed less than a half hour later.

John Mellinger, who sold Crane the vehicle, said it was a 100cc Yamaha, a relatively small bike.

"He hadn't been gone over 15 minutes when the report came in," Mellinger said. "He was down either last weekend or the first of the week. He checked it out then, and he called Tuesday and said he'd be down. He came in Wednesday evening with the cash in hand."

Mellinger said it was the first time he has ever sold a motorcycle that led to an immediate fatality.

"That's the first one," he said. "I hope it's never again."

Mellinger said he thought Crane looked younger than 18 but was assured the youth had a driver's license. Mellinger also said Crane told him he had driven his friends' motorcycles.

"He had been riding his buddies' bikes," Mellinger said. "The boys were in here with him when he bought it."

Police said the friends must have driven off later because Crane was driving alone when the accident occurred. It was also reported that the cable was not marked with identifying signs or flags.

Members of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad arrived on the scene shortly following the accident, and the youth was later pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. James Feaster, Garrett County medical examiner. The body was taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Rescue Squad.

The motorcycle, which only had two miles on the odometer, was damaged slightly in the mishap.

Commissioners, Board Of Education Discuss Fiscal Education Budget

Commissioners, George Edwards, Wayne Hamilton and Don Bender are conducting a series of workshops in a public forum format and have invited the county citizens to participate in the budget process.

The commissioners conducted their first session of budget meetings yesterday and at the conclusion of the workshops, will prepare a second draft levy which will be published and advertised for public hearings during May.

Commissioner Wayne Hamilton was asked to summarize the first day's series of budget hearings, beginning with the Community Action Council's budget request. Hamilton commented that the commissioners made no definite commitment on that or any of the budget requests as of yet, but that all agencies presenting budgets were simply required to justify their requests.

The Agricultural Extension Service met with the commissioners next and Hamilton mentioned that their budget reflected the Maryland state increase in salaries pertaining to that office. He went on to explain that the Extension Service would be relocating its office in the new courthouse annex in late July or early August.

The commissioner stated that the Ruth Enlow Library budget request also reflected some salary increases and the usual request for monies to purchase new volumes for the library. The library, as well as other county agencies and

New Creek Man Saved By Quick Action And CPR

Quick action on the part of a Garrett County man resulted in saving the life of a New Creek, W. Va., man on Monday.

Roy Ebert, 72, New Creek, was loading bales of hay onto a truck at Hamilton Farms near Red House when at approximately 12:15 p.m. he was stricken with a heart attack, resulting in cardiac arrest, or stoppage of the heart.

Brooks Hamilton, 34, who was working with Mr. Ebert immediately began cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and sent someone to summon the Southern Rescue Squad.

By the time the squad arrived, Mr. Hamilton had successfully revived Mr. Ebert. While enroute to the hospital, Mr. Ebert again went into cardiac arrest and was revived a second time by members of the squad.

Mr. Ebert was listed in fair condition this morning at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Industrial Development Is Good Possibility At Site Near Accident

Substantial new industrial development could be a possibility for the Accident Industrial Site, according to a release from the Garrett County Development Corporation.

The County Commissioners announced last week their intention to acquire some 50 acres of property within the town of Accident as one of the continuing steps in the process of establishing an industrial park in the town. The Development Corporation plans to immediately market subdivided parcels of the site upon transfer of the property.

The property will be purchased by use of funds through the Maryland Industrial Land Bank. Acquisition will be accomplished a joint effort between the town of Accident, Garrett County and the state of Maryland. Actual transfer of the property is expected in June or July.

Beginning in 1972, the mayor and council of Accident acquired an option to purchase on the subject tract which has subsequently been renewed. In 1975 Garrett County constructed an access road into the industrial site, where American HV Test Systems, Inc., the park's first occupant, is situated. Garrett County Development Corporation, developer of the site, constructed a water main into the park in order to service all present and future occupants.

Acquisition by the county will be followed by development of sewerage service into the park, with the start of construction scheduled in the spring of 1979.

The acquisition of this industrial tract marks the first time a parcel of property located in the northern part of the county has been exclusively reserved for future industrial use. This is particularly important today, according to Tom Jones, president of the Development Corporation, since the opening of the National Freeway. Many prospective industries which have looked at Garrett County as a future home emphasize the need of good highway access from their plant to their material suppliers and markets.

Owner Halts Youth Fleeing From Hunting Cabin After Larceny

A young man from Florida has been lodged in the Garrett County jail in connection with a breaking, entering and larceny near Deer Park earlier this week.

Two other suspects are under investigation in the case, which involved entering the hunting cabin of Homer Bennett off Pysell Cross Cut Road between April 7 and 9.

Mr. Bennett had approached his cabin on the 9th in time to see a young man fleeing the building. He gave chase, armed with a pistol, and managed to stop the young man, later identified at the sheriff's department as Robert Lee Sampson, 18. Sampson sustained a scalp wound in the fracas and was treated at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Sampson is being held in lieu of $1,500 bond. Police are also investigating a possible connection with the young man and a stolen van parked in Oakland, which was reported missing from Florida several days ago.

Mr. Bennett estimated that $362 worth of household items, including lanterns, flashlights, a radio and knives, were missing from his cabin. The door had been kicked in to gain entry to the cabin.

Jury Finds Man Innocent Of Rape

A jury acquitted one man of rape and a woman was given a jail sentence for child abuse in Circuit Court last Thursday and Friday.

Larry Allen Lipscomb, Terra Alta, W. Va., had been charged with first degree rape involving a woman on Underwood road last August. The jury trial was presided over by Judge Harold Naughton of Cumberland. The jury sustained the not guilty plea of Lipscomb. After the case was transferred from District Court in September, the defendent pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity but the plead was withdrawn. Following the testimonial of the witness (a woman) at the trial, the defendent made a motion of mis-trial which was denied. This case was heard last Thursday.

An Oakland woman was sentenced to 30 days in the Garrett County Jail for child abuse. Serena Sisler, Mason Street, Oakland, pleaded not guilty of child abuse of her daughter last October, at a trial in February, she was found guilty by Judge Fred A. Thayer and a presentence investigation was ordered. Judge Thayer handed down the sentence last Friday.

GCTA, Board Reach Possible Salary Contract

Bargaining committee members of the Garrett County Teachers Association and the Board of Education reached a mediated, tentative agreement early Sunday morning in the current teacher wage package deadlock.

Details of the contract will not be revealed until the teachers have had a chance to study the agreement and have taken a vote, possibly next week.

Tom Shaffer, of the Maryland State Teachers Association, announced the tentative agreement Tuesday, stating that local GCTA and Board representatives had worked two successive weekends to break the deadlock over wages and benefits which stymied earlier attempts to reach a settlement.

The Board's first offering to the instructors was $365,890, which would have provided an across-the-board raise of approximately $300, and which was completely rejected by members of the GCTA bargaining committee.

Coal Surcharge Bill Killed In Committee

State Senator Edward J. Mason (R-Allegany, Garrett) reported Tuesday that his bill authorizing the county commissioners of Allegany and Garrett counties to place a tax on Maryland coal was the victim of last-minute maneuvering in the waning minutes of the 1978 General Assembly.

He reported that the House of Delegates Ways and Means Committee had previously killed the bill but upon pressure from the Senate reconsidered it Monday.

The committee voted 11 to 5 against placing it on the floor of the House, after what Sen. Mason called some last minute vote-trading on other bills.

The measure would have authorized the commissioners to place a tax not to exceed two and one-half percent on coal that is either deep mined or surface mined in the two counties and sold outside the county.

Coal sold in the two counties would not be taxed according to the bill, a feature that would protect the small operators.

Sen. Mason indicated that if re-elected this year he will place the same bill in the 1979 General Assembly.

Two Motorcycles Wreck, Injure Three Persons

A double motorcycle accident occurred on the Lower New Germany Road Sunday afternoon. Three persons were injured, but were treated at the scene.

Edward Newman, of Frostburg, was thrown from his cycle but the driver and passenger of the other cycle were not. They were Jonathan G. Newman and Kelley M. Meyer, passenger, both of Frostburg. The mishap occurred about 2.2 miles south of the Avilton-Lonaconing road shortly before 4 p.m. They were northbound, came over the crest of a hill, and ran into a pile of dirt and gravel in their lane of travel. The pile, about 15 to 20 inches high was apparently left from some road construction. Edward hit the pile and was thrown from the vehicle and landed about 100 feet from the pile. The two on the other cycle slid about 50 feet before coming to rest. No barricades were in place to indicate construction.

Tfc. Dale Williams investigated the double mishap.

Fire Damages Summer Cottage At Green Glade

A summer home on the Green Glade Road sustained extensive damage April 6 when a fire of undetermined origin started in the bedroom of the structure.

Cause of the fire is under investigation by Robert Shimer, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties. No one had been living in the home, owned by John Degerts, for several weeks prior to the blaze.

Deer Park firemen were called to the scene, assisted by members of the Bittinger department. Deer Park had 21 men and three pieces of equipment fighting the blaze. Oakland stood by at Deer Park with a pumper and five men.

Firemen were on the scene approximately an hour and a half.

Called To Marley Home

On Sunday morning, Deer Park firemen were called about 6:30 a.m. to the scene of a car accident just across the railroad tracks in Deer Park. A car operated by Robert Wayne Hinebaugh had struck the front of the Ted Marley residence, rupturing two natural gas lines. Firemen stood by for one hour after the house was evacuated until gas repairmen could replace the two meters torn off by the impact of the car.

The home was temporarily repaired by neighbors of Mr. Marley, 70, who was able to return home Monday.

Chessie Steam Special To Travel To Terra Alta

Locomotive 2101, a steamer built by the Reading Railroad in 1945, will be pulling the Chessie Steam Special from Cumberland to Terra Alta Sunday, May 14.

Locomotive 2101, a 4-8-4, class T1, was designed for heavy duty freight and passenger service and was used until 1955 when it was semi-retired. In 1967 it was retired until its resurrection for use with the American Freedom Train.

At 900,000 pounds, the locomotive produces more power than a 707 airplane at take-off.

The 2101 with its tender is 110 feet, six inches long. Its auxiliary tender adds another 51 feet, eight inches. The first tender carries 26 tons of coal and 19,000 gallons of water. The auxiliary tender carries an additional 16,000 gallons. Steam pressure of 240 pounds provides tractive of 68,000 pounds with an additional 11,000 pounds being added by the booster when cut in.

Open window coaches will be coupled with modern air-conditioned coaches, an observation car, a parlor car and a concession car. Railroad items from the B&O Museum in Baltimore will be available at a gift shop aboard the train.

The train will depart Cumberland at 11:30 a.m. to arrive in Terra Alta at 3 p.m., stopping in Keyser at 12:30. The train will depart Terra Alta at 5:45 and be back in Cumberland at 8 p.m.

In Terra Alta, various groups will be sponsoring a flea market, arts and crafts shows, a fiddlers' contest, historic displays, a beard contest and a variety of home-cooked meals for the exursionists.

For ticket information, contact the Western Maryland Chapter, National Railway Historical Society, P. O. Box 1331, Cumberland, 21502, or phone 301-722-5550 or 301-689-3503.

The Historic Wye plantation on the Eastern Shore has been taken over by an institute for humanistic studies.

Skipping through plastic tubes is Tracy Moats under the watchful eye of instructor Kathy Ridder. Tracy and her group were part of the 65 children attending the play day from Child Development, Head Start and the Board of Education. The groups are the three Garrett County agencies devoted to the instruction of young children. It was the first group experience away from home for many of the children, and was felt to be a huge success by staff members — possibly the beginning of more such activities.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

Tears fell from Heaven, in the form of rain, and from many human eyes on Thursday, April 6, at a very moving Arbor Day celebration, the dedication of Camp Hickory. I feel the people who were privileged to be a part of this special occasion, from elementary school children of the county to people in high places on local and state levels, are proud of this area of our county which is being used to promote outdoor education to our youth. This outdoor education center is one of the things which makes Garrett County unique in the state.

Emphasis on restoration, conservation, and preservation of our natural resources was stressed as a Wye Oak sapling was presented to Mr. Charles Strauss for Camp Hickory. Fellow Americans, let us not take the beauty God has given us for granted. Unless we care for what we have, now, future generations will not be able to enjoy nature as we do.

Each elementary school in the county purchased a tree which will be planted at Camp Hickory. The students who participated in the planting ceremony will not soon forget the experience. I know I express their thanks as well as my own to those people who made it possible for us to be a part of that special day.

A nature lover,
Mrs. Ellen Zimmerman

Dear Sir:

Several weeks in the past I criticized the Supervisor of Assessments regarding a promised Tax Credit. It has now been explained to me that due to the 15% legislative credit, etc., the other credit could not be as large as originally stated. I wish to state that to the best of my knowledge, I have now received everything he said I would.

My opinion still remains identical, however, regarding other procedures. If an assessable item is listed with an individual amount before depreciation is applied, it should conclude with an individual amount. When 2 or more items are lumped the taxpayer has no idea what portion applies to a single item.

The law says assess at full cash value and assuming without actual knowledge that a person has a finished upstairs just because the house has 2 stories is unfair to the taxpayer. Assumptions do not arrive at cash value.

Thank you,
Robert W. Shives
Grantsville

Dear Editor:

I personally feel that it is time Northern and Southern stop putting each other down, stop telling each other to grow up, and think before we write something that most of the citizens in Garrett County read.

I am a cheerleader at S.H.S. and to the concerned student at N.H.S., I know that our cheerleaders did not mock your cheerleaders when they went onto the floor. And besides that, how would you know? While your cheerleaders were on the floor the only thing we talked about was what our next floor cheer would be and how far out on the floor to go, and to me that is not what you call mocking.

Our squad has often talked about how good we feel the N.H.S. squads are, and I don't feel that we should be accused of something we didn't do. Our squad was there to arouse our school's spirit, not to mock N.H.S. cheerleaders.

So next time think about how it will affect whom you accuse, and really know for sure if they're guilty of what you accuse them for, before you write it for everyone to read.

Sue Mason

Editor:

Today is payday for teachers. As a teacher I am filled with a deep sense of depression. I realize that after I pay my bills, I will be no better off today than I was yesterday. I've taught for ten years, six years in Garrett County. I have had an advanced professional certificate for four years, but my three children are eligible for reduced lunch and breakfast. I will not allow my children to participate in this program.

My electric bill increased 195% this month from $224 to $439. As the cost of mining coal increases, my electric bill will increase correspondingly.

As I improve my home, my property tax increases and I can expect to pay a portion of the Mt. Lake Park sewerage bill.

I can expect food costs to rise 5% next year. My own records show that my food costs have risen 5% each of the two previous years.

In five years I will have two college-age children; in seven years, three college-age students. Next year the cost of higher education will increase 5% to $5,000 a year for private colleges. Even though I graduated from a private, liberal arts college, I can see no possibility of that for my children.

A bill in the state legislature (S.B. 453), is designed to drastically reduce a teacher's benefits at retirement. And through all this, I'm supposed to remain dedicated to my profession, dedicated to my students.

I would like a 37% increase in my salary over the next three years. But I suppose educating the children is less important than mining the coal.

I am not pro-union, but this year I would be willing to strike to improve this situation.

Name withheld by request

Dear Editor:

Is "love thy neighbor" out of style?

I hold a great respect for Westvaco and its many fine employees and depend upon both for a market for my small wood.

Their inability to meet the standards of our state laws on air pollution with the use of locally produced coal causes enough concern for me to sympathize and wish to help.

The suggestion that I petition for standards to be lowered is unacceptable to my conscience. In no way could I join any effort to dump more pollution on my neighbors and their families. It really seems so unmanly just to propose such a thing.

There must be another way!

Discuss Budget

services, is making an effort to include a realistic request for funds to cover the rising costs of utilities. Hamilton noted that the Garrett Community College request was very similar to last year's appeal, with very little increase. He applied the same statement to the Promotion Council's request, stating that their budget was "very much in line with what the commissioners had figured in their planning schedule."

The budget hearing of primary concern to many county residents was the Board of Education's request culminating a weekend of negotiations ending an impasse between the Board and instructional personnel.

Herbert Harman, president of the Board of Education, opened the budget hearing by presenting those in attendance with a Summary of Requested Expenditures and Revenues. He commented that the recent impasse had ended with a tentative salary and wage agreement for all employees in excess of the previously requested figure of $365,890. Harman stated, "Our employees are the lowest paid of any classification for the job they do in the state. It is absolutely essential that our employees receive at least this amount." The amount agreed upon is reported to be approximately a five percent increase. Harman was particularly concerned that the Board's financial position has necessitated a decrease in the maintenance budget, and commented that maintenance of the schools should be kept up. He also referred to the skyrocketing 50% and also expressed concern that under a new law which might pass, the Board would be responsible for $330,000 in Unemployment Compensation benefits.

The Capital Outlay section of the Board's requested budget includes a $75,000 allotment for monies used to purchase property for new school sites. Commissioner Hamilton stated that the Board had been requested previously to omit that request from their budget as the purchase of proposed school sites was the responsibility of the commissioners and was therefore included in their budget. He viewed the inclusion as a needless duplication.

Dr. William Buser, Superintendent of Schools said, "I think the Board of Education does a pretty good job of budgeting its funds. We will have a very difficult time maintaining a $55,000 balance to carry over until the next year."

Robert Yunker, Garrett County Teachers' Association president, addressed the commissioners, commending their past interest and concern in the county's educational system, but then he warned, "Sometimes when you keep too tight of a control (re: the school system), you kill the very thing you're trying to protect." Yunker also voiced public concern over cutbacks in educational and instructional aids, textbook shortages and a lack of field trips. He explained the plight of teachers trying to compensate for the deficiencies as best they can, and in regard to teacher salaries, he stated that many teachers have had to "moonlight" in order to meet the cost of living.

Tom Shaffer, MSTA-UNISERV representative for Allegany and Garrett Counties, explained that the newly-proposed five percent increase in teachers' salaries amounted to about five percent and he explained that the national cost of living index was up 6.8 percent. He stated that because Garrett County's instructional personnel are the state's lowest paid, their purchasing power and retirement benefits are seriously affected.

Commissioner Edwards contested the practice of comparing counties and their rankings in regard to how much each county allocated to educational budgets. He pointed out that for instance, a substantial portion of Garrett County's budget must be allocated to snow removal and that this exorbitant expense does not affect other counties as significantly. Wayne Hamilton explained that Garrett's education budget includes Garrett Community College, and is approximately 50%. Edwards gave the exact figure as 49.92%.

Shaffer continued with "We strongly believe our teachers need and deserve an increase in their salaries to meet the rising cost of living." He mentioned that Maryland's statewide averaging of county funding per student is over 50%, yet Garrett County is only funding 36%.

Jack Rickman, principal of Southern Middle School and spokesman for the Administrative and Supervisory personnel, read a statement asking that the school budget be funded as presented. The statement closed with, "If education is of high priority, and we believe it is, we believe the budget needs to be passed as is."

Mrs. Beitzel of the Supportive Services staff of the Board of Education attended the hearing, representing the secretaries, clerks, and accounting personnel. She commented that the salaries of these employees are some of the lowest in the county agencies of employees doing comparable jobs. "We would like to support the budget request," she added.

Mary Downton, secretary of the Parents' Advisory Council (PAC) of the Title I program, presented the Board and commissioners with several questions. Mrs. Downton was accompanied by David Miller, School Coordinator for Title I, Earl Lear, Title I chairperson of the PAC and Juanita Swauger, vice-chairperson of the PAC. Mrs. Downton expressed her concern as the parent of a child attending the Grantsville Elementary School, which is badly in need of repair. She also remarked that from personal experience, she knew that the school lacked textbooks which was having a detrimental effect on the students' grades. She also commented that she was anxious to see the breakdown of county revenues, to which Commissioner Hamilton replied that they were always readily available for public inspection.

David Miller, Title I staff member, affirmed that "our effectiveness is determined by what the state and county want to provide. In accountability, we are a lot closer to the state averages, providing some $400,000 in extra money to various services."

Barbara Morris, a parent who serves on several advisory boards in conjunction with the Board of Education, stressed the importance of quality education. She commented that, not in comparison with other counties, but in comparison within this county, the teachers' salaries did not fairly compare with that of other county employees. She felt that the county's taxpayers would gladly fund a quality education system and wondered what effect would be felt by the taxpayer if the entire request was funded.

Commissioner Edwards explained that it would mean a 44 cent increase on the tax rate and Commissioner Hamilton added that that was working from a tax base of 200 million dollars. Hamilton responded to Mrs. Morris with, "I would hope — and it would be wonderful for everyone, if the taxpayers were sincere about assuming the responsibility of funding education."

Marshall Rickert, County Administrator, added that if the tax base remained the same it would mean a 17% increase on property taxes to fund the requested education budget.

Dr. Jerry Ryscavage, Supervisor of Maintenance of the Board of Education, explained the new format of the Board's budget which now appears in five sections as dictated by the new state school board manual. The divisions are: Lay Board of Education, Executive Board of Education, Facilities Acquisition and Construction, Other Business Support Financing, and Centralized Support Financing.

Albert Ringer, Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction, estimated enrollment for the 1978-79 school year to be 5,773 students. He expressed his deep concern over materials funding stating that last year $59,000 was allocated for textbooks but that figure had to be cut to $45,000. The Board is now requesting $62,000 and he said that the cost of the textbooks have gone up 33% in the past two years.

Ringer also stated that the only funding for equipment during the past two years has come from Federal monies and he closed by stating most emphatically that "we are at the critical point in regards to equipment," expressing his hope that the Board's request of $68,000 for equipment would be met.

Commissioner Hamilton stated after the Board of Education's budget hearing, that they had "presented arbitrary figures for salaries, and from that point, we along with them are going to look at a lot of priorities — we'll see what they can kick out without impairing educational services to the children."

Sunday Auto Mishaps Injure Three Persons

Three persons were taken to hospitals following wrecks at opposite ends of the county Sunday morning.

The first, at 3:10 a.m., occurred on U. S. 48 near Friendsville. James D. Cox, with the Army at Ft. Hood, Texas, and his passenger, Roger Bittinger, Confluence, Pa., were taken to the Meyersdale Community Hospital by the Northern Rescue Squad. Cox was westbound on the National Freeway at a high rate of speed. He lost control of the vehicle which went onto the median strip and struck a guard rail. Tfc. R. B. Westmoreland charged him with negligent driving.

About three hours later, Robert Wayne Hinebaugh of E Street, Mt. Lake Park, failed to stop while traveling southbound on A Street at the intersection of Boiling Spring road in Deer Park. He went through the intersection and struck a house about 20 feet south of the intersection. A witness took Hinebaugh to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Tfc. L. R. Rosage investigated.

Lakers Beat Fairmont, Beaver And ACC-South In Weekend Games

The Lakers met hosts Fairmont State on the diamond Friday, losing the first game and running away with the second game with the help of pitcher, Mike Filosemi.

Filosemi took the second game with a brilliant display of fine pitching in the four-hitter. Fairmont took the first game 3-2 on an unearned run in the sixth inning but the Lakers retaliated by capturing the nightcap 8-2.

Fairmont scored the winning run in the first game on a sixth inning error after a third-strike pitch. Filosemi, in relief of Hillegas, pitched the final four innings, yielding one earned run, one walk and striking out six batters.

The Lakers outhit their opponents by a 6-2 margin.

Garrett returned in the second game for a five-run third inning and a three-run fifth as Filosemi held Fairmont to four safeties. He then scored an RBI triple in the third frame later scoring on a single by Bob Varner.

GCC freshman, Fred Griffin starred in a Saturday game, firing a one-hitter as the Lakers aced Beaver County (Pa.) Community College 4-0 for a split in Saturday's double-header, after dropping the first game 8-4 in 11 innings at McHenry.

The split moved the Lakers to a 14-4 overall record and 3-3 on the spring tally.

Griffin, the talented right hander from Sylvania, Ohio held the Titans to a double by Bud Virgin in the fourth. Griffin's teammates broke his scoreless duel against Carl Carlson with three runs in the fourth. Ron Kaufman and Bill McGarvey earned singles and Mike Filosemi doubled in the first run. Jim Whelan, a replacement for injured Terry Barkey, followed with a two-run single.

Garrett added a run in the sixth on a McGarvey single, moved to second on a based ball and scored on an error.

Bill Costo and Kaufman remained on the mound going into the 4-4 tied 11th inning.

Dennis Hulme gleaned a double off Kaufman to open the 11th for the Titans as Manny Manacio walked and Butch Kelly singled. A fielder's choice allowed Manacio to score and Costo and Hank Hachevera singled in the other runs. Beaver scored an additional four runs in the fourth inning.

Varner drove in three of the Lakers' runs with a sacrifice fly and a two-run single. Costo saw nine hits slip by, struck out three and walked one in going the full 11 innings. Kaufman bowed to Hillegas with one out in the 11th after allowing 13 hits and all eight runs.

In Sunday's success streak, Brett Hillegas earned the pitching win in both games and Garrett Community College took a total of 27 base hits on the way to an easy double-header victory over ACC-South Campus of Pittsburgh at McHenry.

Coach Fearnow's Lakers took the opening game 21 to 1 in a 21-hit performance that was halted after five innings because of the ten-run rule. They then stole the second game, 9-0 to run their season ledger to 16-4.

Hillegas pitched all five innings of the first game, yielding six hits and striking out two batters. He returned in the second game for four innings, surrendering two safeties, fanning two batters and walking one.

The Lakers' hitting star was Rex Walbolt who smacked three hits in each of the two games. Ron Kaufman collected three doubles and a single and John Galica and Terry Barkey had two hits apiece.

A. Keiles, Local Tennis Figure, Dies April 7

Alexander M. Keiles, 69, a prominent figure in Washington tennis circles for more than 25 years, died Friday, April 7, in Suburban Hospital after a heart attack. He lived on East-West Highway in Bethesda.

Keiles attended high school in Baltimore and graduated from Johns Hopkins University there. He helped found the Mountain Lake Tennis Tournament in the late 1920's.

Keiles had won more than 200 trophies in singles and doubles play, and taught at several clubs in the Washington area. He was the chief umpire in the first Washington Star International Tennis Tournament in 1969.

He had worked for a cosmetics firm for many years before becoming a salesman for the Bancroft Sporting Goods Co. in 1968. He was honored by the company as one of its top salesmen before retiring in 1976.

In addition to teaching at local clubs, Keiles gave tennis lessons at a private court in Rockville. He continued to play the sport as well, participating in a weekly doubles set with friends up to the day before he died.

He leaves his wife, Elsa Orlent Keiles.

Services were held Tuesday at 11 a.m., at Joseph Gawler's Sons Funeral Home, Bethesda, with burial in Parklawn Memorial Park in Rockville.

GCC Bowlers Head For Tournament

The National Collegiate Individual Match Games Championship Bowling will begin its 28th Annual Tournament this month. There are two important changes in this year's tournament. The first is that the tournament has been opened to community college teams, and the second is that Garrett Community College will be sending a team to compete.

Garrett's team will include Sam Simpson, Captain; Mike Prine, Co-Captain; Paul Prine, Karen Murphy, Barbara Riggins, Johnny Hershberger and Pete Brosnihan. The team will travel to the regional tournament in Philadelphia on April 15 and 16. Winners of the regional tournaments will be eligible to go to the finals in New York City.

Sending a team from Garrett evolved into a community project with the Student Government Association of GCC providing the funding for the trip. The college Bookstore made team shirts with the school name available to team members, and Par-Matt lanes in Oakland donated free practice time to team members prior to the tournament.

According to Sam "200" Simpson, the competition at Philadelphia will be stiff. "We'll be competing against teams from big universities throughout this region — teams with more experience. But what they're gonna need is more skill — not more experience. We intend to bring a trophy home to Garrett Community College."

Ladies Golf Association Schedules Meeting

The Ladies Golf Association will hold its first meeting Thursday, April 20 at the Oakland Country Club. There will be a business meeting at 9:30 a.m. followed by lunch at 11:30.

Reservations must be made by April 17 by calling the Country Club or Ruth Durst at 334-9171. All prospective members are urged to attend the meeting and luncheon.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO POTOMAC EDISON RESIDENTIAL CUSTOMERS

YOU CAN NOW DEFER PAYMENT OF HALF THE FUEL COST ON YOUR MARCH OR APRIL ELECTRIC BILL

You can defer payment of half the fuel cost on your March or April electric bill.

The Maryland Public Service Commission has directed PE to defer, upon request of residential customers, half the amount shown as "Fuel Cost" on March or April bills with repayment of the amount to be extended over a six-month period.

For example, if the FUEL COST on your March bill was $90, half of that amount ($45) can be deferred. With bimonthly billing, $15 (one-third of the $45) will be added to regular bills in May, July and September. If your March bill has already been paid in full, we will at your request, either credit your next bill or send to you a refund check for the deferred amount. No late payment charge or interest will be imposed on the deferred amount.

Just visit, call or write the Potomac Edison office serving your location and ask to be put on the deferred payment plan. It would be helpful if you could give Potomac Edison your account number when you request the plan.

A WORD ABOUT FUEL COSTS

Fuel costs on Potomac Edison bills in Maryland have been relatively higher and reflect the cost of electricity purchased by PE to supply its customers during the lengthy United Mine Workers strike.
Also the fuel cost on electric bills received since early March may appear relatively higher because ALL FUEL COSTS are now shown as a separate entry. Previously, a portion of the fuel cost was included in the base rate. With the March billing, the entire cost of fuel used by PE's own generators and the fuel related component of purchased power is shown in the item "FUEL COST" on your bill.

Holzshu Leaving GCC For W. Liberty

Coach Paul Holzshu announced his resignation this week to Garrett Community College officials as head basketball coach at GCC. Holzshu has accepted a coaching position with West Liberty College in West Virginia.

Holzshu commented that he leaves GCC with very mixed emotions. "We've had two winning seasons, good players and a lot of new talent that will be returning next year," he said. The GCC Lakers basketball team has scored an impressive record under the two-year directorship of Holzshu with a total of 36 wins and 18 defeats. The Lakers were also the winners of the Butler Invitational Tip-off Tournament, defending champions of the Garrett County Rotary Christmas Tournament and the Regional Playoffs at Cumberland during Holzshu's career with the school.

The coach commented that his new position at West Liberty will afford him excellent opportunities in that it is a four-year college, provides a new million dollar sports facility and is involved in the West Virginia segment of the NAIA Conference, which he regards as one of the best. Although he regrets leaving GCC, he explained that his new position will be a great opportunity and challenge for someone his age. Holzshu is 28 years old.

A successor to his position at GCC has not been named as yet, but the coach said, "I'm sure there will be a lot of quality people applying for the position."

GCC Lakers Top California, 10-0

Winding up the game with a six-run second inning, Garrett Community College charged to an easy 10-0 victory over the California, Pa., Jayvees yesterday at McHenry in a game called after six innings because of the ten-run rule.

The second game of the doubleheader was postponed in the second inning because of rain. The Lakers were ahead 2-0 when the game was halted.

Fred Griffin topped the mound for the Lakers in his second shutout in four days. He gave away only two hits, walked three and struck out one batter.

Rex Walbolt was the hitting star of the second inning when he batted a three-run homer, and McGory smacked a two-run double. Bill McGarvey struck a leadoff home run in the third inning as the Lakers mounted an eight run lead after three innings of play.

Montini took both of California's hits, both of them singles.

GCC, now 17-4 for the season, hosts Allegany CC of Cumberland in a 3 p.m. game tomorrow.

Byron Asks Congress For Several Changes In U.S. Tax Laws

WASHINGTON, (UPI) — Rep. Goodloe E. Byron, D-Md., said Monday he has asked Congress to make numerous changes in the nation's tax laws, including a $1,500 deduction for families caring for older relatives.

Byron testified before the House Ways and Means Committee that studies have shown it is more humane and cheaper to care for the elderly at home than in an institution.

"Certainly the care an individual will receive from his or her own family will be better than if they were living in an institution," he said.

"I think that as a nation, we should encourage families to take care of their own relatives . . . and our tax structure should reflect this priority."

Byron said he favored passage of a bill that would allow a $1,500 deduction for a household contributing more than half the cost of providing for an elderly person, and the bill "would be beneficial to all parties concerned."

"It is unrealistic to expect people to support themselves on Social Security alone," he said. "I have therefore introduced legislation that would provide that the first $5,000 of retirement income be tax exempt."

He also said he supported a bill that would increase existing tax credits for the elderly.

"This legislation would reduce the disparity in the tax treatment of senior citizens who do not receive tax free Social Security pensions and would reduce the need for periodic revisions of the tax credit for the elderly by indexing it to the cost of living," he said.

David was married in 1963 to Marilyn M. Means, formerly of Whittier, Calif. They now reside on Route 42 near Hoyes with their two children.

LaVerne Tripp, Happy Hour Singers, Song Revival Band To Perform Here

LaVerne Tripp, the Happy Hour Singers and the Song Revival Band will be in this area for a "Song Revival" Thursday, April 20, at 7:30 p.m. at Mt. Top Christian Assembly near Mt. Lake Park.

LaVerne, raised on a farm on the coast of North Carolina, began singing in churches when he was two and a half, and began singing professionally after finishing Bible School in Greenville, S. C. He sang with several parttime gospel groups before joining the Blue Ridge Quartet. In 1975, he left the quartet to enter into full time ministry.

In 1971, his song "I Know" was the number one song in gospel music for all twelve months of that year. His next two compositions replaced "I Know" in the number one spot, making three songs in a row to reach number one on the gospel music charts, a record that has never been borken. In 1973 he was named the number one lead singer among all gospel groups.

Everyone is invited to hear LaVerne Tripp, and there is no admission charge.

Missionaries To Speak At Loch Lynn

Rev. John Rudy

Mrs. Wilma Rudy

Mary Louise Barrows

Rev. R. C. Nilsen

Six foreign missionaries will be guest speakers at the Loch Lynn United Brethren Church Friday through Sunday, April 21-23.

Speaking will be Mr. and Mrs. John Snavely, South Africa; Mr. and Mrs. John Rudy, professors in European Bible Institute of Paris, France; R. C. Nilsen, missionary director, Nigeria; and Miss Mary Barrows, missionary appointee to the Philippine Islands.

The program will begin Friday evening at 7:30 with a panel discussion involving all missionaries, followed by a talk by Mr. and Mrs. Snavely concerning South Africa.

The Snavelys served with the Evangelical Alliance Mission in South Africa for 19 years until March 1977, when political conditions made it imperative that they leave. Mr. Snavely is a graduate of the Missionary Aviation Course of the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, and served as an ambulance airplane pilot for the Mosvold Mission Hospital in Zululand.

Mrs. Snavely is a graduate of the Shenandoah Conservatory of Music in Winchester. While in Africa, Mrs. Snavely taught music and English in the nurses' training school.

Both are natives of Pennsylvania. They have five children, three of whom are now in college in the United States.

A men's breakfast is scheduled Saturday at 7:30 a.m. Youth programs will be held beginning at 2 p.m. and a fellowship supper is planned at 6.

AT 7:15 p.m., Rev. Nilsen will show a film on Africa and add his commentary. He is the northeastern representative for the Sudan Interior Mission, joining that group in 1955 when he and his wife June went to Nigeria. He is a graduate of Barrington College, Rhode Island. As his wife is an R.N., they had the responsibility of a Leprosy Segregation Village, and also visited new areas of Nigeria. During their second term, they worked in the business department of the mission board.

They have two sons and a daughter.

Beginning at 8:05, Rev. and Mrs. John Rudy will speak about their duties as teachers at the European Bible Institute, where they have been working for the past seven years. In addition to their teaching duties, they direct the distribution of Gospel text posters throughout 17 French-speaking countries.

They have three sons, two of whom are students at Le Toruneau College in Longview, Texas. The Rudys are presently on furlough and are planning to return to France this July.

Events Sunday begin with Sunday School at 10 a.m. with the missionaries addressing the various classes. At the morning worship hour, Mary Barrows, appointee to the Philippines, will speak. A native of New York, she is presently residing in Laurel until she leaves for overseas duty. She is a graduate of Prairie Bible Institute, a missionary training school in Alberta, Canada. State Police Check Larcenies

Two recent larcenies have been investigated by the Maryland State Police, both in the Grantsville area.

Chains and binders were taken from truck beds parked on the property of Harbison-Walker Refractories at Jennings some time between March 31 and April 3. The items have a total value of $387. Tfc. R. B. Westmoreland investigated and no suspects have been named.

A man has been named a suspect in a grand larceny of a 30-30 rifle, the property of Kemp Miller, Jr., at the National Hotel, Grantsville. The accused man borrowed the rifle and failed to return it. The theft was reported March 23. It was said by a relative in the Grantsville area that the man left the area. There is no record as yet of the man being picked up. Tfc. C. D. Skidmore investigated the case.

A CAPTIVE AUDIENCE — Some of the cutest "jailbirds" we've ever seen were the Dennett Road Brownie Troop 180 on a visit to the Garrett County jail Monday. Troop leaders, Sheila Wharton and Rayetta Beitzel commented that the tour was initiated by the impending razing of the historic structure to make way for a new jail. Pictured are incarcerated troop members, left to right, front row, Susan Arnold, Raelene Wharton, Bonnie Ruston and Melanie Barr; second row, Rhonda Wharton, Angie Biser, Rachelle Wharton, Sherri Duncan, and Melody Kitzmiller; back row, Renee Wharton, Crystal Moore, Kathy Burns, Teresa Welch, Annette Duncan, and Lora Kitzmiller.

Sheriff Issues Department Report

Members of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department served 171 papers on criminal, civil, law, equity, and juvenile matters during March, according to Sheriff John Evans, Jr.

Over 130 complaints were answered, and 400 patrol checks were made for security purposes at businesses and homes.

Twenty-four arrests were made during the month, on such charges as assault and battery, forgery, shoplifting, breaking and entering and possession of marijuana.

One trip was made to Springfield State Hospital transporting a prisoner.

Nine prisoners were incarcerated at the beginning of the month, with 42 added. Forty-four were released, leaving seven incarcerated at the first of April.

A total of 17,000 miles were added to departmental vehicles in March.

Classroom Problems To Be Satellite Workshop Topics

Questions involving classroom discipline will be addressed on April 17 and 24 in two satellite-delivered workshops on "Teacher Values and Discipline" for junior and senior high school teachers.

Problems such as disruptions, defiance and cheating have become major areas that teachers deal with daily. Investigations have shown that the way a teacher handles his or her classroom can provoke or prevent discipline problems.

Each workshop will consist of a videotaped portion with specific incidents that the viewer must find a solution for and an interactive session with experts from the field answering questions.

The first workshop, entitled, "Problems in Discipline," will be presented Monday, April 17, from 5:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. Film segments will explore teacher values and attitudes as they relate to various discipline problems. These segments will present disciplinary encounters between students and teachers and asks for possible solutions.

The second workshop, "Dealing With Defiance," will be broadcast Monday, April 24, from 5:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. Various discipline situations portraying students defying their teachers will start the discussion. Panelists will ask viewers for possible solutions or ways to deal with discipline problems and answer questions from the field.

This area of children's behavior needs to be understood more clearly by both parents and teachers. All interested persons can contact Hilda M. Lee, Garrett Co. Bd. of Ed., 334-8121 to enroll in this program.

The Tri-State Cluster will charge a $5.00 registration fee for the two offerings "Problems in Discipline" and "Dealing with Defiance."

Participants not wishing to register for two sessions will be charged $3.00 per workshop.

State Legislators Declare "Peace," Complete 1978 General Assembly

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — The Maryland State House returned to a quiet existence, like a war zone when peace is declared, following Monday's finish of the 1978 General Assembly.

Legislators, during the hectic 90-session, passed major bills to provide property tax relief, utility rate control, an obscenity law, capital punishment, legalization of laetrile use, and other significant and controversial measures.

They also gave the governor a pay raise to $60,000 a year and awarded themselves a $6,000 annual increase to make a total of $18,500.

A major state employees' pension reform bill was defeated, as were bills that would have prohibited forced retirement at a certain age and would have raised the legal drinking age for beer and wine to 19 years.

Some of the major issues before the General Assembly were:

Tax Relief

A package of bills, proposed by legislative leaders, was passed providing about $100 million in property tax relief for homeowners.

The main bill extends the current elderly homeowner tax break program to all homeowners, while increasing the benefits for elderly property owners. Elderly homeowners will be eligible for up to $900 in property tax relief and other homeowners can receive up to $450 in tax breaks.

The package also includes reducing the assessment rate to 45 percent of a home's market value, putting a 15 percent cap on assessment increases, and $17 million in aid to local governments for police and Medicaid funding.

Another measure will increase the state's aid to local school districts by about $30 million in the hope that counties then will not have to raise taxes for education.

Income taxpayers also were given some help when the General Assembly passed bills to allow state income taxpayers to itemize deductions on the state returns even if they use the standard federal deduction and list as deductions costs for child care and support of children in college or vocational school.

Prison

Acting Gov. Blair Lee III won his fight to change the location of a state prison, originally planned at the old Continental Can Co. factory in East Baltimore, to Fort Armistead Park in South Baltimore.

The Senate waited out a nearly 11-hour filibuster before passing the House-approved bill and sending it to Lee for his signature.

Opponents of the bill, mainly South Baltimore and Anne Arundel County Legislators, decried the measure as a "political ploy" offered by Lee to offset criticism by East Baltimore residents in an election year.

Death Penalty

The Legislative Black Caucus also tried to stage a filibuster to stop passage of a capital punishment bill early in session, but were unsuccessful. The death penalty bill has been signed into law by Lee.

"When it (the death penalty) was used indiscriminately in the past, it was a deterrent and now the proponents say limited use would serve as a deterrent," Sen. Clarence Mitchell, D-Baltimore, said. "People committing murders do not think of the penalties."

The bill would allow juries to impose the death sentence for 10 types of first degree murder, including killing of a police officer, murder during a rape or robbery, and contract killing.

It provides a two-part system in which the jury first decides on guilt, then weighs aggravating and mitigating circumstances involved in the crime before deciding on the sentence.

Obscenity

The state also has a new obscenity law to replace one declared unconstitutional last year by the Court of Appeals.

The bill passed by the General Assembly and signed by Lee includes both employees and managers and owners of pornographic outlets, whether theaters or bookstores, as liable for prosecution under the state's obscenity standards.

In a related move, the legislature enacted a bill to make it illegal to use children under 16 years for commercial pornography, such as films or photographs.

Abortion

Maryland will continue to pay for therapeutic abortions for poor women under a section of the budget bill passed by the legislature.

Opponents said taxpayers who believe abortion is immoral should not have their tax dollars used to pay for the operations, while supporters said poor women should have the same right to abortion as women who can pay for abortions themselves.

The issue threatened to bog down passage of the state operating budget — essential to continue the state government's operation.

Budget

The cost of state government rose to $4.4 billion in this year's budget, compared to $3.9 billion last year.

Lee said the 11 percent increase "allows for the creation of significant new programs plus an expansion of a number of existing services." The major new programs are the tax relief measures.

Also included in the budget is money to raise the governor's salary from the current $25,000 a year to $60,000 and increase gubernatorial pensions to $20,000 a year.

Legislators also will receive a $6,000 raise to $18,500 a year by 1982. The raise was recommended by a select commission and went into effect without a General Assembly vote.

A bill was passed that could help cut government costs. It requires the elimination of 62 regulatory agencies by 1982 unless they can justify their continued existence.

Ethics

The General Assembly considered a measure to tighten the ethics code for public officials, although the final version passed was much weaker than the original bill.

It requires disclosure of income from outside sources only if the state official earns $25,000 a year from the state and his outside income is derived from a firm that does business with the state. Officials still will be able to accept food and drinks from lobbyists, but cannot accept outright gifts worth more than $75.

Also passed were three bills to bring Maryland's extortion, bribery and anti-kickback laws relating to public officials in line with the tougher federal laws.

Energy

The legislature helped utility customers by enacting a bill to prohibit utilities from passing on fuel cost increases to customers automatically.

Under the bill, sponsored by Lee and Western Maryland lawmakers, utilities will have to receive prior Public Service Commission approval before passing on increased fuel costs. Fuel rate adjustments of less than 5 percent a month will have to be absorbed by the companies.

The General Assembly also passed a resolution calling on President Carter to declare Western Maryland a federal disaster area so residents, faced with soaring utility bills due to the coal strike, could qualify for federal financial aid.

Utilities and industries will be able to burn lower-grade coal and oil, which cause more pollution, under another bill.

A bill also passed to promote energy conservation by rewarding apartment dwellers who use less energy with lower bills.

Most apartment buildings now have one electricity meter and the total bill is divided evenly among the tenants. The legislation allows individual billing so high energy consumers will have higher bills, possibly causing them to reduce energy use.

Divorce

The state's laws concerning division of property in divorce settlements may be changed to allow a more equitable distribution of property.

Under the measure, a judge will decide how much of the property, excluding inheritances and the family home, each spouse deserves, regardless of whose name is on the title to the property.

Health

Cancer patients won their fight to legalize laetrile use in Maryland.

Doctors now will be able to prescribe the substance derived from apricot kernels with the informed consent of their patients.

And elderly people who need prescription drugs will be able to buy them for $1, with the state paying the rest, if their income is no more than $1,000 above the Medicaid eligibility levels.

The legislature raised Medicaid eligibility levels to $2,300 a year for a single person.

Elderly people also were given some help through a bill establishing a study commission on whether mandatory retirement ages should continue in private and public employment.

Miller's Market Changes Ownership

Miller's Market officially changed ownership effective last week, when William E. (Bill) Naylor retired after a 47-year career at that market.

New owner George S. (Teener) Stewart says he plans no changes in services or hours, at least in the foreseeable future.

Bill Naylor began his vocation at the market with part-time employment in 1931. He began full-time employment upon his graduation from Oakland High School in 1933, while the store was the propery of Harry L. Miller.

He became part-owner of the store in 1942, upon the death of Mr. Miller. His partner, Earl W. Shartzer, helped with the store until his death in 1962. Mr. Naylor operated the store in partnership with Danny Benson from 1962 until 1965, when the partnership was dissolved and Mr. Naylor was on his own until his retirement.

In 1963 they completely remodeled the store, doubling the grocery display space and installing all new equipment.

Mr. Naylor is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Naylor. He was married in 1937 to Lois Ross, who died in January 1977. They have one son, William Naylor, Jr. He is now married to Marianna Sears, and they live on Green Street in Oakland.

George Stewart also has many years in the grocery business, beginning at the A&P store in Oakland in 1937 as a part time clerk. He worked until March 1941 when he enlisted for a three-year tour of duty with the Air Force, spending most of his time in the European theatre.

While he was gone the A&P building on Alder Street burned. The store was relocated between what is now Oakview Motors and what was the Green Palm Restaurant on Oak Street, then later was moved into the Nixie Davis property until a new building was constructed at Third and Oak.

When the A&P moved from Oakland, Mr. Stewart worked several years at the Parsons store until transferring to the Kingwood A&P where he was head cashier. He accepted partial retirement from the company after 40 years of service.

A native of Vindex, he is a son of the late Harrison B. and Sylvia (Shirley) Stewart. The family moved to Oakland in 1928 and Mr. Stewart has lived here ever since.

He and his wife, the former Jennie M. (Uphold) Stewart, were married in 1937. They have one son, Bradley, who owns and operates Stewart Funeral Home in Oakland.

Miller's Market now has eight full-time and four part-time employes.

For Mr. Naylor, who has been at Miller's ever since a Model A Ford pickup was used in deliveries, the most-asked question is "What are you going to do now?" His answer is well rehearsed — garden, play golf, travel whenever possible, fish, hunt, read, and loaf a little. He also hopes to spend at least part of each winter in warmer climes.

It's a sure thing, though, that with his feelings about the business and his gregarious enjoyment of human company, he will still be spending time at Miller's Market, his "home away from home." That idea is warmly applauded by Mr. Stewart, who welcomes his help and advice.

North Star Girls Plan Swim Party

Members of the North Star Girls' 4-H Club met Tuesday, April 4 at the home of Christy Fratz, making plans for a swimming party at the Wisp April 28. Members will meet at Zion Lutheran Church at 6 p.m.

In the absence of the president, vice president and secretary, Diane Bowser conducted the meeting.

A demonstration workshop will be held April 15 at the Accident fire hall at 10 a.m. All younger members are urged to attend.

Vivian Richter reported on the county Public Speaking contest. Amy Margroff was the junior champion. Other participants were Hilda Kolb, Christy Fratz, Sherri Golden, Vivian Richter and Jill Margroff.

Tammy Schutte was accepted as a member.

The next meeting will be held May 2 at the home of Vivian Richter.

Deputies Respond To Drug, Other Cases Last Week

Members of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department were called to a home in Mt. Lake Park by members of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad last Wednesday to help in a drug overdose case.

Deputies Don Tucker and Van Evans arrived at the home and, after a scuffle with the victim, Larry Keith James, managed to take away a rifle and then escort the man to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

James was later transferred to Sacred Heart Hospital in Cumberland for treatment, and was released Tuesday.

Deputies were also called to an incident at Heck's parking lot April 7 around noon, after Stanley Dragovich, Jr., of Davis, W. Va., had been struck by a car. The child was taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of bruises and a bump on his head. Although the boy's mother identified the driver of the car involved, no charges have yet been made.

Robert Paugh, Glendale Road, reported that someone had damaged his car at approximately midnight April 4. In his report to the sheriff's office, he related that someone had thrown a rock at his Cadillac, denting the trunk lid and bouncing into the rear window, shattering the window. Loss value was set at $150.

Ronald Reinerth, Bethel Park, Pa., reported on the 9th that someone had taken a fishing boat from a dock in the Harvey's Peninsula area. The boat had a 5½ h.p. motor.

Juvenile Cases Show Decline In 1977

For the first time in a decade, the number of juvenile cases referred to state authorities for treatment has declined, according to new figures from the Juvenile Services Administration for Maryland.

The statistics show a 12.7 percent drop in the number of cases referred during 1977. The decline appears to reverse a pattern of increased youth crime that has averaged more than 20 percent yearly during the past decade.

The report stated that in Baltimore, where most of the state's juvenile offenses occur, 6,000 fewer cases were referred for treatment during the past year.

For the state as a whole, the report shows 7,300 fewer cases from the preceding year.

Assault is the most common offense handled by Juvenile Services, with burglary coming in second. In 1977 the report showed 50,702 cases were referred to the Juvenile agency. Baltimore accounted for more than a third of the referrals.

In November in Garrett County, there were 19 juvenile cases reported, 18 formal cases involving males, and one informal case concerning a male. There were 4,057 cases reported statewide during November.

Of the 18 formal cases, five were committed to training school, eight were placed on probation, three cases were dismissed or warned, or the petition withdrawn, and two other cases with no disposition listed.

Garrett had 14 cases in November 1976, compared with 19 in 1977.

At the end of November, there were 13 children from Garrett County in training schools, ten in Montrose School, three in Maryland Training School for Boys, three in forestry camps and three in detention centers.

Editor's Note:

Due to a breakdown this morning in this region's United Press International wire service, there will be no national news.

Fifteen Attend HUD Meeting To Request Funds

Fifteen representatives of various communities and organizations were present for a Housing and Urban Development block grant hearing Monday during the Commissioners' meeting.

The commissioners, who are beginning to assemble a project package for community and economic development grants next year, pointed out that grants will be oriented toward capital improvement projects.

Representatives from the hospital and community college requested funds for removal of architectural barriers to the elderly and handicapped.

Solid Waste department requested a new bulldozer for the landfill. The Development Corporation and representatives from Kitzmiller and Gorman requested funding for the local share of water systems for the two communities.

Members of the Oakland and Grantsville volunteer fire departments requested funds to purchase fire vehicles equipped with foam to fight electrical fires. A representative from Crellin asked assistance in developing a playground site in that community.

Brad Rinard and David Koontz, from the Community Action Adult Activities Center, asked the commissioners to contribute to the local share needed to purchase a van to transport the handicapped.

The Activities Center has raised $1,000 through projects, and the commissioners agreed to contribute $1,800, which will make up the total local share needed for the specially-equipped van.

The Board unanimously voted to appoint Hoover Myers, George Bishoff, Claude Wagner, Jr. and Carolyn Ganoe to the Agricultural Land Preservation Advisory Board.

The Commissioners had previously appointed Robert O. Glotfelty to the Advisory Board, representing the planning commission.

Tim Dugan and Tom Jones discussed with the commissioners priorities for the project package to be submitted to Tri-County Council for consideration.

The Commissioners proclaimed the week of April 16 to 22 Garrett County Volunteer Week, at the request of the Maryland Service Corps.

Brush Fires Keep Firefighters Busy Monday Afternoon

Brush fires were appearing all over the county Monday afternoon, with Oakland firefighters on three calls, and Deer Park, Grantsville and Accident each on one.

The culprit responsible for most of the fires was a train which passed through the county at approximately 1:45 p.m., Monday.

The Oakland Fire Department was called to extinguish several brush fires along the railroad tracks just west of town. Moments later, they were called to another brush fire along the tracks near Weber's Florists, off U. S. Route 219 S. A second Oakland crew was then summoned to extinguish still another brush fire near Loch Lynn.

There was little damage resulting from the fires which burned a total of less than one acre.

Oakland firefighters were dismissed at 3 p.m.

Deer Park volunteers responded to a fire about 3:05 south of the B&O tracks about one mile east of Deer Park, at the Helbig Dam.

Approximately one-quarter acre of brush was burned by the fire, which was brought under control in one hour by eight men responding with two pieces of the company's firefighting equipment.

Grantsville firefighters were called out Saturday afternoon to extinguish a grass fire off Rt. 495 just south of Grantsville.

Temperatures, Precipitation Above Normal

After some time, both temperatures and precipitation averaged above normal for the past week. Summertime readings were noted Monday when the mercury hit 77 degrees.

Last Wednesday began overcast and misty. By afternoon skies became mostly clear. Thursday skies were cloudy with a thunder storm in the morning and showers continuing the rest of the day. Showers continued into Friday morning but again becoming mostly clear in the afternoon. Saturday was mostly cloudy with fresh breezes blowing. Sunday skies were clear but becoming cloudy later in the day. Monday was mostly cloudy but mild. Tuesday was mostly cloudy until afternoon when skies became overcast yielding wind-blown rain. By evening skies began to clear but with gusty winds continuing. This morning it was sunny with fresh breezes blowing. Precipitation totaled 1.2 inches for the week, just slightly above normal for a week in April.

Temperatures for the week averaged 2.2 degrees above normal. Highs averaged 62.9 degrees or 2.5 above normal. Monday's high of 77 degrees was followed close by yesterday's 72 degrees which dropped as the cold front went through. During the rain and wind storm the mercury dived into the 40s. The coolest day was last Thursday with a high of only 48 degrees. Lows averaged 36 degrees or 2 above normal. The lowest was Sunday with 22 degrees. It was 29 last Thursday morning and 39 this morning.

Only small patches of snow remain in places where deep drifts occurred mostly over the northeasterly sides of cliffs.

An exuberant four-year-old, Dennie Rodeheaver tosses a balloon during pre-school play activities held at the GCC gymnasium last Friday. The children were involved in a variety of motor activities as part of the "Week of the Young Child" program that included jumping, running, hopping, walking through hoops, kicking an Indian ball, bouncing playground balls, fishing indoors and various other gross motor skills.

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

"NICK-OF-TIME"

Lesson for April 16, 1978

Background Scripture: Acts 6:1 through 8:3
Devotional Reading: Matthew 10:24-33

In one of those innumberable western films there is a scene in which a man in a party of settlers beseiged by Indians is discovered praying on his knees. "I didn't know you was a God-fearin' man," exclaims his friend.

Rev. Althouse

Looking up, the praying man says: "Let me tell you, I believe in two things and two things only: God and the United States Cavalry."

Stiff-necked people

I think there has often been a tendency to get these two forces confused. Some people have acted as if God and the U.S. Cavalry were pretty much the same thing, both of them expected always to arrive "just in the nick-of-time."

The problem is that God does not always operate that way and nowhere is this more evident than in the story of Stephen's martyrdom in Acts 6-8. If Stephen assumed that he could depend upon God to keep him from the hands of his enemies, he was mistaken.

He had good reason to be concerned. We all know, of course, that it was Stephen's sermon to the high priest that put his life in danger. What we tend to forget is that this sermon was dynamite, just about guaranteed to make the Jewish officials enraged.

So that his listeners could get "the big picture," Stephen recounted briefly the whole history of the Hebrew people, eventually tying in Jesus to this religious heritage. That was bad enough, but what followed was like putting a match to a powder-keg.

"You stiff-necked people, uncircumcised in heart and ears, you always resist the Holy Spirit. As your fathers did, so do you. Which of the prophets did not your fathers persecute. And they killed those who announced beforehand the coming of the Righteous One, whom you have now betrayed and murdered, you who received the law as delivered by angels and did not keep it." (7:51-53)

They stopped their ears

Wow! No wonder "they were enraged and they ground their teeth against him." They rushed him out of the city and prepared to stone him to death. Now was the time for God and the U.S. Cavalry!

The Cavalry, however, did not come and Stephen died at their hands that day. There was no rescue "in the nick-of-time."

But what of God? Did he get there "in the nick-of-time"?

Luke tells us that God did not have to get there in that final moment of extremity. He was there with Stephen from the very beginning. If he had not been there, there would have been no sermon for it was God who inspired him that day. Stephen knew this, for when it was evident that they would kill him, he "gazed into heaven and saw the glory of God" (8:56). God did not have to "arrive" to spirit him away. He was there from the beginning with his apostle and he would be there through the end...and beyond!

Project Child Find Discovers 1,400 Handicapped Children

Over 1,400 handicapped Maryland children have been discovered since last September who are not receiving an education.

With "Project Child Find," a continuing awareness effort, the State Department of Education and all 24 local school systems started last fall looking for those individuals, from birth through age 21, who may have physical, emotional, or learning problems and are not in school.

"Most of the children we have found so far are preschoolers," said Dr. Linda Jacobs, assistant state superintendent for special education, "but that fact doesn't for a minute reduce our interest in them." Jacobs explained that 13 of the state's school systems already have some federally funded preschool programs for handicapped children and several have locally funded programs.

"In addition," says Dr. Jacobs, "the law requires that by July 1, 1980 all school systems have free, appropriate programs not only for three- and four-year-old handicapped children but also all handicapped through age 20. Those over 20 who are uncovered by Child Find will be referred to other public agencies for help.

Dr. Jacobs says school officials have no idea how many more children remain undiscovered. The program is continuing, she said, because the data collected is necessary to plan the number and kinds of educational programs needed, and because such a campaign is required under the Federal Education of All Handicapped Children Act.

Local school systems report the following results to date in their "Child Find" efforts: Allegany —100; Anne Arundel—91; Baltimore City—461; Baltimore County—76; Calvert—6; Caroline—21; Carroll—21; Cecil—1; Charles—32; Dorchester—5; Frederick—40; Garrett—189; Harford—in process; Howard—6; Kent—1; Montgomery—in process; Prince George's—365; Queen Anne's—2; St. Mary's—in process; Somerset—2; Talbot—5; Washington—1; Wicomico—1; Worcester—0.

THE ARTS

by jim willis

The Royal Ballet of Flanders performed Friday evening in the Fort Hill High School Auditorium, the third in the Tri-State Community Concert Association's schedule of four events in their 19th season.

Under the patronage of Queen Fabriola of Belgium, the troupe is making a coast-to-coast performing tour of America this year.

Jeanne Brabants found the Royal Ballet in 1969 after having convinced Professor Frans Van Mechelen, the minister of Dutch culture, of the need for an autonomous ballet company. In 1976 she received the Fuga award from the Society of Belgian Composers for her use of music by Belgian composers in her ballets.

The program was scheduled to begin with Cantos Firmus by Johann Sebastian Bach, but due to illness, several replacement dancers were used that evening and the troupe performed a series of entrechantes and a pas de deux finale. It was all very well done and an elderly gentleman sitting next to me had tears in his eyes and said, "that was the most beautiful thing I have ever seen." C'est magnifique!

Closing out the conert was "Grand Hotel" with music by Sir Charles Chaplin. The sequences were entitled, "staff and guests", "the ballerina of the Ballet Russe and her impressario," "Mae West and her boys", "just married," "the Dolly sisters," "Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks," "Jackie Coogan," "Rudolf Valentino," "Hotel burglars," "the chase" and finale.

Judge Hears Four Juvenile Cases

Four juvenile cases were heard by Judge Fred A. Thayer last Wednesday. One case involved a mother and daughter. One youth was fined in a grand larceny case.

A 16-year-old male was found to be delinquent by reason of grand larceny at the Wisp Ski area. He was placed on probation under the supervision of Juvenile Services for an undetermined period and to pay a fine of $50.

A mother was charged with causing her daughter to be in need of supervision, but was found not to be so. The child had been charged with being in need of supervision by reason of truancy, but was found not to be so.

A 14-year-old female was found to be in need of supervision by being ungovernable and beyond control of school officials at Southern High School. She was sent to the Maryland Children's Center for 21 days for disposition.

A 16-year-old male had been charged with being delinquent because of destruction of property, but the case was dismissed.

Emergency Medical Training Grant Is Approved By DOT

The Maryland Department of Transportation has approved a $75,000 grant for emergency medical training by the Maryland Fire and Rescue Institute, to help relieve the shortage of certified emergency medical technicians and ambulance personnel (EMT/As).

As new ambulance companies and rescue squads are formed, Maryland continues to lose 15% of its EMT/As through attrition.

The University of Maryland's Fire and Rescue Institute will use the grant to expand its training program upgrading the skills of previously certified EMT/As and to help alleviate the shortage. Another objective of the program is to improve the level of emergency medical knowledge and teaching skill of current EMT/A Instructors.

EMT/As are usually the first medically trained personnel to reach a highway accident victim. They are trained to stabilize the patient's condition and to decrease any injury complication caused by moving the victim to the hospital. The Md. DOT grant and funds from other sources will enable the institute to continue courses that would otherwise be suspended or cancelled.

Bill To Elect PSC Referred To Study Commission

Delegate William B. Byrnes, (Chairman, Allegany County Delegation), announced this week that House Bill 1907, which provided for the election of the Public Service Commission (PSC), was heard before the House Constitution and Administrative Law Committee and was referred to a Study Committee, whose report on the bill will be heard sometime this summer.

Delegate Byrnes said that he was encouraged to introduce the legislation in the wake of "many, many letters and telephone calls from irate citizens over their utility bills. It is time the PSC answered directly to the consumers of the State," said the Delegate.

Byrnes bill also provides for increasing the number of members of the PSC from five to eight, with one member to represent each of the eight Congressional districts in the state. "I believe this arrangement would give a more equitable distribution on the PSC, and I am hopeful the Study Commission will recommend that this be done," said Delegate Byrnes.

Continuing, Byrnes said, "all the big utility companies came out to testify against my bill. This makes me more confident than ever that I am on the right track!"

Maryland Businesses Want Reductions In State Paperwork

A statewide poll conducted recently by the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) indicates that a large majority of Maryland small business people favor a reduction of the state paperwork required of businesses.

NFIB is the largest small business organization in the country with more than 520,000 members nationwide, including 4,000 in the State of Maryland.

Ninety-seven percent of the Maryland NFIB members responding to the poll said the state should take steps to reduce the paperwork required of businesses by state agencies and departments.

Ninety percent of the respondents also favored establishing a state sunset law, providing for the automatic termination of government agencies and programs unless specifically continued by the legislature.

In other results of the NFIB poll, 84 percent of the small business people said they favored exempting teenagers and part-time employees from the minimum wage law.

Ninety percent of the respondents said they opposed legislation which would mandate payment of the prevailing wage (generally the highest union wage paid in a particular geographic area) for public works projects which are jointly funded by municipalities and the state. Five percent said they favored the legislation and five percent gave no opinion.

Eighty-five percent of the respondents said they favored mandatory teaching about the free enterprise system in all Maryland public schools. Eight percent were opposed and seven percent were undecided.

About half of the respondents said they carried product liability insurance, and 82 percent of that number said their liability insurance premium have increased significantly.

The hostess demonstrated the differences in size between the several brands of patterns in which garments of similar construction may fit very differently because of the varying amounts of wearing ease allowed.

The meeting concluded with the singing of the National Extension Homemakers song, "Onward, Ever Onward" and the reading of the club collect. The hostess served refreshments before the meeting to the following in addition to those above named: Lectie Bonner, Ruth Teets, Mildred Wilt, Mergil Fike, Avenell Roth, Nicole Teets and Emily Lewis.

Delicate As Spring's Flowering. . .

Strips Of Paper Can Be Used To Create Any Design In Quilling Art

Dainty traceries of paper in varying shapes and sizes can be combined in infinite ways to make any design imaginable. Snowflakes are a particularly good example of the intricate mosaic effect of quilling.

By Carol Canan

Quilling may at first glance appear to be a funny word to describe paper circles of rainbow hues which can be used in limitless ways in the creation of objets d'art for all seasons and all time.

The seemingly delicate curls of paper remind Marcette Danner, art teacher at Southern Middle School and a self-taught master of the quilling art, of the spirals and other curves occurring so often in nature. Throughout the world and the centuries, spirals have been recreated by artists in paintings, etchings, carvings, and precious metals.

Over the centuries, spiral-inspired designs developed into the ornate intricacy called filigree, and Miss Danner says that quillwork, the art of "paper filigree," was a paper imitation of the precious metal filigree. Quilling was first used in the thirteenth century by Italian and French nuns in creating exquisite designs to decorate religious artifacts and the walls of churches. Later it was fashionable for the ladies of the 17th and 18th centuries to create beautiful and delicate edgings on folding screens, firescreens, mirrors, boxes, jewelry, and even pieces of furniture.

Quillwork was brought to America by the English and was very popular during the 18th century, with many American schoolgirls learning quilling as part of their education. Unfortunately, the popularity of quilling died out soon after the beginning of the 19th century, and was only briefly revived during the Victorian era despite the fact that American quilling had developed its own distinctive vitality with the introduction of floral designs.

According to Miss Danner, quilling is basically the curling of a narrow strip of paper around a thin shaft, then gluing the scroll or spiral edge to a background. Other examples of the art are free standing or can hang as ornaments.

Since a bird feather (quill) without the feathering was used as the first shaft, the craft of "rolled paperwork" was soon called quilling.

Although Miss Danner notes that the methods used in forming various designs have not changed over the centuries, today's modern methods make the craft a little easier. Strips of paper any color imaginable are precut to a standard size, one-eighth inch by 22 inches. A small metal tool with a notch in the top has replaced the bird quills.

However, the need for manual deftness has remained constant. Quillwork demands a steady pressure when rolling the strips or the strip will be too tight, or unwind like a spring. With practice comes the ability to cut the paper to the exact shorter lengths needed to form the various spirals, depending on the size and shape desired.

Miss Danner is self-taught, and picked up the challenge only two years ago. She first had planned to use quilling to create gifts for family and for close friends, but was so overwhelmed with other orders that she is now supplying the Christmas Shop on Route 40, the Appalachian Shop and Penn Alps with examples of her work.

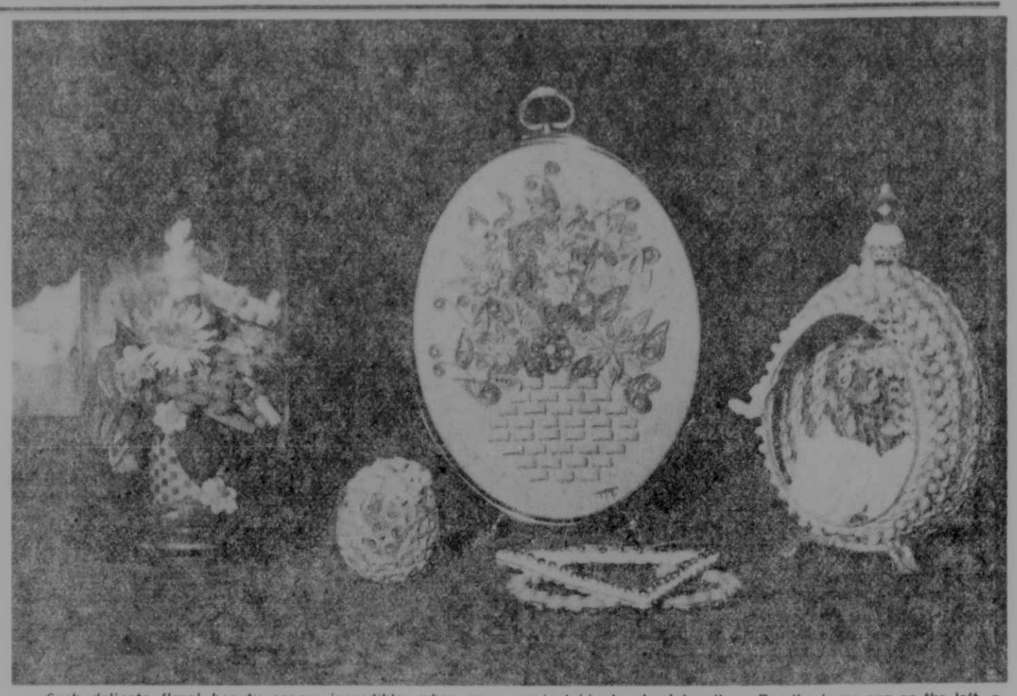
Her patience with the craft, learning just how to glue so no Elmer's shows, where and how to add decorative touches such as beads, pearls, ribbons, leaves and stems, has provided more than monetary compensation. Actually, considering the time involved, quilling makes a great hobby but a very poor way of earning a living.

Through practice, her work has gained a third dimension, with many of the figures having recognizable facial features and expressions. The figures can either be reversible, or with distinctive front and back appearances.

By using a wood plaque, a glass or plastic dome, or nearly any other medium, the choices are unlimited. Improbable or lifelike flowers from mums to glads can come from the quilling tool, and youngsters at the school are learning to master the craft with enjoyable ease.

Miss Danner is the younger daughter of Rev. L. F. Danner of Mt. Lake Park, and the late Mrs. Danner. She has a triple major in religion, art and art education from Augustana College, Rock Island, Ill., with a minor in voice. She moved here with her father in 1969, when her father was transferred here to serve the Bittinger Lutheran parish. He has now retired.

Miss Danner began teaching here in 1969 as the traveling art teacher, serving five schools and 1,200 students at Loch Lynn, Red House, Bloomington, Kitzmiller, and Dennett Road. After two years in that position, she transferred to Southern High School, where she worked for five years before moving to Southern Middle.



In addition to handicrafts of all types, including macrame, she enjoys playing the piano and the organ, and loves raising flowers to produce cut flowers to decorate her home. She sews all her clothes and enjoys singing as lyric soprano whenever she has the opportunity.

From somewhere in her Swedish-German legacy comes the love of a challenge. Quilling presented just such a challenge, as did learning other crafts as painting floral miniatures on jewelry, work so exacting she uses a magnifying glass.

She also notes that although she comes from a family of "readers," she has never desired simply to sit and read. Dislike for inactivity has lead her to create such challenges as a large Lincoln Head penny, front and back, for a nephew; and a piano complete with wire and hammers — all from the simple round or elongated circles of papers in differing colors.

Creche scenes, floral arrangements, Easter or Christmas novelties, her array of accomplishments is vast and her ideas for future creations even more vast. One of her Christmas ornaments appeared in the December 1977 issue of Decorating and Craft Ideas magazine, a favorite browsing place for new ideas.

As long as people like Marcette Danner continue to search out and revive "lost" crafts, our entire culture will be enhanced, because people like her would rather do than be, would rather create than merely enjoy someone else's creation.

Such delicate floral beauty seems incredible, when you think that it is all made from rolled strips of multi-colored papers, glued together to form the desired object. The Easter eggs are also made entirely of tiny rolled strips of paper, painstakingly glued together. For the large egg on the left, a gift for her father, who is a retired minister, Miss Danner added a miniature Bible.

Christmas time provides an opportunity to create many seasonal designs in quilling, as depicted above. From snowflakes to Santa's face, wreaths to fireplaces, the rounded scrolls can be used in infinite ways to make ornaments for the tree, wall or table. With the addition of a $1 cutting board, some velvet and felt, Santa strolls along bearing gifts, another tribute to the imagination of creator Marcette Danner.

by jim willis

Losing a pet to terminal illness or accidental death has as great an impact on most pet owners as losing a relative — after all, pets are a part of the family.

Because I work seven days a week and didn't have much time to spend with my dog, I placed "Shasta" with a family I thought would love and care for her. I was sure "Shasta" would be very happy living in the country with children and other dogs to play with. Instead I found her at the local animal shelter, three weeks later, and after bringing her home, discovered she was very ill.

The vet saw her numerous times and when all of the medications failed to have any affect, we both decided it would be more humane to put her to sleep. . . so I lost "Shasta" last Wednesday evening.

"Shasta" was the first dog I've ever had (she was only a year old) and the constant reminders of her presence, cause a lump in my throat. However, we must remember that as adults we find it much easier to cope with the loss than a child would.

Children and pets are a great combination, but when an animal becomes very ill and you must make a decision to euthenize, it can be very hard on the children.

It's best to be honest. Children often understand more than we give them credit for. Explain to your child that the pet is very ill and cannot get better. Tell the child that the pet will be going to "heaven" soon, where he will be very happy — much happier than he would be being sick. Be very understanding and compassionate, then quietly arrange for the pet's euthanasia without the children's knowlege of when it will be. The child will understandably grieve for his pet and every attempt to take his (and your) mind off the death should be attempted.

The pet should only be replaced if you've always felt you would have another dog or cat. Immediately getting a new puppy or kitten, just to ease the child's mind is not always advisable — especially if you don't expect to be happy with another pet.

Before replacing any animal that's died of a viral infection it is always best to check with your veterinarian. In this instance you may have to wait up to three months to alllow the virus to "die" in your house, thus preventing the infection of a new animal.

If the pet should die an accidental death, i.e. being hit by a car, take every precaution for preventing the child from seeing the animal. Arrange for proper disposal of the body as quickly as possible.

The accidental death of a pet can hurt a young child severely, especially if it was indirectly caused by the child's negligence (i.e. letting the dog outside unattended). Never berate the young child on his irresponsibility and "blame" him for the pet's death. This could cause significant guilt feelings that most children can't deal with. It is best to be compassionate, share the child's grief, and then take a "these things happen" attitude. If you feel the child was at fault, it may be better to wait until the child is older and more responsible before replacing the pet.

Hopefully, you won't have to deal with the loss of a pet for a long time. Good care, veterinary checkups and a loving home will allow your pet to lead a happy, normal life for many years to come.

Tax Assistance To Be Offered Right Up To Deadline

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced this week that his office expects approximately 500,000 State income tax returns to be filed at or near the April 17 deadline this year. The Comptroller noted that all 11 offices of the State Income Tax Division will be offering extra hours of taxpayer assistance right up until the deadline.

"All permanent offices of the State Income Tax Division will be open on Saturday, April 15 from 9:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m. In addition, our offices will be open at 8:30 a.m. on Monday, April 17, and remain open until 9:00 p.m. to aid last minute tax filers," Mr. Goldstein said.

The State tax offices will answer taxpayer questions by telephone and will complete Maryland income tax returns free of charge for taxpayers who come to the offices with completed copies of their Federal tax return and all W-2 statements.

"Last minute filers often make mistakes in figuring their returns, so be sure to check your arithmetic and be sure to attach all W-2 forms to your return," Comptroller Goldstein said. "And be very careful to put the Federal and Maryland returns in the proper envelopes."

Those last minute filers who will receive refund checks will find a six to eight week wait necessary before their check reaches them.

WVU Pain Clinic Growing Fast, Treated 337 Cases Last Year

MORGANTOWN, W. VA. (UPI) — West Virginia University's pain clinic has become one of the faster-growing services the university offers.

Specializing in treating hard-to-heal aches, the clinic treated 337 patients last year and if the current rate holds up, at least 550 people are expected to seek relief at the clinic this year.

Clinic director Robert Bettinger, an associate professor of anesthesiology in the WVU School of Medicine, considers the facility a "court of last resort" for people with pains that have lasted from six months to a year.

Half of the clinic's work involves backaches. Among others are pain from cancer, shingles, surgical incisions and accidents. Recurring headaches are sent to the neurology service of WVU.

"What we try to do is to go back to the very beginning of the problem and to sort out from a little broader view what has been happening," Bettinger said.

"We take a multi-disciplinary approach in evaluating patients for various modes of therapy because many of these patients require more than one type of treatment."

The clinic uses a nerve stimulator, slightly bigger than a hearing aid, to send impulses through the skin to the pain site in one treatment. Acupuncture also has been used with success.

Psychological therapy and anti-depressant medication and tranquilizers also are part of the weapons the WVU staff uses against pain.

Failing all these treatments, the staff may resort to surgical or chemical destruction of the spinal nerves that convey the pain impulses.

"Therapy to kill the pain is only half the story," said Bettinger. "The other part is rehabilitation. Most chronic pain patients have mood changes and irritability and are depressed.

"This, too, has to be treated if the patient is to be relieved to any appreciable extent."

Bettinger doesn't believe that many people with imaginary pains seek help at the pain clinic.

"We do, however, see people who on a subconscious level can't afford to get rid of pain because they're on disability or have litigation pending because of injuries such as whiplash.

"Here, we have to sort out things. We have to know what this person was like before the injury."

Dr. Richard Knapp, professor and chairman of anesthesiology, said physicians take an unhurried approach, spending as much as 90 minutes or two hours interviewing a patient in his initial visit.

Knapp said one large boost in the treatment of the patient is the mental one that comes in the belief that he has discovered a physician who cares about his troubles.

"One of the things I hear over and over again from the patients is, 'All of a sudden I have a physician who cares, who's interested, and doesn't make me think I'm crazy when I say I have this pain,' " Knapp said.

Garrett First In Savings Bond Sales

With the beginning of the new year, Garrett County moved from last place to first in sales of series E and H savings bonds. The county had finished number 24 in attainment of its sales quota for 1977.

Now number one in the 23 counties and Baltimore City, the county has already reached 21 percent of its 1978 quota of $418,320. During January, the county had sold $86,580 worth of the bonds, compared to $53,958 for the same month in 1977.

Nationwide, E and H sales were six percent above January 1977 sales. The state has achieved only 7.3 percent of its $199,200,000 1978 quota.

THE WHEELS OF MAN.

And, if the guy who invented the wheel could see it we think he'd be mighty proud of what Puch's done with his handiwork.

The Puch has pedals like a bicycle and a motor like your motorboat. Which means it can whip you around town in great style without worrying about things like being out of breath, or cardiac arrest.

Remember the sports car you had? It's that kind of fun.

The upkeep is low. And if you ride it 1500 miles next year your fuel bill will be about $15!

Come on in, ride one, and see for yourself: it's been a long time since this much fun made this much sense.

POPULAR CULTURE:

Mirror of American Life XII:

"MOVIN' ON UP:" THE JEFFERSONS AND THE WILLISES — Increasing numbers of blacks are finding employment in television shows such as "The Jeffersons." Situation comedies, however, tend to trivialize serious ethnic problems.

Editor's Note: This is the 12th in a series of 15 articles exploring "Popular Culture: Mirror of American Life." In this article, Nathan Irvin Huggins, Professor of History at Columbia University, assesses the impact of the mass media on minorities' struggle for equality. This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

MINORITIES AND THE MEDIA

By Nathan Irvin Huggins

During the past 20 years, television and the movies have taken on more color as nonwhites have found more work in film, situation comedies, and TV commercials.

Black, Latin, and Asian Americans are now serving mass media's good-natured indulgence in ethnic humor just as Jewish and Italian Americans have been doing for years.

"Chico and the Man" brought us the light-hearted cleverness of the Puerto Rican-Chicano. "Good Times" shows us poor-but-honest blacks smiling through hardship. And "The Jeffersons" assure us that even success won't spoil black folks for comedy. Even-handedly, television balances the bigotry of Archie Bunker with that of Fred Sanford.

Movie moguls, too, since the 1960s, have discovered a commercial potential in Afro-American subjects. While most have been "blaxploitation" films like "Superfly" and "Shaft," some, like "Sounder" and "Cooley High," were honest and thoughful efforts to portray black life. One film, "Ganja and Hess," was even exceptionally good cinema.

Black superstars are in the commercial entertainment galaxy. It was a historic event when, in 1939, Hattie McDaniel won an Academy Award for best supporting actress in "Gone With the Wind" and when, 24 years later, Sidney Poitier won the "Oscar" for best actor in "Lilies of the Field." Perhaps it is a sign of some change that we would not consider such honors to black performers quite so remarkable today.

Illusions

It would appear we are a far cry from the pre-1960s when, fearful of offending southern white audiences, the television and movie industries flagrantly pandered racial bigotry. Some of these apparent changes regarding minorities and the media are real, but we must remind ourselves that mass media are purveyors of illusions, and the changes we see are likely to be far less than what we get.

Certainly there are more nonwhites on television today, but thoughful treatment of ethnic life and issues is rare. Situation comedy will trivialize anything. Intermarriage in "The Jeffersons" is reduced to mere idiocy. Chronic underemployment for urban blacks is given no better treatment in "Good Times."

Of course, it is good to have a sense of humor and be able to laugh at ourselves, but the media generally give us nothing else.

It is pleasing, nevertheless, to see nonwhite performers making it in an industry dominated and defined by whites. Between TV commercials and one or two superstars, more money is going to nonwhite talent now than a few years ago.

We should not imagine, however, the plight of the minority artist has improved markedly in the last 20 years. Marketing and advertising men who run Hollywood prefer known personalities (from whatever background) to committed artists. Hollywood has "discovered" pitifully few black performers. It tends rather to draw "stars" who have already made their mark on the football field, the nightclub circuit, Las Vegas, and all too seldom the theater.

The superstar, once "made," tends to define the limits of major films about minority subjects. Producers of costly film projects need a superstar in the "package" to have any hope of raising money. Thus, to make "The Wiz," it was thought better to choose Diana Ross to play the 12-year-old Dorothy than teen-ager Stephanie Mills, who made the Broadway musical a spectacular success. Miss Ross can be packaged and sold as a commodity more easily than a highly talented youngster.

For every O. J. Simpson, Jim Brown, Fred Williamson, and Diana Ross, there are thousands of trained and talented professional actors and actresses who do not possess a celebrity that Hollywood can market. Until they make it big somewhere else, they are, with a few exceptions, not likely to find much success in film or television. White performers have some of these same problems, but there are far more roles and far more productions open to them.

Media Opportunities

Members of minorities — with a few exceptions such as Sidney Poitier — have not moved into the media industries in positions of producers, writers, or directors where they could affect programs. Those few who are producers and directors have almost no chance to choose or shape the character of their vehicles. The handful of writers who find work are viewed with suspicion whether they write about their own minority (they are presumed to have an ax to grind) or whether they attempt something general (they are not supposed to know about white folks).

Black writers are lucky to succeed at all in film and television despite increased protrayal of Afro-American subjects. Even the phenomenal television production of "Roots" — using several writers and directors — employed no black writer; a black director was given the chance to do just one episode.

Whites in the industry remain exclusive judges of what is suitable for viewing. They, in effect, define whatever ethnic content will get aired. Small wonder there is little authenticity in minority representation in the media.

It takes a lot of money as well as command of an industrial apparatus to produce movies and television. A modest estimate for a half-hour television show is $250,000. "Rocky," "a low-budget film," cost only $1.1 million. Such costs act as an effective censor to minority producers.

And things are hardly better in public broadcasting. It suffers serious budget limitations, and, like commercial television, the public network and stations find the Federal Communications Commission's "fairness doctrine" — obliging stations to grant equal time when one side of a controversy is aired — a sufficient reason to reject most programs that might have meaning to minorities.

Minority Exposure

At least television news has allowed minorities to bring their grievances before the public. The causes of such groups as freedom riders and marchers and Cesar Chavez' farm workers have been brought into the home. Leaders like Martin Luther King and Stokely Carmichael, accused persons like Bobby Seale, Angela Davis, and Joanne Little gained a national audience through television news broadcasting. We assume media exposure gained them sympathy and support.

But media exposure has cut both ways. The cameras recorded the White Backlash as eagerly as Black Power. They transmitted the riots in South Boston as quickly as the march on Washington. They broadcast the sentiments of the white, Pontiac, Michigan, housewife protesting "forced busing" as earnestly as they had the achievement of Mrs. Rosa Parks in the Montgomery bus boycott.

Any group willing to make a display, break the public peace, engage in civil disobedience will catch the camera's eye and be carried into the homes of America. Few things short of disorder, however, will have broad media impact. And minority demonstrators have paid a higher price, in the way of jailings, beatings, and killings, than have their white counterparts.

Many do not share my pessimism about the media. Others find more substance in the images than I do. They detect there evidence of minority success and achievement, symbolic of their "rising expectations."

I am impressed rather with the reality of unemployment touching as much as 25 percent of black and minority youth of working age, of generations trapped in a hopeless welfare system, of a general retreat from social programs initiated in the 1960s. Vast numbers of parents have expectations that rise no higher than getting or holding a job, receiving a welfare check or food stamps, keeping their kids off drugs, reasonable heat and garbage removal, and police protection without brutality.

The realities are rather dreary for the poor, the old, and the nonwhite in America.

But many of us can avoid touching the centers of this plight. Automobiles transport us around the ghettos, and mass media give us images of easy optimism. Therefore, only a persistent skepticism of manufactured illusions will keep us in touch with our reality.

Officers for the Broad Ford Elementary School PTA were chosen Monday, April 3, at a meeting in the cafetorium. John Hill was named president; Mrs. Karen Wilson, vice president; Mrs. Rayetta Beitzel, secretary; and Mrs. Anne Glotfelty, treasurer.

Officers will be installed at the May 1 meeting.

Other items of business included a report on the Book Fair, directed by Mrs. Judy Upole, librarian, with 917 books sold to students, teachers and parents. Profits were used to buy a filmstrip projector and individual viewers for the media center.

Following the business session, the group moved to Southern Middle School's gymnasium where students presented a program now in use in the primary grades to develop motor skills. Older students then demonstrated a series of gymnastics which also develop motor skills.

The Devil's Advocate

By Jim Willis and Kristin Milne

Is College Necessary?

Con: Jim

It's not that I am against further education and training past high school. I'm just against a college education per se, although my position needs some qualifying. I realize that there are some professions that require in-school training, i.e. law, nursing, medicine, education, etc. I'm even willing to suppose that all professions require some schooling on the "college" level. But four years, really?!

I was originally a pre-med major in college and as such I was required to take a foreign language (2 years), psychology, sociology, history, political science, religion and host of other forced "electives" and required courses. Some of them were enjoyable, some weren't, and none of them would have been of any benefit to me in a medical profession. Instead of holding my interest in my chosen career, educating me quickly and efficiently and allowing me to be admitted to medical school, the school curriculum did little more than discourage me, bore me, disinterest me and drain my funds.

Why can't American educators realize that not everyone wants or needs to be bombarded with a slew of classes they don't like, don't need or can't afford? If you want to be a doctor, then take all medicine related classes — the chances of your needing to know political science in the operating room are a million to one.

Right now, I'm working as a journalist. My friends are working as insurances sales people, data processors, teachers, secretaries, retail sales people, etc. Most of them are college educated, a few majored in studies related to their present jobs. Most of them are working in fields unrelated to their studies. Most of them make under eight thousand dollars a year and their jobs hold no assurance of steady employment and contain few benefits.

On the other hand we see high school dropouts making $12.00 an hour as machinists, mechanics, carpenters, miners, electricians and carpet layers. They either received on the job training in lieu of a high school diploma or took a vocational/technical high school curriculum. They started working upon graduation from high school (18 years old) and now own homes, cars, travel frequently and have savings accounts and financial security.

We opted for another route. We went to private colleges (graduating at 21 years of age) and spent $20,000.00 on an education, or went to a state university and spent half that amount (getting half the education). We are now working in jobs that pay roughly $5 an hour. We don't own homes and we have no savings accounts to speak of — we're trying to pay back student loans and we'll be paying on those loans for the next eight years. We have no job security — qualified journalists, teachers, and insurance salesmen are a dime a dozen.

Some of us "professionals" look down on the blue-collar labor force. We, the college educated, are supposedly the "intelligentsia." But the next time you're driving your VW on the way to the bank to make a school loan payment — glance out the window and observe the high school drop-out carpenter polishing his Buick Regal, in front of his house, getting ready for his weekend trip to the beach. Who do you think is smarter?

Pro: Kristin

It was the best of times and the worst of times. Dickens must have had the college student in mind when he set down those words. College is no picnic, but let me assure you that there were days, not to mention nights, that I would not trade for all the diplomas in the world. They tried to warn me: the first semester would kill me. Well, Jim, I am not only still around to write this, but I have learned to polish my writing because of those four years of

I know why the magic number "four" has been declared absolutely necessary to acquire a college degree: Money. Institutions of higher learning are definitely a business, albeit subtle forms of commerce. The idea is that if you pay them your hard-earned cash, your investment will be rewarded many times over with regard to employment or the quality of work an employer could expect of you.

Granted, a degree was once synonymous with a higher standard of living and is not quite the key to the Executive Washroom that it once was. But here the law of supply and demand takes effect. There are so many more college graduates now than even ten years ago that many are forced to either continue in post-graduate study or enter the labor force, letting the chips fall where they may.

Still, four years is, in most cases, plenty of time to separate the wheat from the chaff. In four years, I changed majors five times. Count 'em, folks: French with a Spanish minor, Spanish with a French minor, English with a French minor, English with a Spanish minor, and finally, much to my academic advisor's relief, English with a Language Arts minor. It took three semesters, but, all smugness aside, I found myself.

And here I am at last, a teacher of Language Arts, a euphemism for teaching everything from "See Dick run!" to heavy discussions on the emergence of optimism and pessimism in each character of the Diary of Anne Frank. No, I am not teaching the grade level I really want to teach, and no, I am not making tons of money — just name one teacher who is! But one thing is certain: I'd rather be circling misspelled words at my salary than making a little more money at a job I loathe.

College is nothing more than what the individual makes of it. I had an opportunity to try out my brainpower for the first time, and I was astonished to find that I had a brain at all. I found that I was not only articulate, but I enjoyed being that way. I can't claim that four years in a university granted me any sterling qualities in the name of humanity, but I feel confident in reporting that I'm more than pleased to have become acquainted with talents that I never knew I possessed until those four, long years proved otherwise.

American statesman Henry Clay was born April 12, 1777.

On this day in history:

In 1861, the Civil War began when Confederate troops opened fire on Fort Sumter, S. C.

In 1945, President Franklin D. Roosevelt died at Warm Springs, Ga. About three hours later, Vice-President Harry Truman was sworn in as Chief Executive.

In 1954, Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, referred to as "the father of the atom bomb," was suspended by the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission as a possible security risk.

In 1961, Russia launched a man into space. He became the first human to orbit the earth and return safely.

A thought for the day: American writer George Curtis said, "Imagination is as good as many voyages — and how much cheaper!"

Computerized Survey System To Identify No-Passing Zones

A computerized survey system — faster, more accurate, and less costly than the traditional system — is determining which sections of certain Maryland roads should be designated as no-passing zones.

The State Highway Administration has awarded a $43,354 contract to United Traffic Service Corporation, Vanderbilt, Pennsylvania, to establish no-passing zones on 1,143 miles of previously unmarked county roads, M. Slade Caltrider, State Highway Administrator, announced. The contract is currently being implemented in Baltimore, Dorchester, Garrett, Harford, Kent, Somerset, Washington, and Worcester Counties.

Under the traditional method, work crews walk along the highway holding two targets 3.75 feet above the pavement (the average height of a motorist at a steering wheel). The targets are connected by a rope or tape. The length of tape varies according to the speed limit posted for the section of roadway.

When the lead target disappears from sight, there is insufficient distance to pass safely. The no-passing zone begins at this point. The zone ends, if other conditions established by the Federal Highway Administration are met, when the target reappears.

Using this "eyeball and tape" method, a crew of six can cover 10 miles on a good day. But if the road is winding or hilly and traffic is heavy, the workers might be able to survey only a couple of miles.

The van is equipped with gyroscopes, a minicomputer, high speed line printers, magnetic disc recorders, and other monitoring and electronic equipment. The computer automatically records the horizonatal and vertical characteristics of the road, while an operator manually punches in such physical features as intersections and railroad crossings.

The current contract, fully funded through the Federal Highway Administration Pavement Marking Demonstration Program, is the second granted by the SHA to United Traffic. A similar project was completed two years ago in 13 counties.

The SHA hopes to receive additional federal funds to upgrade no-passing zones on all two and three lane undivided highways in the State, approximately 3,900 miles. Survey work on these roads is expected to begin in June or July.

John S. Koehn, Jr., Section Chief, Maintenance, points out that in addition to being faster and more accurate than the old method, the new process is less hazardous for the survey crew and the motoring public.

Another advantage is that no resurvey is necessary in order to paint lines obliterated by resurfacing or wear. Permanent logs and graphic maps also make it possible to delay prespotting and painting indefinitely in case weather is unfavorable or crews are not available.

Mr. Koehn added that the contractor can update safety zones without a resurvey if the FHWH changes any criteria. The data from the original survey can be run back through the computer and identify new zone locations in a matter of hours.

Loch Lynn Church Plans Visitors' Day

The Loch Lynn Church of God will hold a Visitors' Day Sunday, April 23, from 10 a.m. until the final service at 7 p.m.

Special singing is planned, according to Rev. R. H. Fletcher, pastor. Services will start with Sunday School at 10 a.m. followed by an afternoon service at 2 p.m. and the evening service at 7 p.m. Meals will be served at noon and in the evening.

Woman Injured In One Car Crash

Two young women were injured Sunday in a one-car accident on Route 40 east of Route 219 north when the driver swerved to miss a turtle in the roadway.

Cecelia Anne Hast, 23, of Frostburg, operator of the vehicle, was treated and released from Sacred Heart Hospital. She sustained a fractured wrist in the mishap.

Robin Lavin, also 23, of Annapolis, was admitted to the hospital, where she was later determined to be in "good" condition.

According to Maryland State Police, Miss Hast, who was traveling west on Route 40, observed a turtle in the road, and swerved to miss it. The car continued off the road and hit a bridge abutment.

The mishap occurred about 4 p.m., and was investigated by Tfc. G. D. Broadwater.

Dentist's Mailbox

By Harris Heyden DDS

Q. The Dentist says that my wisdom teeth should be removed because they are tilted forward and will never come in. They aren't bothering me. Can I wait to have them removed?

A. Ideally, impacted wisdom teeth (3rd molars) should be removed before they cause problems. Unfortunately, no one can say exactly when that will be for any one person. If an x-ray indicates a possible cyst around the tooth (a common problem), or if the tooth is lying against the 2nd (12-molar), then I would suggest immediate removal. I would also suggest immediate removal if there is an opening under the gum extending to the unerupted tooth.

Generally, the younger the patient, the less involved the surgery when having impacted wisdom teeth removed. Post-operative problems are fewer and healing of the surgical site is better.

You and your dentist will have to decide when to remove your wisdom teeth. Some factors to be considered are: the exact position of the tooth and whether or not there have been any changes in that position; your health and age; and, the likelihood of post-operative complications. You may wish to seek one or more additional opinions before deciding.

Q. I have several teeth that are very sensitive at the gum-line, but my dentist says they are not decayed. What causes this sensitivity and what can I do to make my gums feel better?

A. Since the sensitive areas are not decay, then I assume that either there is gum line sensitivity on the root surface (due to gum recession) or buccal erosion (a "v" shaped wearing of the tooth at the gum line).

Your dentist may be able to suggest one of several special toothpastes which often help reduce sensitivity in these cases. He may apply calcium hydroxide and/or highly concentrated fluoride pastes to the area which bring relief. If the erosion continues, he may have to restore (fill) the teeth.

It is important to use a soft brush to try to control this sensitivity and prevent the condition from progressing. Brushing back and forth with a hard brush can cause or contribute to these conditions. Ask your dentist to give you instructions on home care.

Q. My lower front tooth seems to have a crack or line in the front. My dentist said this is very common and didn't treat it. Is he right?

A. It is very common for tooth enamel to have small, crack-like lines or razing in it that look like lines running through the tooth. Drinking or eating hot and cold foods and drinks repeatedly may be a possible cause. It is more likely that a traumatic blow or biting something hard, such as nuts or ice, caused the crack.

If these areas are not decayed, and have not penetrated into the dentin (second layer of the tooth) and if the tooth is not sensitive to heat, cold or tapping, then I would suggest that you follow your dentist's advice. Treatment, if or when needed, usually consists of crowning (capping) the tooth.

Q. I am concerned about a molar that was extracted in early June. My dentist said he could replace it with a bridge that would cost 900 to 1000 dollars. Is this a reasonable fee for having 3 teeth capped?

A. The fee for replacement dentistry can vary greatly, depending on the type of replacement that is used. The various possible techniques and materials that could be used are too numerous to mention here. But, if the teeth are healthy and no root canal or other special treatment is needed (in addition to the replacement procedures), then the range can be from about $100 (for a small removable (Nesbitt) (partial denture), to $300 per crown and missing tooth.

Under our current freedom of choice system, you are free to consult with other dentists. This would enable you to compare costs, procedures and materials. I suggest that you consult with another dentist anytime you have doubts about recommended services and their costs.

Q. What is a dry socket? What causes it?

A. A "dry socket" is a local inflammation in the boney socket formed by the removal of a tooth. The blood clot which forms in this socket breaks down and results in the so-called "dry socket." Statistically, it occurs about 20 percent of the time.

This inflammation heals slowly but the patient can be made comfortable with some local treatment (in the socket) as well as pain relievers, if needed.

We don't completely understand why dry sockets occur or how, but we do know that there are some conditions that lead to its formation. For example, the more difficult it is to remove a tooth, the more likely it is that inflammation will occur. Dry sockets also seem to occur more often in people who do not take good care of their teeth or gums, and in people who have other health problems. And, then some people just have a lower resistance to infection.

Certain teeth, such as the lower third molars (wisdom teeth) also seem more susceptible to developing "dry sockets." In any case, should you notice pain, swelling and/or a very bad taste or odor 2 to 4 days after having a tooth removed, see your dentist at once.

A. Researchers in Finland claim that products containing the sweetener, xylitol, reduce tooth decay. They base their claim on one small study of adults. To date, these claims have not been substantiated here in the U. S.

Research is underway here and elsewhere, and it is generally agreed that xylitol, in itself, does not contribute to or cause tooth decay. This, of course, makes it different from most other carbohydrates (sugars), used in many foods and drinks. More data should be available in the near future.

Q. I go to the dentist every 4 months to have my teeth cleaned. A young woman does the work, and then the dentist comes in. My mouth is sore and in 2 places painful and the gums seem infected. But my dentist never mentions my gums. Is there anything that can be done about infected gums?

A. Periodontal conditions can be controlled. Your regular 4-month visits are part of that control. Some people need such cleanings (called prophylaxes) even more frequently than 3 times yearly. Whether or not you need additional care can only be determined by a dentist after a careful examination.

You can wait until your next appointment and ask the dentist about your gums. After the hygienist (the young lady you describe is trained to perform several dental services under the direct supervision of a dentist) scales and polishes your teeth and the dentist comes in to examine your teeth, speak up. It is your right! Do not allow the dentist to examine your teeth and leave before he answers your questions.

You may want to call the office and make a definite appointment with the dentist (not the hygienist) for a consultation. Or you may want to write a letter to the dentist. If he does not contact you before your next appointment, ask the dentist directly if he received your letter, when you go to your next appointment.

Another choice you have is to consult another dentist or a periodontist (gum specialist). Do not delay. If further care is needed, it should be rendered as soon as possible.

Q. I have had crooked teeth all my life and now my 12-year-old's teeth have come in exactly like mine. Is this condition hereditary?

A. Malocclusions, or what is commonly referred to as "crooked teeth," are irregularities in the position of the teeth or the improper coming together of the teeth when closing the jaws. It can be inherited or acquired.

The size of the jaw and the teeth are inherited. Harmful habits or early loss of teeth through decay, however, are mainly a result of individual behavior. The nature of this condition is very complex and may be due to other causes as well.

Regular dental care, started at an early age, can prevent periodontal disease later in life. If special treatment is necessary, the dentist will arrange for an appointment with an orthodontist, a specialist in the treatment of malocclusion.

If you have any questions about Dental Health Care, send them to Dr. Harris Heyden, Maryland State Dental Assn., Box 261, Linthicum, Md. 21090.

This column serves as another vehicle to keep in touch with my fellow residents of central and western Maryland. Send your questions or comments to me C/O U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. 20515. While I'll be unable to print all replies, I will answer each of you who contacts me.

The following questions were typical of the kind asked of me in recent weeks.

What are your views on the Summer Career Interest Program?

I support the Summer Career Interest Program. In fact, I have co-sponsored legislation to reauthorize the U. S. Army Reserve to continue this program. Originally authorized by the Chief of the Army Reserve in 1971, this program utilized Army Reservists on summer active duty to instruct youth 14 to 19 years old, in various fields. This is not a military program and is open to anyone. The student pays a minimal amount for a two week intensive course of study. Among the courses offered are Amateur Radio, Basic Photography, Medical Lab Technology, Basic Automotive Maintenance and an Introduction to Law Enforcement. So far, the program has provided educational training to more than 5,000 students.

How can the average citizen provide input for Federal Government Proposals?

One way is to subscribe to Consumer News, a monthly newsletter which outlines what the government is planning and tells you how you can provide advice and comments. This Office of Consumer Affairs publication includes summaries of Federal consumer proposals and actions, new consumer laws, recalls and consumer tips. For more information you may write the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

How accurate are the automobile gasoline ratings published by the Environmental Protection Agency?

Many people are puzzled by generous gas mileage ratings which seem impossible to get in actual everyday driving. However, according to a government survey, over half of all drivers report achieving gasoline mileage within two miles per gallon of EPA estimates. The remaining ten percent report that they are getting five or more gallons per mile less than EPA ratings.

I would like to know more about Solar Energy. Who can I contact?

I suggest you contact the National Solar Heating and Cooling Information Center at Post Office Box 1607, Rockville, Maryland 20850. The Center also has a toll-free number you can call if you would like immediate answers to a specific question or if you would like to order any of the material they have in print. The toll-free number is 1-800-523-2929.

Do you believe housewives should be allowed to have IRA's — individual retirement accounts?

Yes, I do, and in recognition of the enormous contributions of homemakers to their families I have introduced legislation to allow housewives to open Individual Retirement Accounts. As you know, homemakers are currently not eligible for either pension plans or IRA accounts because they are not formally paid for their work. This proposed measure would end that inequity.

What have you done to protect the American Worker from losing his job because of unfair foreign competition?

I firmly believe that American businesses and workers deserve protection from such competition. I have consistently joined with other Members of Congress in urging the Administration to take strong action to assist the American steel, textile and shoe industries — all of which are important to the workers in Central and Western Maryland. I also have supported legislative proposals which seek to combat the unfair competition of foreign countries who subsidize their industries and exports, exploit their citizens by allowing very cheap wage rates and permit "dumping" of excess production in the United States.

What is your position on the role of the Federal Government as it relates to educating our children?

I believe that decisions affecting the education of our children should be made by parents, teachers, school administrators, students and citizens of each local community — not by the Federal government. This is particularly important with respect to decisions regarding the curricula and school materials to be used. The Federal government can, however, assist local communities in providing educational services which they would otherwise be unable to supply without raising property taxes. As a result, I have supported federal programs to help educate handicapped and disadvantaged students, provide school lunches, career education, vocational education, library services, aid for elementary and secondary schools, Community colleges, four-year colleges and universities and professional schools. In addition, I have voted against crucial amendments which sought to cut the level of funding for these successful programs.

Assessment Answers

James Burley

Q. We and most of our neighbors purchased our homes from the realty company that formerly rented them to us. There are about 200 homes similar to ours in the community. The prices of the properties varied somewhat, but we ourselves paid $19,000 for our home in 1976. This year our property taxes will be about double the amount that they were last year which is the first year that we paid our property tax. Our assessment is just about one-half of the price that we paid for our home, but is also about twice as much as the assessment that was on it when it was owned by the realty company.

We cannot understand why it was worth so much less when it was owned by the real estate company than it is now when we own it as individual homeowners. Are we, as individual property owners, being discriminated against?

A. The increase in the value of your property is due to the fact that it changed from a rental property to owner-occupied property. When your home was a rental unit, the assessment was based on the income that the property produced for the owner. Although your assessment is much greater than the assessment on the previous owner, both reflect the market value at the time of the sale.

The realty company bought these units as one piece of real estate. A purchaser of commercial property will usually only pay on the income stream that the property produced, and he can buy a large group of properties for a much better per unit price than one person can buy one unit or home. The same holds true for almost any purchase. For example, if a person were to buy a new car, he might be willing to pay $6,000 for the car. However, a company buying two hundred cars of the same make might be able to buy the entire fleet, on a wholesale basis, for $4,500 a unit rather than the $6,000 that the individual would pay. Larger quantities will always be sold for less per unit than single units.

A person who invests in properties expects a fair return on his investment, as well as the return of the capital itself. Whenever properties are converted from rental properties to single family ownership, their individual value automatically increases. This is not only true of individual homes converted from rental units to private homes, but is also true of apartment buildings. Every time an apartment building is converted to a condominium and the units are sold as single family residences, the values increase.

The assessment on your home is based upon the price that you paid and that others paid in your community for comparable homes, just as the assessment was based on the price that the previous owner was willing to pay for the property. In addition to this, another factor affecting value is that individually owned homes are generally maintained better than are rental units. People who own their homes take better care of them. Rental units deteriorate at a faster rate, and the maintenance and upkeep is much more expensive. And, the former owners may have had to make costly repairs so that the houses would be saleable.

Another factor that would be built into the higher price that you paid would be the conversion costs. Whenever apartments or rental units are converted to single family residences, they must meet building code requirements that are standard for individual residences, and expenses could have been involved to make these alterations to meet the building code. All of these costs would be included in the price that you paid for your home, making the home you now own more valuable than it was when you rented.

Questions or letters of general interest on assessments and the property tax should be addressed to 'Assessment Answers — James Burley' in care of this newspaper. They will be answered through this column to the extent that space allows.

the ROCKPILE

World War I controlled the headlines in 1918. There was the story of a big drive by the Home Demonstration agent to recruit girls of Garrett County to enlist in "Uncle Sam's farm and home army" and thereby be a true patriot.

"It is hoped that at least one thousand war gardens will be planted by the girls of the county, more if possible. Girls from ten to eighteen years of age are urged to enlist in this production campaign."

Everyone was expected to make a sacrifice as Hoover urged Americans to eat "spuds;" "Bake 'em, boil 'em, hash-brown 'em, make salads of 'em! To avert shortage and high prices next winter, the nation must consume the present surplus."

"One potato can take the place of a thick slice of bread: Eat the spud and save the grain."

The two left for Fort Meade along with draftees Jonas W. Sines, Charles S. Rodeheaver and Paul D. Rafter. These were just the beginning of a long line of Garrett County men to join Sam's army.

Among the men specially commended for bravery, after an American munition ship caught fire at sea, was Oscar H. Lee of Crellin.

"Admiral Wilson issued a special order lauding the rescuers officers and men saying that due to their prompt and gallant action it appeared that all who were not killed in the flames of the Florence H were rescued."

Garrett County men were eager to do their share in defense of their country as shown in the following: "Fred. Cogley, of Oakland, has been made a corporal, having under his command eight Garrett Countians." Imagine, eight in one company!

Inevitably, the first Garrett soldier fell. He was Lt. Joseph W. Welch of Mt. Lake Park; killed in action while in France.

However, life did not stop back home in Garrett County: "Mrs. J. L. Echard has the first brood of chickens hatched this season. She has other hens setting."

One of the brave hunters lost his nerve before reaching the scene and took a side track. The other two took a firm grip on their Winchesters and, sending two small boys on in front, proceeded cautiously.

To their relief it was learned that the bear was only an uncle dressed in a wooly fur coat playing a prank on some boys.

The two farmers "will have to be shown the goods before they will go on another bear hunt."

A smile can brighten any bleak day and fortunately the residents of Garrett County were able to see a little humor in the dark war-torn year of 1918: "Ike Tusing brought a baby skunk to town with him Friday afternoon from somewhere in the woods north of Oakland and says he intends to civilize the critter and make it safe for the neighbors when they call at his home. Ike's intentions may be good and he may be a skunkologist, but his ability to civilize the polecat remains to be seen," (or smelled).

Earth's Axis Wobbles

Although the earth acts like a gyroscope, it also wobbles like a top. This wobble causes the north star to change as the axis moves with the wobble, in 23,000, and 19,000 year cycles. When the pyramid of Cheops was built, it was designed to admit the light of the north star at that time, Thuban, in Draco. Now the north star is Polaris, in Ursa Minor, but in 19,000 years the north star will once again be Thuban.

Moon

The moon passes through First Quarter phase at 8:36 a.m. Saturday. This week the moon will be waxing. Moonset varies from 11:42 p.m. last night to 3:01 a.m. next Tuesday morning.

Friday at 5:00 a.m. the moon will be at the greatest distance from earth that it will be this month. This apogee is 404,450 kilometers (251,370 miles) from earth.

Visible Planets

Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, and Uranus may be visible to the unaided eye during the week. Venus is very bright in the west sky just after sunset. It is among the stars of Taurus. Mars, is near Pollux, the brightest star in Gemini. It is almost overhead at sunset. Jupiter is also very bright, but not as bright as Venus. It is high in the west sky among the stars of Gemini. Saturn is high in the east sky at sunset. It is among the stars of Leo, near the moon, and the bright star, Regulus on Monday, and Tuesday. Uranus is very dim, but may be easily seen through binoculars. It is near the brightest star in Libra which rises 3 hours after sunset. This planet may best be seen late at night. Use a star chart to find the brightest star in Libra, Alpha Librae, or Zubenelgenubi.

Daylight Increases

There were 13 hours 6 minutes of daylight today. Sunrise was at 5:46 a.m. Sunset will be at 6:52 p.m. Tuesday will have 15 minutes more daylight than there was today. Sunrise will be at 5:37 a.m., and sunset follows at 6:58 p.m. on Tuesday.

Deadly Weapon And Assault Cases Draw Heavy Fines

Illegal possession of a deadly weapon and assault drew several heavy fines levied by Judge Lewis R. Jones in District Court Monday.

Hubert (Little Buck) Thorn, Tunnelton, W. Va.; Danny Joe Bolyard, also of Tunnelton, Don Allen Morris, Newburg, W. Va., all pleaded not guilty of having a concealed deadly weapon (broken off pool cue and wooden night stick) at Friendsville, March 9 (UMW pickets). Thorn was found guilty and fined $250 and costs. The pleas of the other two were sustained.

Albert Ross Jenkins, Markleysburg, Pa., and Albert Allen Jenkins, Confluence, Pa., were each charged with having a deadly weapon ('billy club') with intent to injure, and assault on William Sines on Buffalo Run road, Friendsville, March 22. Both pleaded not guilty but were found so on the weapon charges. On the assault charges both were found guilty. Albert Ross Jenkins was fined $150 and Albert Allen Jenkins, $250. Both were assessed costs of $15 each. William Sines, RD 1, Friendsville, involved in the same incident, pleaded not guilty of disturbing the peace and battery and his pleas were sustained.

Alfred T. Marucci, Jr., Harvey's Peninsula, had been charged with battery on John Kisselovich at Swanton in March. Monday the case was stetted as Kisselovich did not appear.

Richard D. Ward and Roger Kiper, both RD 5, Oakland, pleaded not guilty of malicious destruction of property and wanton trespassing in Oakland in March and the pleas were sustained.

Everett R. DeWitt, M Street, Mt. Lake Park, had been charged with passing worthless checks at Accident in August. The case was stetted as full restitution had been made.

Russell R. Perando, RD 4, Deer Park, is charged with battery on Annabell Perando at same address. Monday a jury trial was prayed.

Named Resident Of The Month

Bessie Pinnell was recently chosen as Resident of the Month at Cuppett & Weeks Nursing Home for the month of April.

Bessie has been with Cuppett & Weeks since March 10, 1972 and will celebrate her 96th birthday on September 24.

William Stump, another patient of Cuppett & Weeks since January, 1973, was a neighbor of Dr. and Mrs. Pinnell and recalls many memories of them.

TUNES by jim willis

Todd Rundgren adds another album to his long list of musical credentials . . . this time as producer. Rundgren gives us Bat Out of Hell by Meatloaf.

Actually, I believe "Meat Loaf" is the pseudonym of the lead singer sans his backup vocalists and band. When a lead singer weighs in at 260 pounds, I refer to that as a "group."

With a name like Meat Loaf you're liable to dismiss their credibility immediately. The music isn't that bad. The lyrics are a little powerful, sometimes verging on lurid, but the music has a raw, clean, simplistic drive.

All in all, you get the feeling that Meat Loaf has a hit on their hands — with their next release.

Humanity Destroying Humanity

Many of us have witnessed with horror the past few evenings the television mini-series, "Holocaust" on NBC. For those who have not been watching, "Holocaust" is based on the true story of the systematic slaughter of Europe's Jews by the Nazis during World War II.

The author of "Holocaust," Gerald Green, called it "a mass crime unparalleled in human history. This nightmare confounds scholars, perplexes the religious of all faiths, terrifies the memories of survivors and the bereaved. It is the most monstrous imponderable of modern history — the destruction of a people, simply because they were who they were . . ."

It takes a considerable amount of intestinal fortitude just to sit and watch "Holocaust." It is so difficult to comprehend how Hitler and so many of his followers (all supposedly human beings) were able to justify in their own minds the murders of nearly six million men, women and children. It's frightening to think that people are capable of such horrible acts.

Hopefully there will never be another "Holocaust." However, the ingredients for one are unfortunately still present. Prejudice, the most basic ingredient, still abounds all over the world. Most say, "How could the Nazis do it!" And yet, many persons still think somewhat as the Nazis, by feeling superior to others, simply because of their religious beliefs, race, sex, or soci-economic status.

Humanity destroying humanity. Though in a more subtle manner than the "Holocaust," it is still going on. God's commandment, "Thou shalt not kill" goes far beyond just the physical taking of a life. It also has to do with our attitudes towards our fellow brothers and sisters and our concern for their well being. One can break this commandment without actually killing.

We're all in this life together. It is a comparatively short life. Let's help each other make the best of it. Love thy neighbor.

Ann Carroll Is Selected State IFYE Delegate

Miss Ann Carroll of Gorman has been selected as one of two Maryland Representatives on the International 4-H Youth Exchange Program for 1978.

She is tentatively assigned to spend six months with host families in the Caribbean.

The IFYE Program is conducted by the National 4-H Council on behalf of the Cooperative Extension Service. Since its beginning in 1948, over 2,700 youth from the United States and an equal number from other countries have participated in this two-way exchange program involving 84 countries with 4-H-type programs.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carroll of Gorman, Ann will be the first representative from Garrett County to participate in the program. Ann is a 1974 graduate of Southern High School and will be a May graduate of the University of Maryland with a degree in the field of Agriculture and Extension Education with a youth emphasis.

An 11-year member of the Red House 4-H Club, Ann has also been employed by the Cooperative Extension Service as a summer work study student. She is currently serving as president of the University of Maryland Collegiate 4-H Club.

Funding for the program is provided through the County and State 4-H programs, civic and service groups and friends.

Upon her return to the United States in December, Miss Carroll is interested in meeting with groups to share her experiences.

Youth Critical After Cycle Strikes Truck

Philip Andrew Dice, Star Route, Grantsville, was operating a Honda motorcycle east on Pocohontas Avenue when he failed to stop for a stop sign at the intersection of Roanoke Avenue, according to Maryland State Police, who investigated.

He struck a tanker truck operated by Randy Lee Murphy, Mt. Lake Park, and sustained severe head, chest, arm, leg and back injuries.

He was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by members of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, who later transferred him to the Morgantown medical unit, where a surgical team was standing by.

Philip is a son of Kenneth and Helen Dice, Grantsville.

Garrett Central Alarm Releases Quarterly Stats

Quarterly statistics released this week by Ed Livengood, chief dispatcher of Garrett County Central Alarm, show that during the first three months of 1978 there was a total of 145 fire calls and 403 rescue calls answered by Garrett County fire departments and rescue squads.

The breakdown of fire departments and alarms is as follows:

Oakland, 48; Deer Park, 24; Accident, 16; Grantsville, 11; Kitzmiller, ten; Deep Creek, nine; Friendsville, eight; Bittinger, eight; Gorman, six; Bloomington, four; and Eastern Garrett, one.

Elk Garden and Bayard Fire Departments (West Virginia) are also part of the Garrett Central Alarm System. Elk Garden answered nine alarms and Bayard has not yet had a call in 1978.

The majority of the fires for the three-month period were flue fires, with a total of 25 reported. Assistance at car accidents and washdowns accounted for 20 alarms. There were 18 house fires and 11 car fires. There were two false alarms, both for the Oakland Fire Department.

The Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad ran a total of 183 calls. The Grantsville station of the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad answered 88 calls and the Accident station of the Northern Squad responded to 56 calls.

BLUE JEAN SUCCESS STORY — Hundreds of persons who reside in the coverage area of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad showed up at Browning's Foodland last Friday and Saturday to support a benefit clothing sale sponsored by Browning's Foodland Inc. The merchandise sold was the remaining stock from Browning's Denim Discount, which ceased operation early this year. Proceeds from the sale totaled in excess of $4,000, all of which was donated to the squad by Browning's inc. Bolden Reports HB 1247 Passed Delegate DeCorsey Bolden reported this week that in the waning moments of the 1978 General Assembly session, approval was granted for House Bill 1247.

HB 1247 provides that local school boards may request the State Board of Education to waive the required 180 student days, if students lost attendance at school as a result of severe weather, civil disaster or natural disaster.

Del. Bolden stated, "As a result of the severe winter and snowfall, many counties across the state dismissed school on bad weather days and this provision in the law would allow up to ten days to be forgiven."

Bolden continued "When this is signed by the Acting Governor and becomes law, it will provide the latitude of decision as to whether to commit students to attend school on very questionable weather predictions or to cancel school on those days, as done by our neighboring state of West Virginia."

Two gallon donors were Edgar Miller, Menno E. Yoder, Jacob Yoder, Goldie Beachy, Patricia Cowser, Kathleen Margroff, Marvin Beachy, and Vera Merrill. Dalton Stanton was a six gallon donor.

Volunteer nurses were Audrey Kinsinger, Mildred Beachy, Linda Miller, Sara Wengerd, Pauline Faucett, Alice Miller, Barbara Schmuck, Rhoda Maust, and Kathy Bach. Rachel Miller, Dorcas Yoder, and Linda Schrock served as aides.

The Northern Garrett Co. Rescue Squad had a crew on standby. Custodians and canteen workers were members of the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department and the Ladies Auxiliary.

Mrs. Philip Bender and Mrs. Wayne Durst served as coordinators for the visit.

Fire Destroys Mobile Home At White Rock

The mobile home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Calhoun of the White Rock-Cranesville Road was completely destroyed by fire early last Thursday morning. The couple and their young son were away from home at the time, visiting relatives.

No cause has been determined for the blaze which was reported to the Friendsville Volunteer fire company at 5 a.m. Robert Shimer, fire investigator for the western counties, is investigating. The trailer was completely involved in flames when the company arrived.

Deep Creek Volunteer company was also called and sent one piece of equipment and several men.

Later that day, at 3:45, firemen were called to help douse a brush fire between Gravel Hill and Town Hill Roads. Members of the forestry department cooperated in fighting the fire.

A brush fire was reported the following day, about 1 p.m., under the Route 48 bridge along Bear Creek. The forestry department also helped fight the blaze, which was contained to a brushy area and caused no major damage. According to James Lininger, Friendsville chief, probable cause of both brush fires were cigarettes.

On April 16, Friendsville firemen were called to a truck fire on Route 48 about 10:15 a.m. Minor damage was recorded for the Foodrite tractor trailer rig. Two trucks and ten men responded.

Group Nominates Gary Yoder For Achievement Award

The Garrett County Committee to Promote the Employment of The Handicapped has nominated Gary Yoder from Grantsville for a Personal Achievement Award at the Governor's Committee to Promote the Employment of The Handicapped Luncheon on April 19. The nomination was made by committee member Mary Love with assistance from Esther Yoder from Grantsville.

Gary Yoder had polio when he was two years old. He is able to get around with the aid of leg braces and crutches. Since 1971, Gary has worked as a woodcarver at Penn Alps from April through November of each year. His wood carvings have won numerous prizes. During the winter months he carves to fill orders from the previous summer. Gary's carvings are so much in demand that he has a three year backlog of orders.

Board Establishes June 16 As End Of School Year In Garrett County

After several earlier revisions in the school calendar, the Garrett County Board of Education took action at its meeting April 13 to establish Friday, June 16, at 1 p.m. as the end of the school year for Garrett County students.

This means that ten-month teaching personnel will be required to complete all records and reports and to work a full day on June 16.

The board has had to revise the calendar three times this academic year to make up for days lost because of weather or power outages.

The calendar still complies with the 180 school days mandated for students. Representatives of the Maryland State Teachers Association and Garrett County Teachers Association were present and voiced no objections to the calendar revisions.

In other action, the Board indicated it will take under advisement a request to conduct regular business meetings or portions of them in the evenings rather than in the afternoons. Dr. Thomas Johnson restated the request, which had first been brought up in October but which had been rejected by the Board. A petition with 54 signatures had been presented in October, and a second petition was submitted, this time bearing 72 names.

Others present Thursday supporting Dr. Johnson's position were Tom and Dayle Dabney, Mrs. Dorothy Leighton, Mrs. Sarah Ramsey, and Mrs. Barbara Morris.

Three of the four members present, indicated it does not matter to them whether day or evening meetings are held. All stated that they would like to be made aware of public interest by large attendance at evening meetings.

The Board established that on Tuesday, May 2, at 7:30 p. m. there will be a public Board meeting at Northern High School.

In other action the Board voted to discontinue the student breakfast program at the Southern Middle School, effective when the food supplies for serving breakfasts are depleted. No breakfast program will be instituted at the Northern Middle School.

Robert Rodeheaver, supervisor of high schools, presented a preliminary report and a first draft of a proposed extracurricular policy. The policy will be revised by a committee working with him and will be made available to local PTAs, faculties, and interested public groups prior to its final adoption.

The policy will define cocurricular and extra-curricular activities and establish general guidelines to be followed in this area throughout the schools of the county.

The Board stated that the Dennett Road renovation-addition project should get started this summer, as well as beginning the construction of the new Grantsville Elementary School.

Considerable time was given to hearing curriculum reports in reading, family life and human development, science, and career education. Presenting the reports were chairmen Mrs. Charleen Thomas, Matt Novak, James Hart, and Richard Travis. The committees will be continuing to develop current programs, following discussion and action by the Board.

In a statement released concerning the meeting, the Board stated that it has adopted a personnel replacement-reduction policy which takes into account the possibility that funds will be inadequate for the next budget year to maintain the current total staff. The superintendent and staff were presented with guidelines which would be followed in the event the fiscal 1979 budget should be insufficient to maintain the present staff.

Dr. Baser pointed out that it was ironic that the school system will be receiving more federal dollars for student summer work programs and other school-related programs while at the same time insufficient state and local general dollars may cause the school system to operate next year with fewer employes with the same number of students.

Hearings Delayed In Leuscher Trial

Associate Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer has granted a postponement of preliminary hearings for the trial of Ellwood Leuschner, of Salisbury, charged with murdering two young boys.

Preliminary hearings were originally scheduled to have begun April 18, but the postponement was granted at the request of Richard Warren, State's Attorney for Wicomoco County.

Preliminary matters will be heard beginning June 19 and the trial will proceed once disposition is made.

Leuschner has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to charges of murdering nine-year-old William Marine and ten-year-old Tony Krause.

Leuschner was originally arrested by state police on a California fugitive warrant, issued when he violated parole in Sacramento. He had been convicted of three rapes in California.

Commissioners Conclude Budget Hearings Monday

The Board of County Commissioners finished budget hearings with various county departments and agencies Monday, and is now beginning final deliberations for a total budget figure for the coming fiscal year.

Commissioner chairman George Edwards stated Tuesday that the Board hopes to finalize the budget by mid-May. Requests from many departments are still under evaluation by the board.

Budget hearings Monday concluded with discussions with the Commission on Aging and Circuit Court personnel.

In other business Monday, the 4-C Committee (Coordinated Comprehensive Child Care) representatives discussed with the commissioners the role the 4-C group could fulfill, and pointed out programs which may benefit from the committee's supervision. Representatives were David Miller, Roxanne Winslow, Linda Wengerd and Tim Dugan.

William Platter, of the Long Stretch Youth Home, paid an informational visit to the Board to discuss future plans and projects for the home.

The Commissioners held usual monthly staff meetings to resolve routine matters and obtain departmental information.

They then discussed titlement of some Army surplus trucks recently obtained by the county, and agreed that the vehicles should be titled in the names of the new owners. One truck will become the property of the Kitzmiller fire company and the other will be the property of the Mt. Lake Park Water Company.

SHA Crews Filling Potholes, Planning Summer Projects

The usual spring projects of repairing potholes and frost boils and clearing drains are proceeding at the State Highway Administration this county, according to William Goldsborough, district engineer.

Mr. Goldsborough noted that frost damage on state roadways has been minimal in comparison with previous years, and is mainly confined to secondary roads. Potholes are filled with bituminous concrete (blacktop), while frost boils are leveled off and repaved with bituminous concrete.

After the usual spring rush to take care of the potholes, workmen will begin several widening and resurfacing projects. Route 495 between Glendale Road intersection and the intersection of Route 135, and Route 560 between Loch Lynn and Eagle Rock Road are both scheduled for widening and resurfacing.

Route 546 in the northeastern section of the county is scheduled for widening and resurfacing improvements, along with Route 40 from the Allegany county line two miles west into Garrett County.

Major projects under consideration during the next five years include work on Route 135 from Route 38 (Kitzmiller Road) to the intersection of Route 495, through Altamont. This project would include construction of a new bridge at Altamont and rehabilitation and relocation of the road.

Also still under consideration is the proposed Oakland Bypass from Ninth Street extended to Route 219 north of Oakland.

Dr. Tayback Speaks For Congregate Housing For Aged

Dr. Matthew Tayback, State Director on Aging, testified on April 13 before the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Housing and Urban Affairs on the proposed Federal Congregate Housing Services Act of 1978, according to an announcement today by the State Office on Aging.

Dr. Tayback was asked to testify as an expert witness on congregate housing because Maryland has been in the forefront in this area of housing for the impaired elderly. In Maryland, congregate housing is known as sheltered housing and has been serving as a viable housing alternative for senior citizens for several years as a middle-ground between independent living and institutionalization.

The proposed Federal legislation would further develop congregate or sheltered housing throughout the nation by providing funding for a coordinated program in association with local housing authorities.

The Director of the Office on Aging told Senator William Proxmire (D-Wis.), Chairman of the subcommittee, and other subcommittee members that Maryland's Office on Aging supports the proposed legislation and infact has warmly encouraged the development of sheltered housing in Maryland.

"I support it because I feel sheltered (congregate) housing is a necessary step to meet the specific needs of many elderly people who require housing adapted to their physical limitations," Dr. Tayback told the subcommittee.

"In addition, our experience in Maryland has been so successful in this area that our program is currently serving as a model for several other states just beginning to implement sheltered housing."

The Director further explained the operational methods used in Maryland sheltered housing, such as providing three nutritious meals a day in a congregate setting and making available light housekeeping services and personal care each week to residents.

Dr. Tayback concluded by explaining to the Federal subcommittee that sheltered housing has proven to be a successful alternative living arrangement for the elderly who are impaired but who have the desire and capacity for independent living.

Clerk-Carrier Exams To Be Given Soon

Postmaster Edward DeWitt, McHenry Post Office, has announced that Clerk-Carrier exams will be given in the near future. Applications may be picked up at the McHenry Post Office between April 24 and 28. The examination will be given at the Cumberland Post Office, at a time to be announced later.

The Postmaster said the Postal Service established the policy two years ago of extending eligibility indefinitely for those on the job register because little hiring was being done. "On October 8, 1978 those who have been on the job register for more than two years will lose their eligibility. They will have to reapply to compete for a standing on the new register," he said.

Concert Association Wrapping Up Annual Membership Drive

The Tri-State Community Concert Association is pushing its 20th annual membership drive which comes to a close Friday, April 21, at 8 p.m.

Each year, many residents of Oakland and elsewhere in Garrett County subscribe to memberships which entitles them to attend all of the concerts presented the next season in the Fort Hill High School auditorium in Cumberland.

Handling the campaign in Garrett County are Miss Rhoda Miller of Grantsville, Mrs. Robert Stanton of Oakland and Mrs. Robert Sincell of Mt. Lake Park.

Three attractions are already assured for the 1978-79 season. The success of the drive to fill the 1,600 seats in the Fort Hill auditorium determines what other concerts will be presented. There are usually five or six each season.

John Birks "Dizzy" Gillespie, the famed jazz musician with the odd-shaped trumpet, is scheduled for a concernt January 15. Virgil Fox, one of America's most famed organists, will appear in Cumberland next May.

During the fall, Johann Strauss' Fledermaus, produced by Sir Rudolf Bing, will be presented. The cast will be headed by two Metropolitan Opera artists, Frank Guarrera as Dr. Falke and Theodor Uppman as Eisenstein.

Labor unions are seeking a four-day work week.

Letters to the Editor

REMINDER — Unsigned letters to the editor will NOT be printed under any circumstances. Letters exceeding 300 words will also not be printed.

Dear Sir:

I am the parent who went to France with the French students. I've followed with some dismay the letters criticizing the program. I have seen only one letter that supported it; I would like to add my support.

The policy governing "out-of-country" field trips was drawn up last year by the School Board while the only teacher who had ever taken students out of the country was in Europe. She was not consulted in any way. The Board agreed that "out-of-country" trips deserved a maximum of three days' professional leave, the same as any other field trip.

When we left for Paris on March 17, it was necessary for the teacher to be off five days. As a result, her paycheck was cut by two days' pay. The Board felt it was necessary to dock her pay to pay a substitute. However, the American Field Service Club paid the substitute who was in the room while the exchange student from France taught the classes. Where did the money go?

Was the band director's pay cut when he took the band to Florida? Or is a coach's pay cut after three days are used traveling with a team? If not, why not? Because Band and Athletics are more important than French? Or because they bring back trophies and we didn't? Or is it because they have a larger number of parents backing them?

I'm sure all who were involved with the trip to France felt it was a worthwhile experience. I feel the Board's policy (three days' leave,) regardless of where you go, needs to be reviewed and amended to fit the situation.

This community should be thankful there is a teacher interested enough in students to take the responsibility of European trip, rather than penalizing her.

Sincerely,
Beverly J. Beard

Dear Editor:

May I compliment you on the excellent reporting of last week's meeting held by our county commissioners? Your reporter not only presented views accurately but very carefully made quotes on vital issues. One of those quotes, from a county commissioner is so astounding as to merit comment.

"I would hope — and it would be wonderful for everyone, if the taxpayers were sincere about assuming the responsibility of funding education."

What taxpayers does this commissioner represent? Does he represent the taxpayers of industry and absentee property holders? Is he not aware that his duty is to represent resident voters?

Resident voters are sincere about assuming the responsibility of funding good education for our children.

How long will we Garrett Countians elect as our commissioners those who serve big business?

Ha, with your kind of reporting, not very long I betcha.

Editor:

WHEREAS the salaries of various state and county officials have been published,

AND WHEREAS a number of "hats have been tossed into the ring" for the position of Register of Wills,

Will you kindly publish the starting salary.

Thank you,
An interested taxpayer and voter.

Dear Taxpayer,

In the Estates and Trusts Volume of the Maryland Code, Article 11, section 205, it states that the salary of the Register of Wills will be "not less than $6,000 and not more than $25,000, to be determined in each instance by the Board of Public Works." Joseph Welch, the present Register of Wills, stated that the salary of the new Register of Wills will not be determined until after the election.

"With Courage, Goodwill And Common Sense"

by Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr.

In previous columns we have discussed various aspects of the energy crisis and in particular the painful personal aspect which is now being felt by many Marylanders in the form of unusually high electricity bills.

In many communities electric bills are ten times what they normally would be, and as I have explained previously this is the energy crisis aggravated by the coal strike being transferred from headlines and television newscasts directly into our homes. It is a painful personal experience, but one from which we can learn.

I believe we are beginning to learn the necessity of conservation. It is no longer a theoretical subject, but a very urgent personal necessity. Moreover, we are learning to take a greater interest in how government is managing the energy crisis.

It is my hope that the utility companies will also learn something from this experience. They have very serious obligations to their customers; obligations to advise the public of wildly fluctuating utility rates. They have a further obligation to give customers the best possible service in the most efficient way, and this obligation will grow and deepen as we proceed to the end of this century.

Government also has very real responsibilities. It seems first and foremost to me, that government must play a positive, constructive and helpful role. A demonstration of the proper attitude of government, for example, would be to forego any windfall taxes resulting from the ups and downs of energy prices. Unfortunately, our society runs on services provided by government, and therefore government must exact taxes in order to pay for services. But taxes are projected on the basis of normal economic activity and not on unusual situations such as when utility bills are inflated ten times the normal rate. Federal, state, or local excise taxes resulting from such unusual conditions create a windfall tax profit for one of those branches of government. It would only be fair that as we are asking citizens and the energy companies to make sacrifices and adjustments under these circumstances government ought to take the lead by showing its own willingness to make sacrifices.

I have asked the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to make a thorough study of the utility rate situation in Maryland, and to look for ways in which relief can be extended, particularly to our senior citizens many of whom were caught short this winter and now face electric bills they cannot pay. The huge bills were the alternative to freezing to death in the cold months of February and March.

I believe we must find a way to adjust to this situation and continue to educate ourselves about the energy crisis. If so, we can make this crisis just another challenge to the American people to be met and overcome with courage, goodwill and common sense.

Open House Slated April 25 At GCC Secretarial Center

Because April 24-29 has been designated National Secretaries Week, the Secretarial Science Department of Garrett Community College will have an Open House in its Secretarial Learning Center on Tuesday, April 25, from 6-8 p.m.

The public is invited. There will be displays, demonstrations, and refreshments. The Secretarial Learning Center is located on the McHenry Campus in LC-163.

An innovative program was started in the fall semester to allow for individualized instruction in typing and shorthand. Through this program, students in three levels of typing courses and four levels of shorthand courses are able to work at the same time. Students work at their own levels using textbooks and slide/tape presentations at study carrels. This system helps eliminate students' scheduling problems and allows the instructor to work with each student.

During the summer session, typing and shorthand will be offered on a modified basis on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6:30-9:30 p.m. Other courses scheduled during the year include Office Procedures, Office Machines, Business Communications and Secretarial Practice I and II.

William Harman Honored By DNR Upon Retirement

William E. Harman, of Cove, regional manager for Maryland Wildlife Administration's Western Region, recently retired after 29 years of state service.

A retirement dinner was held in his honor at the Continental Restaurant, LaVale, Friday, April 7, with 85 attending. Those present included coworkers from many years ago as well as nearly all staff members from the Annapolis headquarters.

Mr. Harman began his career in state service in 1947, as a fish culturist assistant at the Bear Creek Trout Rearing station in this county. The station was a part of the Game and Inland Fish Commission.

He was promoted in 1958 to regional fish culturist for the Game and Inland Fish Commission — a position he held for the next eight years. His next promotion occurred in 1966 when he was made regional manager for the Allegany-Garrett County area.

Responsibilities at the regional level included supervision for all state game and fish installations as well as law enforcement and fish and game management. It was during this period he was also appointed to serve as one of the original members on the Land Reclamation Committee in Western Maryland and he continued to serve in this capacity until his retirement in November of last year.

The Game and Inland Fish Commission was dissolved in 1971 to become a part of the Department of Natural Resources. At that time Harman became regional manager for Maryland Wildlife Administration's Western Region (composed of Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties). His headquarters were moved from Billmeyer Game Refuge near Flintstone to the newly-created Regional Service Center for the Department of Natural Resources at LaVale.

In 1972 the Regional Service Center moved from LaVale to offices on Naves Crossroads at Cumberland. Mr. Harman then maintained headquarters in the Service Center until his retirement. Ed Golden, of Accident area, is the new regional manager.

Members of his division presented him with a registered print of a wildlife painting done by one of the nation's top artists; the state presented him with a plaque of appreciation; the forestry division gave him a desk set, and the Maryland DNR presented him with a set of binoculars. Fellow employes at the Cumberland office presented him with a check.

In his spare time now Mr. Harman will be making and repairing clocks, a hobby he developed recently, and working in his woodworking shop. He and his wife, the former Helen Drees of Dallas, Texas, plan to do some traveling as opportunity permits. Mrs. Harman is cafeteria manager at Northern High School.

They are parents of three children, son Paul, working with a WVU chemical engineering project; Carl, of Lawrenceville, Ill. a petroleum engineer, and daughter Joyce, of Martinsburg, W. Va., a 4-H extension agent.

Damage, Larceny Cases Checked By State Police

Several criminal cases have been investigated by the Maryland State Police recently, including property damage, larceny and counterfeit money.

Two women entered the home of Adam Henry Oester, 85, of RD 1, Grantsville, and took $55 in cash from the bedroom of the man. The women then left but were not identified.

A man presented an altered U. S. currency for a payment at Wynlyn's Edge. Tfc. R. E. Friend investigated. As of yesterday, no charges had been filed against the man.

A breaking and entering occurred at an abandoned dwelling on U. S. 40 just west of Keysers Ridge. The property belongs to Judith Ann Locke of Mt. Lake Park. Tfc. Friend investigated and there are no suspects.

Rocks were apparently thrown through the windows of the Mt. Zion United Methodist Church on Star Route, Frostburg, Garrett County. This destruction of property was investigated by Tfc. Dale Williams and again no suspects were named.

Three juveniles caused damage in the extent of $120 to a car owned by Edward L. Holtzman near Finzel. The car was parked at his residence. The three boys, ages 9 to 11, have been charged with being delinquent by reason of destruction of property. Tfc. C. H. Hinnant investigated the incident which occurred March 12.

Friendsville Students Celebrate Arbor Day

The Friendsville Elementary School conducted a special Arbor Day program April 13 at the school. Ernest Metz of the Maryland Forest Service, and Charles Strauss, Sr., Director of Camp Hickory were the guest speakers for the conservation program.

The festivities were a continuation of an outdoor educational curriculum that was initiated at the Friendsville school for the fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

The first, second and third grade students also contributed to the program with several songs and poems. Following the presentations, the children planted several pine trees around the school.

Bill Sisler doesn't think much of his banker!

Running the biggest Marine Service outlet on Deep Creek Lake keeps Bill Sisler jumping. There are a hundred problems every hour which require his personal attention. So Bill really doesn't have time to think much about his banker.

But Bill's banker thinks a lot of him! Jim Michael, manager of our Deep Creek Lake Office, makes sure all of Bill's banking needs are taken care of, so that Bill can devote his full time to his business. Jim keeps Bill informed of all the banking services available to him and he recommends those services Bill can use to help his business prosper. Bill knows First National is behind him 100% . . . always has been.

So we really don't mind if Bill Sisler doesn't think much of us. In fact, we consider it a compliment. We'd like for all our customers to feel as Bill does about us.

Dr. Jean Shaw To Be Installed As P.E.O. Organizer

Dr. Jean D. Shaw, Oakland, currently serving as corresponding secretary of the P.E.O. (Philanthropic, Educational Organization), will be installed as organizer of the group at the close of the Maryland State Chapter convention April 25.

Other delegates from the area are Mrs. Linda Duckson, Frostburg, and Mrs. Molly MacFie, Cumberland. The convention will be held at the Pikesville Hilton. Mrs. Doris Benson, state president, of Hagerstown, will preside and the first vice president and representative of the national organization, Mrs. Marjorie Smith, will attend from Spokane, Wash.

The P.E.O. Sisterhood has been working to educate women since it was founded 109 years ago. The organization has a membership of over 230,000 women in the 50 United States, the District of Columbia, the six provinces of Canada and abroad. Membership is by invitation only, but is not a prerequisite to receiving a grant or scholarship or loan, but recipients must be sponsored by a local P.E.O. chapter. In the U. S. there are 47 state chapters and 4,700 local chapters.

P.E.O. pursues its goals through four programs. The P.E.O. Educational Fund provides loans of up to $2,000 at 4 percent interest for college or other higher education for women. In the years 1975-1977 $1,208,099 in educational loans were granted to 896 women in the United States and Canada.

The International Peace Scholarship Fund channels money to foreign women, who must commit themselves to graduate study in the U. S. or Canada, followed by a return to their native countries to apply their knowledge.

The program for Continuing Education makes grants to women whose circumstances in life dictate a return to school. All these loans, grants and scholarships are given on a basis of need and seriousness of purpose.

The P.E.O. owns and operates a women's college, Cottey College, a two-year liberal arts school in Nevada, Missouri, given to P.E.O. by one of its members and maintained through annual dues of $4 paid by P.E.O. members.

Many state chapters offer in addition to the above a limited number of educational grants and scholarships to a few young women who are high schools graduates and residents of that state.

FILM CLIPS by jim willis

Despite a cast of well known comedians and comediennes, Joan Rivers' Rabbit Test has a weak (and peculiar) story line. Even in this age of clowning and genetic breakthroughs, the film is hardly believable by any stretch of imagination.

Billy Crystal (the "swish" star of "Soap") portrays the mother-to-be, after being ravished at a USO club by an aggressive volunteer, Sheree North. Imogene Coca, Paul Lynde, Doris Roberts, Alex Rocco and Roddy McDowall, go racing through the plot, slinging one-liners, aided and abetted by Joan Prather, who portrays a gypsy girl who agrees to marry the pregnant man.

The one-liners are "cute" and there are some choice bits of clowning — but the end result fails to save Rabbit Test. Crystal is charmingly naive, but author Joan insists on making him a national hero, sending him on goodwill tours, which ultimately cause riots in India where they're afraid he's pro overpopulation. It would have been much better if Joan would have left him in a small town setting.

Writer-director Joan Rivers has talent in both areas. . . . but she needs some polishing. She tries to cover some slowly moving scenes with fast paced humor — so fast the film should be called Rapid Test.

It's doubtful anyone else will attempt this particular storyline again, so you may want to see the movie for the sheer novelty of it. I prefer to wait until Rivers has a few more cinematic efforts under her belt. Joan Rivers is certainly pregnant with promise, and in a few years she should be rivalling the likes of Mel Brooks and Woody Allen.

the bookshelf

By Kristin Milne

A new novel by Graham Greene is an event that readjusts the scale of our perceptions: the boss is back, and all other writers of serious espionage fiction look suddenly smaller.

The first few pages of The Human Factor (Simon and Schuster) establish the claustrophobic sickness of misdirection and mistrust pervading what is known, with such coziness, as the "intelligence community." Castle, after years as a field operative, is now a quiet, superficially conforming British bureaucrat from whose department there appears to spring a leak.

A colleague is suspected, privately condemned, and tidily terminated. Only Castle knows his employers have killed the wrong man. There is, after all, his own precious world to be protected — the beautiful black wife, her child, and the exquisitely understated structures of loving kindness the three of them share as a creeping barrier against the infection of Castle's work.

It is a barrier that can not, and does not, hold. Nobody draws the strings of suspense tighter that Greene, or makes us care more deeply about the people he creates. The Human Factor is a flawlessly choreographed work in which loyalty and betrayal are interwoven with crisp economy and a kind of passionate grace — taut, elegant, and heartbreaking. This is "must" reading for all amateur spies in the audience!

SAME ROOM, DIFFERENT VIEW — Opening the "Paneldrapes" gives the Morris' living room a completely different atmosphere. The windows are uncovered at peak sunlight hours during cold periods to allow the house to absorb the heat. The natural heating system is supplemented with electric baseboard heaters. The "Paneldrapes" are made of high-grade foam insulation covered with plywood paneling and are the invention of Dick Morris.

Morris' Solar Home Nearing Completion On Pennington Street

by Jim Willis

Gazing at Dick and Barbara Morris' new home on Pennington Street in Oakland, you might wonder why anyone would build a house with so much glass in these days of high heating costs? Well, all of those big windows may provide up to half the heat for the house because of a "passive" solar heating system.

Passive systems store heat generated by the sun in the interior materials of the house: floors, walls, furniture etc. whereas "active" systems use exterior collector panels, storing the heat in insulated rock piles or water tanks and releasing the heat into the living space as needed. Most passive systems have less capacity to store heat for sunless periods, but cost a great deal less than active systems.

The Morris house uses a unique system of insulation called "Paneldrapes" to close off the windows during sunless days and at night, thereby holding in the free heat provided by the sun.

Prefabrication of the dwelling was done by Shelter, Inc. of Oakland, with on-site erection by Richard A. Morris Construction Co. The house is an unusual hexagonal shape with three rectangular wings and was designed by Barbara Morris to surround the hillside and gather the sun's rays during the day. The dwelling is two-story on the southern side to gain maximum glass area per square foot of living-space, but one story on the north side to reduce heat loss. The home is built into the hillside so that the back of the lower level is below grade and insulated by the ground.

The "Paneldrape" system was developed by Dick Morris and Alex Snyder at Shelter, Inc. The panels are stored inside the walls next to the windows at the suggestion of Wendell Beitzel. They are mounted on pocket door hardware, and during the winter they are pulled out across the windows when there is no direct sunlight coming through the glass.

The "Paneldrapes" are made of high-grade foam insulation covered with plywood paneling. They are weatherstripped to reduce air infiltration and can be painted or wallpapered to achieve interesting decorator effects. Dick and Barbara have covered their paneldrapes with scenic murals, creating a "woodsy" feeling for their living room.

Closed "Paneldrapes" insulate window areas as efficiently as a wall, which has 3½ inches of fiberglass insulation. The additional cost of the "Paneldrapes" has been largely offset by the use of less-expensive aluminum windows and electric baseboard heat (low installation cost) and through the elimination of conventional draperies in the house.

Back-up heating for cloudy periods is being supplied by electric baseboard heat and an efficient fireplace with external air supply and glass doors. The electric baseboard heat allows complete room-by-room zoning, so that only those rooms which are being used are heated. The floor between the two levels is insulated to allow efficient zoning between lower level sleeping areas and upper level living areas.

A "dryer vent valve" designed by Jay Umstot of Shirer's Tin Shop, will allow the hot humid air from the dryer to be ducted outside the house in summer, but inside the house in winter when extra heat and moisture are welcome.

The solar house uses several techniques to combat overheating in the summer. Most of the midday summer sun will be shaded by roof overhangs and exterior decks. Some of the early morning eastern sun and late afternoon western sun will be shaded by the large oak trees near the house. Other sunlight can be blocked by closing the "Paneldrapes." Finally, the upper level living-room features a low-slope cathedral ceiling rising to a ventilating skylight which opens by remote control and acts as a chimney to suck warm air out of the house.

Dick and Barbara are often asked how they plan to get their car into the garage which is on the upper level and is currently about three feet above grade. Barbara explains, "We're going to put in a retaining wall and grade the driveway up to the garage. I put the garage on the upper level to get easier access to the upstairs and so we wouldn't get a lot of drifting snow in front of the garage door in wintertime. We may still be in the market for a four-wheel drive vehicle before next winter though."

With the money saved in energy costs for their attractive solar home, a four-wheel drive vehicle should be affordable!

Dragovich Hospitalized

Stanley Dragovich, Jr., of Davis, W. Va., sustained a broken leg in an accident in Heck's parking lot April 7, and was a patient in Garrett Memorial Hospital for three days.

It was erroneously stated in last week's edition of The Republican that the boy had sustained bruises and a bump on his head, and had not been hospitalized.

Ford Pickup Pulls Disappearing Act

Members of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department were called to investigate the larceny of a vehicle from the Foodland parking lot April 15.

According to police, Virgil Hanlin, Althouse Hill, Gorman, had parked his pickup in the lot, and the vehicle was missing when he returned one-half hour later. The doors were locked and windows rolled up, and the keys were not left inside the truck, according to police.

The following morning, Mr. Hanlin called the sheriff's department to report that the truck had been found — in his own driveway, and was undamaged.

Value of the now-you-see-it, now-you-don't truck, an F-150 Ford, was set at $7,000.

Renting an apartment can be yet another of life's traumatic experiences.

When apartment hunting you should check the classified section of your newspaper, — that is if you can decipher the ads. Real estate agents and landlords have their own advertising code and it takes a WWII decoding veteran to translate a "For Rent" ad. As a public service, I will attempt to decipher some of the more common terms and abbreviations.

1. w/frplc. — "With fireplace." This means that the damaged area from last year's grease fire has never been repaired.

2. 1½ bths. — The one-and-a-half baths generally means the previous tenants have removed half the plumbing fixtures in the second bathroom.

3. fenced yd., kds/pts ok — this means that children and pets are welcome, providing they're kept in the fenced yard.

4. no security, $120 mo. — You might assume this landlord doesn't require a deposit. Wrong. For $120 a month, "no security" means you will be living in the Hell's Kitchen section of Chicago.

5. rustic — "rustic" means that the leg of the upstairs bathtub protrudes through the kitchen ceiling.

6. all apl. furnshd. — "all appliances furnished" is right — a cooler, two bags of ice, a wash pan, and five cans of Sterno.

7. 4 br, Cape Cod — does not mean a four bedroom Cape Cod style home. Cape Cod is where the house is located.

8. Colonial home — They're right again. Your new abode was erected during the formation of the original 13 colonies. It's going to be a race to see who gets this house first, you or the historical society.

I was fortunate enough to find a really nice apartment in Oakland. However, the rental situation in Morgantown, where I moved from, is not so rosy. The house my roommates and I shared in Morgantown was a real monstrosity, divided into two apartments. The other houses in the area were well kept and of several different styles — Colonial, American Tudor, New England clapboard . . . . ours was Early American Eye-sore.

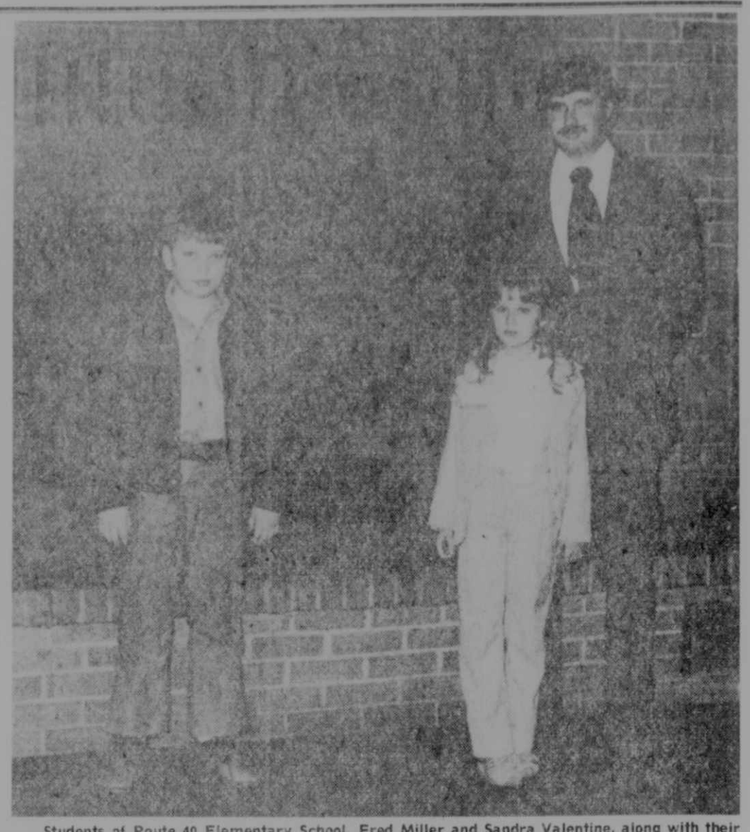
The house had a basement for storage, but none of us were brave enough to go down there. It resembled an abandoned set from "Night of the Living Dead" complete with stagnant pools of water, fungus, mildew and bugs.

The bathroom shed its tile periodically, the sinks were perpetually stopped up, the linoleum squares were loose, the windows were drafty, the living room rug had huge bumps in it, the painted-over wallpaper was hanging in places, the hallway ceiling fell down . . . . . and the combined rent on the house was only $360 — what a bargain!

Deputies Checking Destructions Of Property Incidents

Several incidents concerning destructions of property are currently under investigation by members of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department. Various other investigations were also started during the past few days in connection with larcenies and breakings and enterings.

Larry Simmons, Route 1, Oakland, reported April 8 that around midnight, the porch lights of his residence had been shot out, apparently by persons with air rifles.



Stanley Wood, Route 4, Deer Park, reported April 6 that unknown persons along the roadway, using an air rifle had shot at his vehicle as he drove along Route 219 north of Sand Flat April 6. His windshield was broken in the incident. Estimated loss value was set at $125.

Bill Sisler, of Bill's Marina, Glendale Road, reported that during the night of April 15, someone had defaced his business sign with spray paint. Value of the sign was set at $300.

William D. Wood, Jr., Glasgow, Va., reported April 12 that between 8 p.m. and midnight, someone had removed a CB radio valued at $100 from his tractor-trailer parked at the Accident Amoco. Entry was gained through the driver's door of the tractor.

Charles Moses, Route 4, Deer Park, reported that someone had broken the glass in a back door of his residence and had taken his stereo and two speakers. Also missing were two silver dollars. Total loss value was estimated at $170.

A breaking and entering was reported to the sheriff's department April 7 by John Harry Crocker, Youghiogheny Mountain Resort. Mr. Crocker told deputies that between March 28 and April 7 someone had broken a window in his garage and entered, taking a six-gallon container full of gasoline.

Students of Route 40 Elementary School, Fred Miller and Sandra Valentine, along with their principal, Patrick R. Delaney, presented a flowering crab sappling to Camp Hickory to commemorate Arbor Day. Children from the Crellin, Red House, Loch Lynn, Dennett Road, Bloomington, Accident, Friendsville, Grantsville, Yoder, Route 40, and Broad Ford elementary schools raised money through various fund raising efforts to purchase the trees.

Low Mileage Not Necessarily Sign Of Good Quality

DETROIT (UPI) — Used-car buyers may be in for trouble if they lean too heavily on low mileage as a sign of quality, an auto parts executive said today.

"Mileage can no longer be viewed as the determining factor in car condition," said Earle H. Fulford, vice president of engineering for Fram Automotive Division.

"Severe driving is what threatens long car life, and as the fine print in the car manuals reveals, most of us treat our cars severely — whether the mileage is high or not."

In fact, Fulford said, low mileage can be a sign of severe wear and tear on an engine.

"When a car has only gone 14,000 miles in three years, you can be pretty sure it was used primarily for short, infrequent trips," he said. "That kind of stop and go operation is really wearing on a vehicle because the engine doesn't get up to its normal temperature."

Severe use, Fulford said, is often defined as including extensive idling or low-speed operation, trailer towing, driving short distances in consistently cold temperatures and driving in dusty conditions.

When the engine is running cold, he said, condensation and sludge form in the oil in the crankcase, accelerating engine wear and resulting in a premature valve job or even a complete overhaul.

During short, cold trips, spark plugs don't get hot enough to burn off harmful carbon deposits which gradually accumulate on plug surfaces, resulting in fouling of plugs and poor engine performance, Fulford said.

by jim willis

Most animals have a well-developed sense of curiosity. They investigate their surroundings by smelling, tasting and touching. This curiosity, so amusing in kittens and puppies, can also result in poisoning, burns, even electric shock.

The most common household hazard for pets is poisoning. Older animals chew objects out of boredom; younger pets, if they're hungry or teething.

Inside the home, pets (usually cats) become ill after chewing the leaves of your diffenbachia, philodendron or other inherently poisonous plants. Dogs pick up lead poisoning from chewing on old paint, plaster, linoleum or putty.

When pets wander outside, it's not uncommon for them to drink antifreeze (a rather sweet-tasting compound), eat garbage baited with rodent pellets or taste various lubricants. When you're using potentially dangerous chemicals, it's best to keep your pet elsewhere until the job is finished.

Cats are particularly susceptible to poisoning when grooming themselves. They can absorb considerable amounts of toxic material attempting to lick fresh paint or tar from the fur. You should remove these products with a cloth dipped in some paint remover or kerosene. Just make sure you rinse the cat's fur or feet thoroughly. Kerosene and paint remover are poisonous compounds themselves.

Sometimes pets are accidentally poisoned through mistaken good intentions of their owners. You should not try to treat your pet with a medicine designed for human use without consulting your veterinarian first. Aspirin, so helpful for arthritis in humans and dogs, is very toxic to cats. Also, your pet may have a bad reaction if you try to eliminate mites or fleas with your favorite plant insecticide.

It's difficult to describe in a short space all symptoms of poisoning that your pet might show. In some cases, symptoms appear suddenly and dramatically in the form of convulsions, vomiting or labored breathing. In other cases, when a pet has absorbed small amounts of lead or another chemical over a long time, symptoms may appear gradually. You might notice signs of abdominal pain, restlessness or trembling.

If you suspect your pet is poisoned, call your veterinarian. Some poisons enter the bloodstream almost immediately; any delay in getting medical aid could prove fatal. If you know what the pet has eaten, tell the veterinarian over the phone. He or she may suggest a first aid measure to delay absorption of the material until you reach the office.

Oakland-Mt. Lake Lions Observe Charter Night

Members of the Oakland-Mt. Lake Park Lions club held their 37th annual Charter Night April 14 at Alpine Lake Resort near Terra Alta.

Following the meal, Paige Shanklin, master of ceremonies, introduced special guests and recognized two charter members, Robert Stanton and Harold H. Harned, who were present.

Mr. Stanton then presented remarks on the 37th annual observance of charter night.

Musical entertainment was presented after dinner by Allegheny Express, a barbershop quartet from Cumberland including Dr. Jack Harvey, a former county resident and Dave Callis, Mt. Lake Park. Music for dancing was by the Al Titus Band from Morgantown, W. Va.

GCC Lakers Split Weekend Games Against Allegany And Dundalk

Pete Shambreskis' two run homer in the bottom of the fifth inning helped Allegany Community College hold on to a 6-5 victory over the GCC Lakers Saturday on the Trojan's diamond. The loss was the sixth in 23 games for the Lakers.

ACC went on the scoreboard 2-0 in the third when Greg Welker hit a triple and took home on a bunt by Brian Femi.

The Trojans gained four runs in the fifth inning when Ron O'Reiily doubled and scored on a single by Bucky Cecil who reached second on the throw-in. Cecil scored when Femi got on base with an error and Shambreskis followed with a double.

Garrett sparked in the seventh inning with a pair of runs as Hornick walked and McGarvey singled, and both runners moved up on an infield out. Hornick scored when Filosemi got aboard on an error and McGarvey succeeded on a fielder's choice play.

The Lakers regrouped for three runs in the eighth when McGory, Kaufman and Walbolt all drew bases on balls, loading the bases, and McGarvey walked sending McGory home. Molec relieved McCombs and Varner sent a sacrifice fly that plated Kaufman. Filosemi singled home Walbolt, closing the score to 6-5, but then Barkey grounded out to Welker at third to end the inning.

Malec got the Lakers out 1-2-3 in the ninth to insure the win.

The GCC Lakers split a twinbill Saturday, beginning with an 8-4 victory over Dundalk Community College. GCC didn't fare as well in the second game as Dundalk's Jeff Butler pitched the Lakers a 3-1 loss in the nightcap.

Bret Hillegas, pitching for GCC won his third game with out a loss, fanned six, and gave away only seven hits in the first game. Tim Hornick assisted with two singles which accounted for four runs.

The split dropped the Lakers to an 18-7 overall record.

Cheerleaders Will Attend Golden Camp At Frostburg State

The Southern High Freshman Cheerleaders have announced plans to attend the Golden Eagle Cheerleading Camp, to be held July 14-17 at Frostburg State College.

In order that uniforms may be purchased, the cheerleaders are conducting the raffle of several items donated by local businesses, including make-up, plants, craft kits, radio, sun glasses and tennis balls. Those local businesses contributing these items include Webers Florists, Green Acres Garden Center, The Decorator's Den, Davidson's Army-Navy Store, Helbig's Sport Shop, Arts-n-Crafts, Radio Shack and Hecks.

Other fund raising projects are being planned to help defray camp expenses.

Coach Stemple Resigns As SHS Basketball Coach

Dick Travis, Supervisor of Physical Education and Athletics of Garrett County, has announced the resignation of Don Stemple as Basketball Coach at Southern High School.

During Coach Stemple's five year tenure as varsity coach, he compiled a total of 73 wins against 46 losses. Under his direction Southern's basketball team has ranked third or better in the Cumberland area, runner up two years in District I of Maryland, and runner up in the Maryland State Tournaments, in 1977, losing to Gwynn Park in the final game.

Mr. Travis stated that applications for the position are being accepted at the present time and that "filling Don's shoes" would be a difficult task. He also indicated that Don was not only a great basketball coach, but was an outstanding example for his teams to "look up to."

Spring Gobbler Season Now Open

Maryland's Spring Gobbler season for bearded turkeys began Monday, April 24, according to Bernard Halla, Wildlife Management Chief of the Department of Natural Resources.

A 12-day season, which closes Saturday, May 6, has a bag limit and possession limit of one bearded bird only.

The spring season is open in Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick, Montgomery, Harford and Dorchester Counties. Hunting hours are from one-half hour before sunrise until 12 noon local time.

The use of rifles, dogs, electronic calls, permanent blinds or organized drives is unlawful.

Harvests are expected to be fair to good this year in most areas. It is expected about 125 birds will be taken, even though the past winter was unusually severe in Garrett County.

Sportsmen should use caution and hunt gobblers only. Maryland law requires that a harvested turkey have a visible beard.

Gobblers can be readily identified by the beard, the vivid red wattles, and the powder blue head with a small white skull cap. Normally gobblers also will be strutting. Hunters should be sure of their target to avoid taking a hen.

Fishing Contest To Begin May 1

Area fishermen are readying themselves for two upcoming angling events, the Maryland Bass Federation Qualifying Tournament and the Garrett County Fishing Contest.

The weekly fishing contest co-sponsored by Johnny's Bait House and the Deep Creek Lake — Garrett County Promotion Council will begin May 1. Winners are named weekly with citations being awarded to each weekly winner and trophies to the season winners.

Categories for the contest are Largemouth Bass, Smallmouth Bass, Chain Pickerel, Crappie, Walleye, Yellow Perch, Trout and Northern Pike. The contest runs through September 30.

Also scheduled on Deep Creek Lake, is the Maryland Bass Federation Qualifying Tournament, May 19 and 20. The tournament is open to all active Maryland Bass Federation Clubs.

Five anglers will be chosen from this tournament to compose the State Team that will represent Maryland in the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society's Team Championship scheduled later this year. All catches in the tournament will be released with the Department of Natural Resources on hand to insure the proper handling of the fish.

At the present time, a large number of native trout are being caught in Garrett County waters such as the Savage River, Bear Creek and the Youghiogheny River. Catches of Yellow Perch, Smallmouth Bass Walleye, Chain Pickerel are also being caught from Deep Creek Lake.

The month of May is expected to bring abundant catches of Crappie, Bluegill, Largemouth Bass and Smallmouth Bass, with fly-fishing for trout being excellent for the beginning of the Garrett County Fishing Contest.

Garrett County fishing has long had the reputation of being excellent, with the present Maryland record for Northern Pike set here last summer when Charlie Craver of McHenry snagged a 44½ inch, 19½ pound Pike from Deep Creek Lake.

Joe Patterson played four innings to gain the victory.

Hillegas put Alco on the scoreboard with his homer in the first inning, Poland singled, stole second and rode home on Eirich's first two-bagger. The Rams returned a run in the third when Mickey Chapman doubled and came home on an error.

Allegany brought the score to 4-1 with two runs in the fourth with Jon Midgarden smacking a triple and a walk by Marshall Wayland. Midgarden raced home on a wild pitch and Wayland took second, later gaining home base.

Garrett Lakers' Loss To ACC Drops Seasonal Record To 17-5

In a surprise turnaround, Allegany Community College downed Garrett Community College, 8-4, Thursday on the Lakers' diamond.

The Trojans were dwindling 4-3 in the top of the eighth with two down when Rick Bridges singled and headed for home on an O'Reilly out-of-the-park hit.

The Lakers had taken the 4-3 lead into the eighth on a single in the fifth when Mark Martini drew a walk, moved to third on a single by Rex Walbolt and scored on a ground out.

The Lakers had taken a 3-2 lead in the inning on the basis of a three-run third. Greg McGory walked, and strolled to third on a double by Martini, Walbolt drove in both players with a double and Tim Hornick brough Walbolt in with a single.

ACC tied the game in the fifth when Welker reached on a two-base error and scored on a Corbin double. The Trojans had gotten single runs in the first and third. In the third Corbin walked, traveled to second on a fielder's choice and scored on the first of three singles by Grantsville native, Dave Bender.

ACC added three insurance runs in the ninth when Buck Cecil scored on a free pass, moving up on an infield single by Greg Welker and advancing to third when Mike Corbin drew a pass to load the bases. The runners all advanced on a wild pitch and then Pete Shambreskis pushed over the inning's second run with a sacrifice as Tim Cambell completed the final run.

Metcalfe blanked the Lakers over the final four frames to gain the win upping the Trojans seasonal record to 10-2.

The Lakers are now 17-5.

Cancer Crusade Will Continue Through April

The American Cancer Society's educational and fund-raising Crusade began April 1 in Garrett County. Under the direction of chairmen Pauline Parrack and Pauline Faucett, nearly 100 volunteers will go door-to-door asking for funds to support the ACS three-fold program of research, education, and service.

In addition to asking for funds, The ACS Crusaders will be distributing a pamphlet about "The Cancer Nobody Talks About" — Colorectal cancer. The pamphlet explains how residents can help detect this disease when it is in an early, highly curable stage by taking advantage of a simple diagnostic test — the "Hemoccult" test.

The Hemoccult test is a self-test to detect hidden blood in the stool, an early warning signal of a number of intestinal problems including colorectal cancer. The test is a simple painless procedure that can be done in the privacy of one's home. It requires collecting tiny stool samples, placing them on paper slides in the test kits, and returning them for reading.

As a community service, the American Cancer Society will be offering the test kits free of charge at all area Health Department offices, Gregg's Pharmacy, Englander's Pharmacy, Proudfoot's Pharmacy, and Deist Pharmacy beginning April 1st. The completed test kits should be returned to the place of purchase for reading and participants will be notified of the results by mail. All test results are confidential.

The Hemoccult test is not a complete test for colorectal cancer. It can only detect the presence of blood. If a Hemoccult test result is positive, further testing must be done by a physician to determine the cause of the bleeding.

Colorectal cancer is the most common internal cancer. It will strike some 101,000 Americans this year, 90% of them over 40 years old. But, like most cancers, the earlier it is detected and treated the more likely it is that cure will be affected. The American Cancer Society estimated that two-thirds of all cases of colorectal cancer could be cured through early detection and prompt treatment.

In addition to providing community services like the Hemoccult test, the chairmen of the Crusade in Garrett County report that 40% of the funds raised by the Garrett County Unit goes to the ACS National office for research and program development, 15% goes to the Maryland Division office for research and program development on the state level and the remaining 45% stays in Garrett County primarily for locally conducted programs of public and professional education and service to cancer patients.

Satellite Workshop Set On "Defiance"

Junior and senior high school teachers are invited to a satellite-delivered workshop on "Dealing With Defiance" which will be broadcast Monday, April 24, from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

Various discipline situations portraying students defying their teachers will start the discussion, and panelists will ask viewers for possible solutions or ways to deal with discipline problems and answer questions from the field.

All interested persons, both parents and teachers, may contact Mrs. Hilda M. Lee at the Garrett County Board of Education, to enroll.

This workshop is the second of two on "Teacher Values and Discipline" presented via satellite. The first, held April 17, was entitled "Problems in Discipline."

A $5 registration fee was charged for the two offerings. Those wishing to attend only the second session will be charged $3.

The Devil's Advocate

By Jim Willis and Kristin Milne

This week's topic, "The Wisdom/Effectiveness of Corporal Punishment" was suggested by Ann Abrahamson, Director of the Garrett County Team on Child Abuse. The readers' comments and suggestions of topics for this column are appreciated.

Con: Jim

Spare the rod and spoil the child . . . . hogwash! Personally, I think there are much more effective means of disciplining children than corporal punishment.

First of all, I don't believe that children raised in a decent home environment by dedicated parents need to be punished very often. Children are a lot smarter than we think — from very early on they know the difference between right and wrong, and they know when they've done something wrong.

Although I hope to be a parent, I am not a parent now. But it is very apparent to me that physical punishment can be dangerous and ineffective. For one thing we usually strike the child immediately after he's misbehaved — that is, when we are so angry, our temper, not our intellect, is governing the punishment. That seems a poor time for effective discipline and fertile ground for child abuse.

Any rational, intelligent person solves hundreds of demanding societal situations every year without resorting to physically corrective measure. If I "smacked" my co-workers (and vice versa) everytime someone made a mistake, the entire staff would spend most of the day on the floor. Exaggerated, but true. If we can sit down and talk with others, explain things, demonstrate ideas and provide good examples for others — then why do we have to attack our children's misbehavior through the seat of their pants? Providing a really good example for your children will have a much deeper rooted effect than a trip to the woodshed.

When your child misbehaves, wait until you've "cooled off" enough to be rational before punishing him. The cooling off period is esential, because it not only prohibits you from striking out in anger (preventing the "I didn't mean to hit him that hard" incidents) but it allows the child to squirm in discomfort, wondering what you are going to do! Once you're clearheaded enough to talk, sit the child down and in no uncertain terms explain what his mistake was and how you plan to deal with it. Then, punish him by taking away a privilege — his TV privileges, his bike, his playtime or whatever. Having to explain to his friends why he's not allowed to do this or that, is generally a lot more effective than a beating.

Tongue lashings chastise the heart, the mind and the spirit of the child. A stiff beating only numbs that anatomical bit that goes over the fence last. Carefully chosen words may remain with the child forever; physical reminders disappear quickly. Verbal corrections can be administered immediately after the fact — they don't have to "wait until your father gets home."

Pro: Kristin

To support the use of corporal punishment with children is, in the minds of what I consider to be self-righteous moralists, tantamount to child abuse. Those who believe that spanking a child is a form of child abuse are overreacting and condemning countless numbers of parents, teachers, and school administrators without first examining each case individually.

This is not to say that some misguided and mercenary souls are not at fault in abusing children. There is no question as to the number of pitiful cases seen each day by health and welfare officials, teachers, or concerned adults. But to issue a blanket indictment blaming everyone who wields a paddle in earnest, is foolish and unfounded.

Paddling is simply one option for behaviour modification. The decision of whether or not to paddle is generally contingent upon the individual at fault. Some children would react to being spanked with desired results, that is, the undesirable behaviour would stop whenever the child associates that behaviour with the paddling that follows. Other children would not attach any significant value to being paddled, thereby calling for other means of punishment more suitable to that child.

Generally, the older a child is, the less successful a paddling strategy is in deterring undesirable behaviour. It may be futile to paddle a 14-year-old boy for stealing. The punishment must fit the crime. In this instance, placing some psychological value on the act of stealing would prove more satisfactory in curbing future attempts of theft. Guilt can be an amazing tool when meting out justice!

But let us assume that this boy were paddled for his misdeed. Depending upon his disposition, he may do one of two things: laugh in the face of the person paddling him, or feel great embarrassment by the very act of being spanked (you naughty boy!), making him willing to forego taking others' property rather than suffer this ridicule at the hands of an adult.

Paddling should never be administered in a moment of extreme anger. Again, this is not to say that this never occurs, because statistics prove otherwise. However, paddling is sometimes more effective than other forms of punishment because it can be a controlled and immediate reinforcement.

At no time should paddling be used as a means to vent hostility and resentment toward the child. This brand of anger is nothing more than stored rage, accumulated over a long period of time. When it erupts, it may be triggered by an insignificant event, but that event may serve as an excuse to unleash the fury. This is when paddling becomes beating, and beating is child abuse.

No one advocates hitting children as a release for anger. Used in the proper perspective, paddling can be an effective method for disciplining some children. As long as it is, and remains a disciplinary measure, not an opportunity to relieve animosity, the danger of child abuse is not a reliable argument against paddling.

Police Check Vehicle Incident Sunday

Oakland police were called to investigate a hit and run involving property damage about 11:30 Sunday night at the corner of Oak and Third Streets.

According to a witness, a white pickup struck a U. S. mail box and the Route 219 and 135 road sign, and continued on its way.

Oakland Officer Charles Noland later found the vehicle and approached the owner, who agreed to pay damages to the mail box and SHA sign. No charges were filed in the incident.

Charges Of Battery, Illegal Weapon Bring Suspended Sentence

A suspended sentence was handed down by Judge Fred A. Thayer last Wednesday on a Frostburg man charged with battery and illegal weapon possession.

Robert Leroy Rush, RD 2, Frostburg, was first sentenced to the Department of Correction for three years. The sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for three years under supervision. Other conditions are that he is to reimburse the victim, Robert G. Passarell, for medical expenses incurred, he is prohibited the possession of firearms for the duration of the probation and consume no alcohol during the same period. He is to pay a fine of $500 within 30 days.

Rush was found guilty of assault on Passarell and possession of a loaded rifle in a motor vehicle by a jury in February. At that time Judge Thayer ordered a presentence investigation. Rush had also been charged with assault with intent to murder but the jury made no decision on this count and the court ordered a mistrial. The incident occurred at Stonehenge Inn on Star Route, Frostburg, U. S. 40, in September, just after 1 a.m.

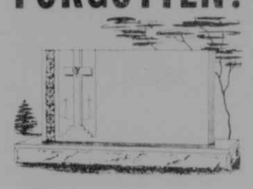
Proposed Charge By C & P Called "Outrageous"

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.'s proposed charge on excess information calls is an "outrageous rip-off" and should be denied by the Public Service Commission, Delegate Charles Blumenthal, D-Prince George's said Tuesday.

Blumenthal wrote to PSC Chairman Thomas Hatem requesting permission to intervene in the rate increase case on behalf of all C&P Telephone customers in Maryland.

C&P has asked to be allowed to charge its customers 20 cents for each telephone call to directory assistance exceeding 12 per month.

"This is an outrageous rip-off," Blumenthal said. "They have always included this service in their regular rate schedule. It is a necessary service because all listings are not found in their directory."



The 1977 legislature passed a bill to prohibit charges for directory assistance, but it was vetoed by suspended Gov. Marvin Mandel.

Blumenthal said free directory assistance is needed because many people cannot read the small print in telephone books and new listings are not put in the directories.

"If they — the telephone company — are allowed to get away with this rip-off, they should be required to issue a proper magnifying glass with all of their directories," he said.

C&P said 22 states, including Virginia, Delaware and Pennsylvania, have similar directory charging plans.

Former Maryland Delegate To Be Tried May 15

BALTIMORE (UPI) — George Santoni, former Maryland delegate convicted of extortion last May, will be tried May 15 on charges of conspiring to steal mailing lists from a New York firm.

U.S. District Judge Alexander Harvey II set the trial date after refusing to dismiss an indictment against Santoni and Edward Kahn, a New York businessman, who were both charged on one count of conspiring to copy the mailing lists of Annual Reports, Inc., a New York based advertising business.

Kahn is accused of transferring the mailing lists from about 150 of the firm's cassette tapes onto blank tapes provided by Santoni in January and February 1976, according to the indictment.

The indictment charged Kahn and Santoni planned to use the stolen material to start their own company.

Harold Glaser, Santoni's lawyer, argued that the indictment stemmed from the same events that led to Santoni's extortion conviction last year and would violate his protection under double jeopardy.

Last May Santoni, 38, was convicted of extorting $14,600 from the Municipal Chemical Co., a front operation set up by the FBI, in a kickback scheme to provide city contracts. He is serving a five year prison term.

Glaser said "It seems very clear, your honor, that we shouldn't sentence twice for the same thing. This matter came out at trial."

He said Santoni couldn't testify at the extortion trial because he was afraid the mailing list scheme would become known.

Harvey said Santoni was not being prosecuted twice for the same events because the evidence required on the current charge will be different.

He said the indictment charges a different crime against a different business firm in a different city with a different co-defendant.

Harvey also rejected arguments for dismissal of the charge against Kahn by his lawyer.

Senator Suggests Washington, D.C. Be Returned to Maryland

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three Senate Liberals Monday urged adoption of House-passed legislation that would give the District of Columbia full voting rights in Congress — but a fourth senator suggested returning it to Maryland.

Sens. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Edward Brooke, R-Mass., endorsed the proposed constitutional amendment as hearings began before the Senate Constitutional Amendments subcommittee.

But Sen. James McClure, D-Idaho, said the best proposal would be to return the non-federal land in the District to Maryland, "thus forming those residents into citizens of Maryland with representation by the honorable men of that state."

Kennedy said, "The question is one of simple justice for the 700,000 citizens of the nation's capital.

"Indeed, the goal is remarkable and unusual only in the sense that it has been so flagrantly denied for so long to so many citizens," Kennedy added. "In a nation that was founded on the principle of representative government and that has prided itself on the strength and vitality of its democracy, it is a travesty of history that the District of Columbia has no voice in Congress."

Brooke said, "In recent years we have made substantial progress in broadening the basis of representative government and extending the franchise in the United States.

"But this glaring piece of unfinished business remains," he added. "Fundamental concerns of justice and equality demand that the residents of the District be granted the right to elect representatives."

Bayh, the subcommittee's chairman, said, "Let us put an end to this glaring contradiction in our philosophical principles. Let us not make a mockery of our democracy.

"To do less, would be an unpardonable miscarriage of our oath of office, as well as a blatant miscarriage of justice," he added.

Blue Cross Claims Salary Hikes Not Due To Surplus

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A spokesman for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Maryland said Tuesday last year's $23.2 million surplus was not directly responsible for salary increases of up to 6.5 percent for top company executives.

Company spokesman Nicholas D. Greaves said the salaries were based on recommendations from a national consulting firm and were appropriate to bring those salaries more nearly into line with those of positions of similar responsibility in other organizations.

He said salary increases and the surplus for the two non-profit organizations, $18.9 million of which came from rates paid by its 1.5 million group plan subscribers, were filed March 10 with the state Insurance Division.

He said the surplus would be used to help keep rate increases down in 1978.

The salary of Thomas H. Sherlock, president of the non-profit health insurer, increased over a four-year period from $42,384 in 1973 to $73,098 in 1977.

During 1977 the company created six new vice presidents positions, bringing the total of Blue Cross executives who earned more than $30,000 a year to 24.

Greaves said the creation of the new positions resulted from "expansion of the business and expansion of responsibility."

Francois L. Quinson, a partner of Hay Associates, the Philadelphia firm which prepared the report, said the salaries of the Blue Cross officials are "no greater than comparable salaries of top executives in other industries.

"This judgment is based on extensive and continuing research by our firm concerning competitive practices among hundreds of client organizations in all types of industries, including the insurance industry, throughout the nation," he said.

Sherlock's salary is determined by the 27-member board of directors of Blue Cross. Other executive salaries are set either by the Blue Cross board, the Blue Shield board of directors or Sherlock.

Energy Department Will Investigate Low Octane Rates

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — The U.S. Department of Energy will investigate the decision by 18 Maryland gasoline companies to stop supplying high-octane, or premium, gas to motorists in the state, state Comptroller Louis Goldstein said Tuesday.

Last month, 15 major oil companies announced their intention to stop marketing gasoline with an octane rating of 95.0 or higher — which is Maryland's definition of premium gasoline.

Goldstein said Tuesday three more companies, Chevron, Gulf and Texaco, have joined in dropping the octane rating for their premium gasoline.

Only Sunoco and Mobil continue to offer gasoline with an octane rating of at least 95.0, he said.

"Maryland was the first state in the nation to bring this octane drop to the attention of the federal Department of Energy," said Goldstein. "Using the most impartial national figures, we estimate there are approximately 162,000 automobiles in Maryland which actually require premium gasoline for efficient operation."

He said the federal agency has notified him that it will investigate the lowering of the octane levels to determine if it violates federal regulations.

Acting Gov. Lee Pays $14,000 In Federal Taxes

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Acting Gov. Blair Lee III Monday filed a 1977 financial disclosure statement showing he earned $65,000 last year and paid about $14,000 in Federal taxes.

Suspended Gov. Marvin Mandel did not file a statement and the Financial Disclosure Board is investigating whether Mandel is exempt because he did not serve as governor for the full year due to his political corruption trial and conviction.

Lee filed his 1977 income tax return, although it is not required. He listed $44,733 in wages, $162 in interest, $6,150 in dividends, and $11,055 in other holdings.

He said he paid about $14,000 in federal income taxes.

Several years ago, Lee showed his net worth as more than $2 million.

State Comptroller Louis Goldstein showed land holdings of more than 3,000 acres, mostly in Calvert County near Prince Frederick, his home.

Attorney General Francis Burch, who recently filed a statement showing his net worth at more than $1 million, listed a home purchased for $40,000 and residences in Ocean City, bought for $67,000, and Vedra, Fla., for $85,000.

He also has farm and commercial property in Florida and Maryland.

Burch has interests in 23 corporations.

State Treasurer William James disclosed a farm in Havre de Grace purchased for $28,500 and residence in Joppa listed at $5,000.

Secretary of State Fred Wineland showed a home in Silesia worth $100,000 and a farm in Charles County that was given him by his parents.

Clergy Disqualification Law Struck In Washington By Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today struck down 8-0 Tennessee's law that had barred clergymen from serving in the state's 1977 constitutional convention.

The state's ban also applies to service in the state legislature, but that section was not directly involved in today's case.

The justices had four opinions on the issue, but all agreed that the law is unconstitutional.

Justice Harry Blackmun was ill at the time arguments were heard in this case, and he abstained from voting today.

Disqualification of ministers from legislative office stems from old English law and the fear that a clergy-dominated parliament would vote large public sums for the established church.

In this country, 14 states once had clergy disqualification laws but all except Tennessee's have been repealed.

The test case was brought to the court by the Rev. Paul McDaniel, a black, who is pastor of the Second Missionary Baptist Church in Chattanooga. McDaniel was elected a delegate to the 1977 state constitutional convention from the 29th House District of Hamilton County.

A runner-up in the delegate contest, Selma Cash Paty, sued to get McDaniel disqualified and won in the Tennessee Supreme Court. But Justice Potter Stewart stayed the effect of the decision so that McDaniel could serve while the case was on appeal.

Three other ministers won delegate seats but only McDaniel was challenged.

Intervention In Africa Causing "Deep Concern"

LONDON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance today expressed "deep concern" over large-scale Soviet and Cuban intervention in Africa only hours before leaving for Moscow to conduct a new round of arms limitation talks.

Although the Moscow talks were expected to focus on strategic arms issues, reporters were told that Vance intended to make the presence of Communist forces in Africa an issue.

He has consistently refused to link the SALT talks with other issues, while warning the Soviets their actions in Africa will certainly affect the attitude of the U.S. Congress when it comes time to ratify an arms agreement.

"We are deeply concerned that the Soviet Union and Cuba are unwilling to recognize the fundamental principle often stated by African nations that they can solve their own problems without the use of external force," Vance said.

He outlined the world situation for a meeting of the Central Treaty Organization — a military and economic alliance of the United States, Britain, Turkey and Iran.

His speech came shortly before he was scheduled to leave for Moscow for two days of talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, which could also involve Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

On the Middle East, Vance told the CENTO meeting that if the present stalemate continues, "the inevitable regression towards conflict will be difficult to halt — with the most profound consequences for us all."

Reporters accompanying Vance were told that the United States will insist in Moscow that two fundamental issues will have to be settled or there can be no SALT II agreeement.

The issues were described as Russian testing and development of a new generation of large missiles and the Soviet Backfire bomber.

Personal Income Rises In March

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Personal income rose 1.2 percent in March for the largest monthly gain since December, the government said yesterday.

The March improvement offered additional evidence the economy is rebounding from the effects of the bad winter weather, the Commerce Department said.

The increase in March was the biggest since the 1.3 percent improvement last December. Personal income advanced only 0.2 percent in January and 0.5 percent in February as heavy snow and rainfall plagued much of the nation.

The government said payrolls in every sector of the economy showed improvement last month, with one notable exception.

Farmers income declined $900 million and has now fallen by $11.4 billion during the first three months of 1978.

Overall, personal income increased by $19.4 billion to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.65 trillion, the department said.

Wages and salaries moved upward by $15.8 billion compared with an $8.8 billion gain in February, the department said.

"The sharp step-up reflected a recovery from the effects of the severe winter weather, which held down the February increase," the department said.

Billy Carter To Be Released From Hospital Thursday

AMERICUS, Ga. (UPI) — Billy Carter, the president's youngest brother, was temporarily released from an Americus hospital Tuesday night to keep a civic club speaking engagement.

Carter returned to the hospital by 11 p.m. for further tests. Hospital officials said they expected the president's brother to be released Thursday.

The rotund fun-loving Carter, who admits to heavy beer drinking and smoking, told the Manchester group "contrary to what the press is saying, I am not dead.

"Reports that I suffered a severe head injury were false," Carter told the Kiwanis club.

He said he had recently fallen and struck his head on a table while in Pittsburgh "but that's not the reason I was hospitalized."

Carter said he was in "good spirits" and was in the hospital for a "routine checkup."

Carter's physician, Dr. Paul Broun, said Tuesday Carter is in "excellent health" and is undergoing a "general checkup."

Broun also denied reports of a severe head injury.

"Billy got up one evening while on the road, ran into something in the dark and hit his forehead," said Broun. He said the wound was only slight and required no stitches.

Carter was admitted this week, Broun said, because it was one of the breaks in his travels as a guest celebrity.

Resignation Of Lebanon's Selim Is Announced

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon's first post-civil war government resigned today amid a controversy over last week's fighting between Christian militiamen and the Syrian peace-keeping troops, the official Beirut Radio said.

The resignation of Prime Minister Selim al Hoss — although rumored in the press several days ago — appeared to come as a surprise. Hoss had been scheduled to meet with foreign correspondents for a routine luncheon but bowed out at the last minute.

He had confirmed his intention to attend the meeting only this morning.

Hoss and his government of technocrats took over 17 months ago after 19 months of civil war between Christians and a Moslem coalition of Lebanese and Palestinian leftists.

Since then, he has worked feverishly, but with no visible success, to seal a "national entente" to end the friction that triggered the civil war.

Hoss and President Elias Sarkis have fallen victim to veiled rhetorical attacks from all sides in their search for a national entente despite repeated pledges by the civil war rivals to respect "legitimate authority" in the country.

Political tension rose sharply last week when Christian militiamen became embroiled in their second battle with Syrian peace-keepers in as many months.

The government had sent the Syrians in to end a Christian-Moslem flareup, but the fighting quickly shifted to a Syrian-Christian battle.

Christian leaders attacked the government for ordering the Syrians in and demanded an official explanation.

Three days ago Hoss offered to "resign if this would help things," the newspaper An Nahar reported at the time. Hoss denied the report, but top government sources said it was true.

"But both Sarkis and Hoss agreed the resignation would simply aggravate the situation, especially since it would probably trigger an explosive war of words in the search for a new cabinet everyone would accept."

The resignation came after Israeli military sources said Israel would surrender half of occupied south Lebanon within two weeks and has no intention of retaining any part of the area if U.N. troops can guarantee they will keep Palestinian guerrillas out of the region.

Explodes Bomb

PARIS (UPI) — France has exploded a neutron bomb in the Pacific in a top-secret test of the controversial weapon, the newspaper France Soir and the magazine Le Point reported today.

French military experts said they believed it was the first time a neutron bomb had been set off anywhere.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman declined comment today on whether the United States has previously set off a neutron warhead.

Goldwater Says People Angry Over Panama Treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater said today the American people are angry about Senate ratification of the Panama Canal treaties, and any Republican who supported those pacts can forget about trying for the 1980 GOP presidential nomination.

Goldwater, interviewed on the CBS Morning News, said senators up for re-election this year will have a hard time explaining why they voted for the treaties.

"The American people are very incensed about it," he said.

Asked about 1980, and the potential GOP presidential candidacy of Republican Leader Howard Baker, Goldwater said: "As far as a presidential nominee, I think he's dead. Not just because of this, but the leadership role that he took in it. It incensed a lot of Republicans."

But Goldwater said he had to "admire the courage of the man for having done it."

The Arizona Republican and GOP presidential nominee 14 years ago also said he thinks the tough talk coming from Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos about what he would do if the treaties were not ratified was demogogic.

Torrijos was quoted as saying a defeat for the treaties would have forced him to take military action to forcibly wrest the waterway from U.S. control.

"Omar Torrijos: he's a rather nice guy," said Goldwater. "I know him, but with 1,600 men, he couldn't do anything."

He said Torrijos made such empty threats "because the people of Panama like to hear it."

The 68-32 vote on the treaties Tuesday crossed party lines and conservative-liberal philosphies, Goldwater said.

Nation's Economy Dips .6 Percent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hampered by bad weather and the coal strike, the nation's economy fell by 0.6 percent during the first quarter of 1978 for the worst performance in three years, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said the Gross National Product for the first three months of 1978 showed negative growth for the first time since the first quarter of 1975 — the end of the recession.

As a rule of thumb, economists say that six consecutive months — or two quarters — of negative growth constitute a recession. But the administration has projected a substantial improvement for the current quarter which began April 1.

The 0.6 percent decline during the first quarter compared with a 3.8 percent increase during the final quarter of 1977 and a 5.1 percent jump during last year's third quarter.

Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps, in an unusual move, scheduled a news conference following the Commerce Department report to explain the latest GNP figures.

The GNP is a measure of the nation's overall goods and services, adjusted for inflation, and is considered the broadest measure of the nation's overall economic health.

The main reason for the decline was a 1.3 percent drop in consumer spending, the department said.

Consumers had more money to spend — per capita income was estimated to be up $137 to $6,427 — but inflation bit more sharply into it. The GNP inflation rate was 7 percent compared with an average of about 5 percent for final six months of 1977.

There were also higher Social Security taxes for all workers, lower payments to farmers and less income for construction and production workers due to the coal strike and cold weather. These elements all led to the deepest cut in consumer spending since the end of the recession.

The GNP is defined as the total output of nation's goods and services, adjusted for inflation. It is considered the broadest measurement of the overall economic health of the United States.

Economists say that in general the economy must expand its output by an average of 4 percent a year to create enough jobs to keep the unemployment rate from rising.

The Commerce Department said the GNP for the first quarter stood at $1.358 trillion compared with $1.360 trillion for the final quarter of 1977.

For the past several weeks, administration officials, including Mrs. Kreps, have been warning that the first quarter GNP would be poor, possibly showing no growth or a weak improvement. However, the size of the decline came as a surprise.

Dow Jones Has Mixed Opening, Stocks Rebounding

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks, trying to rebound from their first loss in four record-shattering sessions, opened mixed today as investors weighed a 0.6 percent decline in the nation's first-quarter gross national product.

Trading was heavy. The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 6.85 points Tuesday, was ahead 0.34 point to 803.62 shortly after the 10 a.m. opening. Tuesday's loss followed a three-day 43.83-point advance.

Declines led advances, 415 to 397, among the 1,298 issues crossing the tape in the early going.

The GNP decline was the first since the 9.6 plunge in 1975's first quarter confirmed the nation was in a severe recession. Most observers had expected the government's report since Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps expressed concerns about the figures two weeks ago.

Early turnover amounted to about 2.8 million shares. Tuesday's Big Board volume of 38.9 million shares was down sharply from the record 63,5 million shares traded in Monday's session. A total of 186,320,000 shares were traded in the Thursday-Tuesday period, the heaviest four-day turnover in NYSE history.

State Courts May Set Alien Tuitions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court said today it is up to state courts to decide whether state universities can charge state resident tuition to children of aliens employed by international organizations.

The justices decided 7-2 that federal law does not bar the "nonimmigrant aliens" from adopting the United States as their legal home. But they said the question of whether they can establish a legal "domicile" in a particular state in the meantime is up to state courts.

They told the Maryland Court of Appeals to decide this question in a case involving challenges to the University of Maryland's policy of refusing to let children of employees of the World Bank and other international agencies pay the cheaper in-state tuition rate.

Aliens who work for international organizations and their families hold G-4 nonimmigrant status and are not required to pay state and federal taxes on their salaries.

The university's policy of giving them the more costly out-of-state rather than in-state tuition rate was challenged by three families who own homes in Maryland and whose children attended classes at the College Park campus.

The students are: Juan Moreno, a Paraguayan, and Juan Otero, a Bolivian, whose fathers work for the Inter-American Development Bank; and Clare Hogg, a British subject whose father works for the World Bank.

A federal judge told the university it could not deny them in-state tuition status solely because of an assumption that holders of G-4 visas can never establish a legal "domicile" in Maryland.

He said the aliens holding G-4 visas could as a matter of both federal law and Maryland common law become residents of the state.

The Supreme Court, in an opinion by Justice William Brennan, agreed Congress intended to allow "nonrestricted nonimmigrant aliens to adopt the United States as their domicile."

It noted Immigration and Naturalization Service regulations allow G-4 aliens to be admitted for an indefinite period — so long as they are connected with international organizatioins.

It told the Maryland Court of Appeals to decide the remaining question needed to resolve this case — whether G-4 aliens can become legal residents of Maryland. It said that is strictly a question of state law.

Proxmire Denounces Mental Health Study

WASHINGTON —(UPI)) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., denounced the National Institutes for Mental Health today for financing a study for the behavior and social relationships in a Peruvian brothel.

Proxmire said the study was part of a $97,000 grant which paid for an 18-month field trip to Peru by a researcher and his associate.

"The $97,000 grant went to Dr. Pierre L. van den Berghe and his associate, Dr. George P. Primov, to enable them to study ethnic and class relationships among Indians and non-Indians in several communities in the Peruvian Andes," he said.

In an article, Primov described his investigation of the brothel, including formal interviews with 21 prostitutes.

"In addition, the staff of the brothel was interviewed, especially the madam," the article added. "Prostitutes were also observed outside the brothel. By visiting the brothel at various times, it was possible to obtain a good idea of its everyday functioning."

Proxmire commented, "The article goes on to describe in great detail the brothel's everyday functioning. Perhaps a better title for the study might be 'Everything you wanted to know about a brothel in a large provincial town in Peru but were afraid to ask — if you cared at all."

The Wisconsin senator said he did not object if academic researchers want to study "Peruvian brothels or even ancient Inca vestal non-virgins.

"What I object to the federal government paying for it," he said. "With federal research budget so tight and the needs for mental research here at home, it is unbelievable that NIMH would give this project such priority and fund the field trip to Peru."

Columnist Grades Carter, C Minus

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Time magazine columnist Hugh Sidey says President Carter deserves a grade of C minus for his first year in office and now must determine how to use his presidency to "capture the minds and hearts of the American people."

Sidey, addressing a U. S. Naval Academy seminar Tuesday, said Carter's first year as president has been a time of learning and testing, but the issue now facing him is "how to be president."

"I don't disagree with many of his ultimate objectives," Sidey, a 19-year veteran at Time, said. "The problem seems to be this matter of being president - getting programs into being and capturing the minds and hearts of the American people."

Carter is the "new boy on the block" whose style of simplicity carried him through the first months in office, but now he is faced with decisions on the Mideast, Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, energy, and how to handle an independent Congress, Sidey said.

He said Carter is facing a difficult time because there is no crisis to scare the public into going along with his ideas without question.

"I give Mr. Carter a good, workmanlike C minus for his first year," said Sidey.

Sidey said Carter cannot imitate other successful presidents, but must find his own way of winning support for his ideas.

"He has less experience in managing big power than any president since Zachary Taylor," the columnist said.

Although he said it is unfair to compare Carter with past presidents, Sidey gave the midshipmen brief characterizations of those chiefs of state he reported on for Time:

—Dwight Eisenhower: "In those eight years, Dwight Eisenhower never lost the trust of the American people. He believed in us so we believed in him."

—John Kennedy: "A man preoccupied with courage; he was afraid he would be found wanting. He left a legacy of scholarship . . . but he never understood the common man."

—Lyndon Johnson: "He was the most skilled legislator this country has seen."

—Richard Nixon: "A collection of great contradictions. He slid into the abyss of Watergate - nobody else did it, he did it, it was his fault."

—Gerald Ford: "The only practicing Eagle Scout I've ever known in Washington. In those two years, he proved remarkably effective.

—Carter: "An enigma."

25 Injured In New Jersey Crash

NORTH BERGEN, N.J. (UPI) — Authorities said about 25 people were injured today in a chain-reaction crash near the Lincoln Tunnel involving five New York-bound commuter buses and two trucks.

Police from the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey said six of the injuries appeared to be serious. The others required treatment for minor scrapes at North Hudson Hospital and Riverside General Hospital, they said.

Police Capt. Michael Harrington said a bus traveling eastbound in the special express bus lane in the westbound roadway collided with a westbound truck and set off the crash.

A second bus in the express lane rammed the rear of the first bus. The crash also involved two other buses in the express lane and a bus and a truck in the westbound lanes.

The crash occurred at 8:47 a.m. on the tunnel approach from the New Jersey Turnpike.

Maryland Lowers Property Tax Rate

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — The State Board of Public Works today lowered the state property tax rate to 20 cents, a three-cent reduction.

The reduction in the state property tax from 23 cents to 20 cents is allied to a $100 million property tax relief program passed by the General Assembly.

Reducing the state property tax will cost the state about $10.8 million in lost revenues.

The money to make up the lost revenues comes from the state's $128 million surplus and the favorable revenue estimates for fiscal 1979, the board said.

The Rio cost more than a grand.

In 1853, money took America to the banks Of the Rio Grande.

In that year, the Gadsden Purchase further extended United States territory down the west bank of the mighty Rio Grande.

And established what today is the border between Mexico and the states of Arizona and New Mexico.

The cost: $10,000,000.

And Americans put up the money. By purchasing government securities.

You could bank on America back then. And you still can. By buying U.S. Savings Bonds at work. Through the Payroll Savings Plan.

That way, a little is set aside from each paycheck to buy Bonds. Automatically.

Take stock in America.

PROBLEMS BIGGER THAN YOURS

That's right!

His problems seem bigger to him than yours are to you!

Sadly, that is one of the last things we understand about our children.

But some parents do understand their children's problems. They are careful to nurture soul and spirit as well as mind and heart. The years ahead will prove them right.

The role of the Church has never been to cut the problems down to the size of the man — always to build the man up to the size of his problems.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

DOWN TO SAMARIA

Lesson for April 23, 1978

Background Scripture: Acts 8:4-40
Devotional Reading: Acts 8:26-35

The serious student of the Bible who follows the scriptures with a map may find him or herself perplexed in reading that "Philip went down to a city of Samaria and proclaimed there the Christ" (Acts 8:4). How could Philip go "down" to Samaria when every Bible map clearly shows that Samaria was located North of Jerusalem?

Rev. Althouse

Of course, if you have a topographical map or you have even been there in the Holy Land, there is no dilemma. Although Samaria is indeed North of Jerusalem (and therefore "up" from it on a map), it is lower in elevation than the Holy City. Thus, anyone going from Jerusalem to Samaria would have to go "down" from a higher to lower elevation.

Multitudes gave heed

There was, however, another sense in which one went "down" to Samaria quite apart from any concerns of topography. In the eyes of the Jews Samaria was always a step "down." Although Samaria occupied roughly the area of the old Northern Kingdom of Israel, the Jews regarded the people there as a racially-mixed polygot of people whose racial and religious purity had been dissipated forever. So greatly did they look down on the Samaritans that, although it represented the most direct route North to Galilee, it was usually avoided by Jews who took the longer way around through the Jordan Valley.

When, during his ministry, Jesus traveled through Samaria on occasion and found some response from these people, his Jewish peers were scandalized, and probably his disciples as well. Thus, Philip's trip "down" to Samaria must have caused some apprehension in the early church. There must have been those who wondered why Philip couldn't have remained in Jerusalem and Judea and worked among more "deserving" people.

There was much joy

There was even some irony in the fact that it was Philip who went to Samaria. Philip was not an apostle, but simply a man who had been chosen along with Stephen and some other Greek-speaking Jews to provide for some of the early church's material needs. He was not chosen to do any preaching or teaching. He had no rank as an evangelist, yet despite his lack of high status, his results were gratifying: "...multitudes with one accord gave heed to what was said" (8:6). Furthermore, Philip was able to perform great miracles of healing and exorcism there. Hardly the result one would have expected from a low-grade evangelist in a down-beat mission field!

Sometimes God has a way of making us come down from our lofty perches of prejudice and ego, showing us that he is in no way limited to the channels and parochialisms that seem to mean so much to us. There comes a time when each of us must go "down to Samaria."

C&P To Reduce Telephone Rates By Thirty Cents

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Maryland filed tariffs with the Maryland Public Service Commission Monday, asking for permission to reduce residential phone rates by $.30 per month and to begin charging for calls to Directory Assistance in excess of a specified allowance.

Under the plan proposed by C&P, the basic monthly rates for residential telephone service would be reduced by 30 cents. In Oakland, for example, this would mean a reduction from $8.18 to $7.88 for private, unlimited dial service.

Residentail customers would receive an allowance for each telephone line of twelve calls per month without charge to Directory Assistance. If they exceed that monthly allowance, then each additional call would cost $.20.

A survey of a random sample of residential customers taken by an independent, professional opinion research firm last November showed that 85% of the customers surveyed favored the proposed plan.

The plan applies both to calls to local Directory Assistance (411) and to calls for Directory Assistance for other locations within Maryland (1-555-1212). There would be no charge for calls to Directory Assistance outside of Maryland.

There would be no charge under the proposed tariff for calls to Directory Assistance from coin telephones, from telephones in hospitals, hotels and motels, or from mobile phones. In addition, C&P's proposal also exempts residential phone service where the customer or a member of the customer's household has a visual or physical impairment which makes them unable to use the telephone directory.

Customers would certify their own handicaps on forms provided by C&P on request. A doctor's certificate would not be necessary, unless results showed there was abuse of the "honor system."

Business customers would have a monthly allowance of three call per line, or for customers with Centrex Service, three calls for each eight Centrex main stations, before the 20 cent charge per call applied.

Extensive studies taken by C&P show that 9% of all residential customers make 12 calls or less in a given month to Directory Assistance. Under the plan proposed by C&P, these customers would save $.30 on their monthly phone bill and not be charged for calls to Directory Assistance.

C&P estimates that it would have been able to reduce Directory Assistance expenses by approximately $3.2 million in 1978 if its proposal had been in effect from the beginning of the year. That expense savings plus another $1.8 million in anticipated revenues from the per call charge all would be passed on to residential customers by the proposed reduction of $.30 in monthly rates.

C&P Vice President Thomas M. Gibbons explained, "Our purpose in seeking authority to charge for excessive calls to Directory Assistance is to reduce our expenses and pass that reduction on to our residential customers through lower rates. At the same time, customers who need to make a large volume of calls would pay their fair share of the costs of the service which they use. We think our approach is fair to everyone concerned."

Gibbons went on to point out that the anticipated reduction in calling volumes and expense will not mean the loss of jobs for regular Company employees. Reduced overtime, the use of temporary employees and regular force turnovers will make it possible to manage the change without laying off any regular operators.

If the tariffs are approved, the recorded announcement currently used on calls to 411 would be eliminated. Under another provision of the proposal, if a customer insisted on dialing "0" and having the regular "0" operator connect him with Directory Assistancce instead of dialing it himself, there would be an additional $.20 charge, since two operators are involved in completing the call. The monthly allowance would not apply to these calls.

Twenty-two states, including Delaware, Pennsylvania, and Virginia, have charging plans in effect today.

TV EVANGELIST Stan Scott, formerly a newscaster for 17 years, will be ministering at Calvary Temple, Mt. Storm, W. Va., April 28, at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Park Service Seeks Former CCC Chaplain

The Maryland Park Service is seeking a man who once served as a chaplain to an old Civilian Conservation Corps unit approximately 45 years ago.

The chaplain is being sought to take part in the second annual CCC reunion planned July 22 at Gambrill State Park in Frederick County.

Many Maryland State Parks, according William Parr, director of the state park service, were developed by CCC members during the depression days of the thirties. Men who worked at road and shelter building, land clearing, re-forestation and other tasks 45 years ago are to be honored at the reunion. A short formal program will be presented, with the main part of the day devoted to sharing photos and memories. Families are welcome and will be encouraged to attend the "bring your own" picnic.

Information about the chaplain may be given to Barbara Garner, Maryland Park Service, Tawes State Office Building, Annapolis 21401.

Farm Operators To Receive Questionnaire On Storage Space

Maryland farm operators soon will receive a questionnaire requesting information on the amount of storage space available on their farms for grain and oilseed crops, according to Paul A. Crowl, Chairperson of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS). The mail survey is being conducted to determine whether or not sufficient storage space will be available for grain placed in the reserve and the 1978 harvest.

"The success of the reserve program is dependent upon adequate storage space," Crowl said. Increased grain production and carryover stocks have necessitated more space both on and off the farm. Commercial facilities will be surveyed jointly by ASCS and the Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service (ESCS).

According to Crowl, U. S. off-farm storage is estimated at 6.6 billion bushels, and on-farm storage ranges between 7.5 and 8.5 billion bushels.

The ASCS official said the survey will give more precise figures on the facilities available for storage of all commodities. "With this information, we will attempt to determine where the handling and storage problems could show up during harvest. We must insure that grain currently under loan or in the reserve, plus that stored on the farm, does not clog distribution channels to users."

Crowl indicated that a large 1978 crop could place considerable pressure on storage facilities, particularly in areas where tight storage conditions existed last fall.

By conducting the survey, ASCS and ESCS will determine the amount of usable storage space currently located in the county, the space occupied, the number of wet storage facilities used for high moisture grain, and the amount of permanent ear corn storage space.

Dog Obedience Class Offered

In order to assure the success of the course there must be a minimum of ten students with dogs and a maximum of twenty students with dogs. The courses will be held at the McHenry Fair Ground, Show Ring, and will begin on Tuesday, May 2. The Basic Dog Obedience will be taught from 6:00 - 7:00 p.m. for a period of ten weeks. The Intermediate Course will run from 7:00 - 8:00 p.m.

Only those who have preregistered will be accepted in the class. Pre-registration for the course will be Monday, April 24, 8:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. Interested persons may register at any time before that date at the Oakland Center of the College, 104 E. Center Street. Registration fee for the course will be $35.00. Anyone entering the Fair Grounds for the Obedience Courses must enter off U. S. Route 219 and not through the field.

February Weather Apparently Affects Retailing Activity

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein reported today that Retail Sales Tax revenue for the month of March 1978, reflecting sales activity in February, totaled $43,927,139, more than 29 percent higher than revenues for the same month last year.

"If the collections are converted to the old four percent tax rate for comparison with last year's revenues, however, the increase is only 4.01 percent. This is a slower rate of growth than we have been experiencing during the current Fiscal Year, and seems to be at least partly attributable to the harsh weather conditions during the month of February," Mr. Goldstein said.

The single month slowdown has not significantly affected total sales tax revenues for the entire Fiscal Year to date, however. For the first eight months of Fiscal Year 1978, retail sales and use tax revenues amount to $412,317,387. If these revenues are converted to the old four percent tax rate, they amount to $331,711,000, and still represent a 24.3 percent increase over the $300,829,584 collected during the identical period of Fiscal Year 1977.

The categories of consumer spending showing the greatest growth during February 1978 included general merchandise purchases and taxable food and beverage purchases.

Grantsville VFD Answers 3 Calls Over The Weekend

Grantsville firemen were roused early Saturday morning to douse a house fire at the property of Mrs. Ray Hershberger on Dorsey Hotel Road.

The alarm sounded about 7 a.m. and two pumpers and two tankers went to the scene approximately one and one-half miles from Grantsville.

The fire apparently started from an overheated flue which caught attic timbers ablaze. Prompt action by the firemen eliminated major damage, and use of smoke ejectors permitted Mrs. Hershberger and son Winston to remain in the home. A small amount of water damage was listed by the firemen.

Bittinger's fire company was also called, but the fire was under control when they arrived.

On Saturday afternoon, members of the fire company answered a call for manpower to fight a brush fire near Big Run.

At 7 a.m. Sunday, the Grantsville team responded to a car fire on Maple Grove Church Road about one-half mile east of Route 495. The 1967 Ford, owned by a Mr. Bittinger, had reportedly had fire in the carburetor, but th flames were quenched b throwing a rag over the ca buretor, and the fire was ou by the time firemen arrived.

Price For State Farm Land Has Reached Plateau

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Maryland Agriculture officials say the rapid price increase for farm land has reached a plateau because of slower national increases in agricultural land value and leveling of population increases in Maryland.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture said the price of Maryland agricultural land rose 16 percent in the last year to $1,578 per acre — the third highest increase in the nation.

Larry Walker, an economist for the state Department of Agriculture, said the steady increase in Maryland farm land value since 1973 is due to increasing urbanization as farm land is sold to housing developers.

But the 9 percent national average increase and a leveling off of population increases in Maryland signal an end to the trend, Walker said.

Dr. Sidney Ishee, a University of Maryland Agriculture Professor, said it is hard to predict the trend of farmland values.

"But now I think we have reached a plateau in farm values, primarily due to the leveling off of the population, which, in turn, means there will not be as much demand for land to build residential housing," Ishee said.

Jan Eliassen, spokesman for Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore, said Maryland farm values have shown only a 5 percent increase in the last six months, an indication that agricultural land values are beginning to moderate.

Jack Matthews, executive director of the Maryland Farm Bureau, predicted a decline in farmland prices due to "efforts by counties to lock in agricultural land through growth plans."

Allegany-Garrett Committee Meets

The executive committee of the Allegany-Garrett Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association met April 2 at the Grantsville fire hall with president William (Barney) Miller presiding.

A basic course in firefighting was planned April 14 at Kitzmiller. The U. S. Department of Transportation will conduct classes covering the safe transportation of hazardous materials by motor vehicles at the CD center for fire companies for Bowling Green, LaVale, Frostburg and CD personnel May 10 from 7 to 9 p.m. Classes will also be given at the Cumberland Police-Fire building on May 11 from 1 to 3 p.m. and 8 to 10 p.m. and May 12 from 9 to 11 a.m.

It was announced that the proceeds from the Firemen's Ball April 1 now amount to $587 for the association, with proceeds from Grantsville and McCoole not in yet.

Permission was sought and given by the carnival clearance committee for a parade June 3 in conjunction with the Allegany-Garrett County Association convention at Clarysville. A parade was also approved in Grantsville June 23.

Bob Shimer reported on the special committee designated by president Miller to explore possible problem areas between Allegany and Garrett counties. The committee met with Garrett companies March 29 at Eastern Garrett County, and each company was asked to obtain information on needs of the association to keep the counties in harmony. Additional information will be obtained at a later date.

George Comp, Civil Defense director for Garrett County and member of the Deer Park fire company, had addressed that meeting regarding his opinion and experiences in the fire service in relationship to the organization.

Following adjournment, the Ladies Auxiliary served a steak dinner which included homemade ice cream.

The next meeting will be at Gorman May 7.

Maryland Receives Greatest Amount Of Federal Aid

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Maryland received a greater proportion of federal aid between 1960 and 1975 than any other state, according to reports.

The State Legislative Report issued by the National Conference of State Legislatures said the state received $78 million in federal aid in 1960 compared to $966 million in 1975 — a 1,234 percent increase.

The only areas that received a greater proportional increase were the U. S. territories of Guam and the Virgin Islands.

New Jersey with a 1,192 percent increase and Wyoming's 276 percent increase followed Maryland among states where aid increased.

The report, which based its findings on the Treasury Department's "Federal Aid to States," said increased aid enabled the federal government to increase its hold over state governments.

According to the report, the federal government contributed 35 cents out of every dollar spent by state governments in 1977, compared to 17 cents in 1960.

The report said federal governments will have a greater influence on how state governments allocate its money as federal grant aid increases.

State governments do not always control receipt of the federal aid, the report said. Spending volumes and priorities could change because low level officials, rather than governors and state legislatures, may have the power to accept grants.

But the report noted that federal grant money in Maryland is accepted by the governor with legislative review.

The report pointed out that the federal government could withdraw funding for a program, which would force state governments to finance the program through increased taxes.

Maryland's increasing share of federal aid has been attributed to the large number of federal agencies and military bases in the state, federal funding of welfare, urban renewal, anti-poverty and other social service programs and the federal customs and maritime aid designated for the Port of Baltimore.

A spokeswoman for the Governor's Commission Law Enforcement said the trend in increasing aid has reversed for the agency.

Rochelle Cohen said from 1975 to 1978 there was a 47 percent cut in block grant funds from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to the commission.

New Ranger Interpreters Begin Duties In State Parks

Since 1963, the Maryland Park Service has been providing interpretive programs for visitors in many state parks and these activities began with a few simple campfire programs and guided walks in some of the larger parks during the summer months.

Increased public appreciation and demand for these programs has resulted in an expansion of the interpretive activities and an increase in the number of parks offering them. Historic, scenic and natural interpretive programs are provided on a regular basis or by request by a staff that includes many park superintendents and some professionally trained ranger interpreters.

Debbie Chesonis will be assigned to Herrington Manor State Park; Jim Roane and Steve Parkhurst, Patapsco Valley State Park; Chuck Harris, Gambrill State Park, and Mark Mengele, Pocomoke River State Park.

The designation of "ranger interpreter," according to William Parr, director of the state Park Service, does not indicate a promotion in position or salary, but does represent a considerable increase in responsibility.

"Rangers who participate in the ranger interpreter program do so because of their concern for the parks and park visitors. . . . .and for the personal satisfaction gained from helping visitors better understand and enjoy park resources," Parr concluded.

Caddell Bridge Closed Last Week

The Caddell Bridge on W. Va. Route 7 between Terra Alta and Kingwood was closed April 11 when the bridge support on the Kingwood side gave way.

Officials from Clarksburg from the bridge department of the Department of Highways visited Preston County to determine what action, if any, could be taken to repair the damage. Officials said that the bridge will be closed for at least two weeks and possibly longer than that.

DOH Supervisor Roy D. Smith indicated that a coffer dam will be built and water will be pumped out to enable bridge crews to possibly repair the structure. He added that other portions of the bridge could collapse at any time, with or without traffic traveling on it.

Completition of the new bridge, which will replace the damaged one, is not scheduled until late next fall, according to Smith.

While the bridge is closed, motorists are advised to detour on W. Va. 26 through Albright. Road crews are working on one section of that road, which has been reduced to one-lane traffic since a portion of it gave way in an earth slide.

POPULAR CULTURE:

Mirror of American Life XIII:

Editor's Note: This is the 13th in a series of 15 articles exploring "Popular Culture: Mirror of American Life." In this article, feminist Betty Friedan discusses the relationship between the women's movement and the image of women in our mass media. This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

POPULAR CULTURE: MIRROR OF WOMEN MOVING

By Betty Friedan

In a certain sense, the modern women's movement, one of the most far-reaching revolutions of all time, began as a sudden, long overdue, pent-up, personal, massively reverberating "no" to the image of women embedded in popular culture.

There was a strange discrepancy between the reality of our lives as women and the image that I came to call the feminine mystique.

A strangely helpless, passive, not very bright, blonde little housewife was the only image there was on television, in movies, and in the women's magazines. It was projected by commercials, family situation comedies, soap operas, and game shows — from "I Love Lucy" and "Queen for a Day" to "As the World Turns." The reality of the increasing millions of women already working outside the home was denied by that image.

We had to break through that image in our own consciousness and in the popular culture. The only weapons for doing this were the words, passion, will, and actions that create new images. The media that had reflected the mass embrace and return of women to full-time domesticity after World War II and then distorted and imprisoned women in that image — the feminine mystique — now began to reflect and carry the images of women acting as persons in society.

Protests of The 1960s

It was not possible in the '60s to read newspapers or watch television as the blacks marched and protested against living in America in anything less than full human dignity and equality, for women not to finally say, "Me, too."

Women had to demand to be taken seriously as people, not invisible sex objects or dumb blonde housewives. "They don't need to use mace or tear gas or bull whips and police dogs to keep women down in this country," I used to joke bitterly at the beginning of our revolution, "all they need to do is treat us like a joke."

It irritated us that, at first, the media always picked on the cutest, most extreme, or even the sexiest and most shocking of antics in the movement rather than the sober actions we were taking, which spoke to the condition of all women. But we quickly learned how to use those sexy antics to get the media's attention for our substantive issues.

Changing Image

Today, the housewife image can still be seen, especially in the commercials and the game shows and soap operas, whose audience is presumably those housewives and elderly people still at home during the day.

But the prime-time image of women is increasingly a bright, attractive, sexy, gutsy woman. Heroines, single, married, or divorced, are no longer passive sex objects, nor do they silently wave good-bye, but act adventurously in their own lives. Mary Tyler Moore, lively, lovable editor on the fictional news station, gave such a happy human image of a woman as an independent person that several generations of young (and not so young) women alone stopped suffering if they didn't have a date on Saturday night.

Phyllis, Maude, Rhoda, Angie Dickinson in "Police Woman," even the "Bionic Woman" all comprise a more various, actively human image of women than that old dreary drudge, "Charlie's Angels" are still sex objects, but they are also strong, or bright, and at least have their own adventures of life.

Even in soap opera, the sassy heroine of "One Day at a Time" is not only a sympathetic, likeable, self-supporting divorced mother, as attractive as her two daughters, but she had a younger boyfriend who adored her.

ABC has hired the former head of NOW's (National Organization for Women) Task Force on the Image of Women as a consultant to set new standards to change or eliminate commercials which insult women. The dreary, dumb wife may soon be as rare on television as the Stepanfetchit blackface.

And as a result of class action suits and other pressures from the women who work in television — and the women's movement groups who monitor it — more and more women can be seen as news commentators, producers, directors, and even camerapersons, on both local and network TV. Barbara Walters will not be the last female anchorperson, and Marlene Sanders is outlasting some of her male colleagues as network vice president for news and public affairs at ABC.

Magazine Market

The women's magazines have also had to modify their feminine mystique, aiming now at the 40 percent of American women who today work outside the home as well as in it, and who constitute a market as or more lucrative than those who still call themselves "housewives." The tone of these magazines today also reflects a less simple and insulting image of that housewife — one who can evidently identify with complex, adventurous women as people.

These days, "Ladies' Home Journal" will picture a Mary Tyler Moore on its cover, along with an article by financial columnist Sylvia Porter on "Pensions for Housewives," and interview with Golda Meir, Katherine Hepburn on "Why I Never Wanted Children," and "What Women Can Do About Violent Crime."

The caricatures of "Total Womanhood" and "Viva," "Playgirl," "Hustler," "Penthouse," "Oui," and points further pornographic represent and play to male and female last ditch reaction against, and fear of, woman as person: wrapping her nude body in saran wrap and ostrich feathers or dehumanizing her into faceless genitalia, magnified in centerfolds almost beyond the size of life. But "Playboy" stock is not doing so well on the market these days. Helen Gurley Brown's "Cosmopolitan Girl" has been a more interesting, lively graft of the new image onto the old sexual self.

The New Consciousness

A veritable book industry has been created by women's new consciousness. Writing fictionally and nonfictionally about their problems and desires, the novels — and the few movies like "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" — are still wallowing in the problems caused by the feminine mystique. Reactions, miserable or spirited like Erica Jong's, have not yet been able to transcend the rage and create a new image.

Newspapers today carry a living, changing reality of women, creating new parameters for men and society, beyond any image of, or by, "women's lib." Women reporters cover finance, sports, and politics and are no longer segregated on the women's page. That page, in papers like The New York Times, is becoming a whole "life-style" or "living" section — as important and newsworthy as acts of violence and considered of equal importance to men.

Today, the image of women in popular culture reflects more accurately the various realities of women moving — and the reactions against that movement — because many more women are involved in creating these images. The actions women have taken — sometimes literal "class actions" in court as with Newsweek and NBC — have broken the barriers that kept women from decision-making jobs in the media.

The formal actions of the women's movement, and the daily repercussions in office and home, have finally made women visible as people, even to the male image makers who before saw them only as servant-housewives or secretaries, "girls," or passive objects of sexual fantasy.

Girl Scouts Are Petitioning To Retain Camp Tioga

Girl Scouts leaders of this district are circulating petitions which ask the board of directors of Shawnee Girl Scout Council to rescind its motion to sell Camp Tioga in Allegany County.

Mrs. Deanie Johnson, Oakland, GSA community association chairman for Garrett County, said two years ago the council's board voted to concentrate all its camping at Camp Whiterock near Capon Bridge, W. Va.

This would be expanded by funds from the sale of the four other camps in the council which is now comprised of 16 counties in Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Camp Tioga was built when Shawnee Council was comprised of only Garrett, Allegany, Bedford, Mineral and Hampshire counties.

When the council was reorganized several years ago the 11 other counties were added and these five became one of three districts.

Mrs. Johnson pointed out that Camp Tioga was constructed by contributions from the Cumberland Lions Club, the County United Way, and other organizations and by the work of many individuals including the Army and Navy reserve units in Allegany County.

Under the board of directors' present plan, Camp Whiterock would be the only camp in the council, but Mrs. Johnson pointed out that it is inadequate to satisfy the needs of the Girl Scouts in the district.

Summer troop camping would not be available because resident camping would be in progress at that time.

If Camp Tioga is retained as a second camp, troop camping would be available for girls of the five counties in this district.

Mrs. Johnson said adult Scout volunteers are concerned and last week 50 persons attended a meeting about the camp's future held in LaVale Methodist Church.

They voted to circulate the petitions which will be presented to the board of directors at its next meeting in Martinsburg May 21.

The petitions specifically ask the board to rescind its action in voting to sell Camp Tioga and asked the directors to retain it as a second council camp.

Popular Culture Forum To Include "Future Shock"

Is Garrett County on the verge of Future Shock? Should we create human life in test tubes? Should we permit homosexual marriages? These and other questions will be addressed at the Popular Culture Forum on Lifestyles to be presented on Friday, April 28, at 7 p.m., in the Garrett Community College auditorium. Panelists will include Dr. Lillian Mitchell and Gene Popiolek of Garrett Community College, and Susan Crawford of the State's Attorney's office.

Participants will view the movie, "Future Shock" (based on the book by Alvin Toffler) and then explore the present and the predicted future life styles of Garrett County through a diverse cross-section of her people.

Do you have an opinion? Do you think technology is breaking apart traditional lifestyles? Do you think rapid change injures us psychologically? Do you think we should control human emotions artificially? Do you know what your neighbor thinks about these questions? Come to the Forum, and find out.

The Popular Culture Forums are presented in conjunction with the Courses by Newspaper and are a project of the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges, supported by a grant from the National Endowment for Humanities.

CONSERVATION IS IMPORTANT — Dr. William H. Buser, Superintendent of Garrett County Schools, spoke to those present at the Arbor Day program held at Camp Hickory, April 6. Dr. Buser discussed the importance of conservation and the value of Camp Hickory to the county's educational system. The credo of the conservationist is "I give my pledge as an American to save and faithfully to defend from waste, the natural resources of my country — its soil and minerals, its forests, waters and wildlife."

Court Docket Is Light This Week

District Court criminal docket was light for the week ending April 17. One case was transferred to Circuit Court following a hearing.

Frederick Junior Tasker, 25, Bradley Manor, Oakland, pleaded guilty of disorderly conduct on Old 135, in Oakland, on March 14. Judge Lewis R. Jones fined him $30 and costs.

David Lee Kennedy, and Robert Edward Guerrant, both 19 and from District Heights, pleaded not guilty of breaking and entering of the Warnick house trailer on Savage River road near Barton in March. Both were placed on probation for one year before judgment.

Dale E. Kelso, Accident, had been charged with false pretense, passing a worthless check, but the charge was dropped.

Vernard L. Ludwig, Pleasant Valley Construction Co., was charged on two counts. The charge of failing to obtain a salesman's or contractor's license was dropped as a license was obtained. The charge of abandonment or failure to perform, without justification, a house improvement contract, was stetted. The work is to be performed.

Michael Curtis Fitzwater, RD, Swanton, had been charged with wearing, carrying or transporting a deadly weapon (handgun) in March. The case was dropped.

The case of Roy E. Arbogast, 48, Thomas, W. Va., was transferred to Circuit Court following a hearing before Judge Jones. Arbogast has been charged with breaking and entering and grand larceny at the Crellin Pentecostal Church in March.

by Cathy Helbig

General Braddock, killed in the French & Indian War, was front page news in 1926. The question had again arisen as to whether Braddock died at the hands of the Indians or his own army: "Recently there has been a revival of the story that Braddock's death was at the hands of one of his own army, a big Pennsylvanian frontiersman named Tom Fawcett having declared, it is said, that he fired the dock because the latter struck down his brother."

Fawcett, who lived to be 110 years old, was able to describe that battle vividly.

"The slaughter went on for hours. The ammunition was giving out; the officers were nearly all killed or wounded, not a single aide but Washington being left; more than half the army had fallen, and the rest could do nothing where they were but die.

"Braddock gave the order to retreat and almost at the same moment a ball pierced his right arm and entered his lungs, inflicting a mortal wound."

General Braddock died on Sunday, July 13, 1755. He was wrapped in his cloak and buried at daybreak on Monday in the middle of the road that the army, in passing over the grave, might obliterate every trace of its whereabouts and thus avoid "any desecration of the body by the Indians."

In 1913, the British government erected a monument over his grave which is located between Cumberland and Uniontown on the National Pike (U.S. Rt. 40).

Whether Braddock fell from the bullet of the French & Indians or from the rifle of Tom Fawcett, one of his own soldiers, may never be known.

On the lighter and livelier side, the Browning Brothers, consisting of Abel & Thomas on fiddles and John on harp, were invited to appear on KDKA radio, a station in Pittsburgh. Personal columns from all around the area told how much that radio concert was enjoyed by Garrett County residents.

"Eighteen months worth of silk 'undies' is what Chuck Perry provided for his Sheba. The sweet thing complained to her hero that her lingerie was not of modern vintage, so, with all the valor of the knights of old, the young shiek went forth to right the wrong. Six pieces of silken underalls of excellent quality were procured by 'Chuckie' for his lady fair, but he overlooked the small detail of enlisting the services of a clerk while doing his shopping. Pink silk ribbons dangling from under the hero's coat suggested to a store detective that something out of the ordinary was doing. He relieved the customer of his store of the 'purchases' and the judge said, 'Eighteen months'!"

It will be a long time for the Sheba to await the return of her gallant knight with the much coveted 'undies'.

Five prisoners at the Garrett County jail in Oakland were so grateful for the good food and treatment they were receiving, they wrote a letter to the editor thanking the sheriff for the "wonderful chicken dinner served on July 4th."

"We do not hesitate in saying that we are served the best of food and that it is the cleanest and most healthful jail in the state."

In the personal column from the little community of Painter, a few "exciting" bits of news were revealed.

"Myrtle O'Brien is carrying her head very high because she was the first pupil of Painter School to hear a whippoorwill," and "Miss Custer, our teacher, was feeling very blue last Thursday morning when one of our gold fish died. Of course, the pupils all attended the funeral. Poor fish!"

And, as usual, someone was in trouble with the law: "A Morgantown man may be in a bad way. If Hugh Stewart of Morgantown, W. Va., was married in Oakland Wednesday, he will face a charge of bigamy; if he was not married he will be charged with violation of the Mann Act, commonly known as the White Slave Traffic Law" after bringing his intended bride from Morgantown against her parents' wishes.

The poor man's fate was not listed, but perhaps it can be found before the next issue of the Rock Pile.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Q. What is title insurance, what does it cost, and where can I buy it?

A. Title insurance is just what the name implies: An insurance policy issued by a title insurance company insuring title to your real estate to be marketable and free from liens and encumbrances prior to your ownership. Title insurance is issued by a title insurance company after an affiliate attorney has performed a comprehensive title examination for a period of sixty (60) years prior to the date of your purchase of the real estate. Most all practicing attorneys are affiliated with reputable title insurance companies and the cost of such insurance is a one time expense equal to approximately $3.50 for each $1,000.00 in value on your real estate. There is no provision for an increase in coverage to provide for additional value due to inflation; however, your coverage may be renegotiated on a periodic basis.

Send your question to our office on a postcard. Every question will be answered by return mail.

Assessment Answers

Q. Is it proper for assessors to include the realtor's commission in the assessments they make?

A. Whenever the sale of a property is handled through a real estate agent, the fee, which comes off the top, is built in and becomes a normal part of the transaction. If a home is advertised for sale for $40,000, it is understood that the realtor's fee is included in the price. This is an accepted practice in most all real estate transactions.

Although it is a fine point, assessors do not actually include the real estate agent's commission in their appraisal even though they often explain that they must. Maryland law requires the assessor to assess property at its full cash value. This is interpreted as the current value less an allowance for inflation. Since the allowance for inflation is a set amount, presently 50%, the controlling factor is just what is meant by current value.

Our courts, in their various decisions, have construed current value, or market value, or fair market value to be synonymous and to mean the highest price that a property will bring in a sale on the open market.

When a property sells for $50,000, that is the price that the purchaser is willing to pay. He knows that any sales commission and a profit are built into this price. The fact that the seller must pay the realty company a set percentage of that price does not change the fact that the property sold for $50,000. This is the figure the assessor will use, and more than likely, the reason why he usually states that the commission is a part of market value.

Let us use another example. When we buy an automobile, the price of the vehicle automatically includes any mark up, as well as the salesman's commission, and we must pay a Maryland State Vehicle Titling Tax on the full purchase price. The same can be said on almost any purchase. If we buy a shirt in a store, a part of the price is based on the salesperson's salary and the overhead expenses of the store; and that, in effect, becomes part of the sale value. The clerk then adds the sales tax based upon this amount.

Some will tell you that, in the final analysis, the commission does not really matter. What difference does it make if all properties are assessed at 50% with a $6 tax rate or whether they are assessed at 45% to allow for the commission, with a $6.67 tax rate.

Even if the realtor's commission could be discounted, there would be difficulty in determining which homes were sold by a realtor and which were sold directly by the homeowner.

Those who hold the opposite view may take some comfort in the fact that there is a law being considered by the General Assembly to increase the inflationary allowance to 55%, with the reason given that the additional 5% is to compensate for such charges as commissions, settlement fees, and other add ons.

Questions or letters of general interest on assessments and the property tax should be addressed to 'Assessment Answers—James Burley' in care of this newspaper. They will be answered through this column to the extent that space allows.

This column serves as another vehicle to keep in touch with my fellow residents of central and western Maryland. Send your questions or comments to me c/o U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. 20515. While I'll be unable to print all replies, I will answer each of you who contacts me.

The following questions were typical of the kind asked of me in recent weeks.

Are the gas mileage ratings published by the Environmental Protection Agency Accurate?

Many people today are puzzled by generous gas mileage ratings which seem impossible to get in actual everyday driving. However, according to a government survey, over half of all drivers report achieving gas mileage within two miles per gallon of the EPA estimates. The remaining ten percent report that they are getting five or more gallons per mile less than EPA ratings.

The new edition of the 1978 Gas Mileage Guide is out now and, in addition to giving you mileage ratings to compare the fuel economy of new models, it also tells how and why your actual mileage can vary from the results of the tests conducted by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency. For your free copy of the 1978 Gas Mileage Guide, send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado.

Are there any youth employment opportunities that I might apply for?

If you are a young man or woman, age 16 through 23, out of school but jobless, doing conservation work on public lands may be for you. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus has announced Interior's goal is to provide about 12,000 young people with employment this year in national parks, fish hatcheries, recreation areas and wildlife refuges. These jobs will last up to 12 months.

I supported legislation that created the Young Adult Conservation Corps, and this is the program which will employ thousands of young people this year. Prospective candidates should make application for the Young Adult Conservation Corps through their Maryland State Employment Office.

What is your position on the role of the Federal Government as it relates to educating our children?

I believe that decisions affecting the education of our children should be made by parents, teachers, school administrators, students and citizens of each local community — not by the Federal government. This is particularly important with respect to decisions regarding the curricula and school materials to be used. The Federal government can, however, assist local communities in providing educational services which they would otherwise be unable to supply without raising property taxes. As a result, I have supported federal programs to help educate handicapped and disadvantaged students, provide school lunches, career education, vocational education, library services, aid for elementary and secondary schools, Community colleges, four-year colleges and universities and professional schools. In addition, I have voted against crucial amendments which sought to cut the level of funding for these successful programs.

What is the status of your legislation which would allow homemakers the opportunity to establish individual retirement accounts?

Last week I testified before the House Ways & Means Committee in support of this measure. As you know, housewives currently cannot open an IRA account because they are not paid wages for their labor in the home. I told the committee that the contributions of homemakers to their families are just as important, if not more so, as the financial support provided by the family's principal wage earner. This measure will for the first time give homemakers the opportunity to financially prepare for their retirement years. Rather than relying on the government for their retirement income, this bill would encourage homemakers to help themselves and would recognize the importance of their countless contributions to our national welfare. I also noted that I had been mentioning this bill in many of my visits with constituents, as well as in a recent newsletter, and that I have been deeply impressed with the enthusiastic support expressed for this idea. Certainly this support is evidenced by the over 150 co-sponsors this legislation enjoys.

I would like to begin a physical fitness program but don't know where to start. Have you any ideas?

I would recommend you get yourself a copy of the booklet, Adult Physical Fitness, which is published by the President's Council on Physical Fitness. The 64-page illustrated guide covers warmup exercises, conditioning exercises, and circulatory activities. Five levels of fitness are outlined for women and men and there's also a test of pulse rate you can use to measure and keep a record of the improvement in your circulation. For your personal copy, send 70 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 088F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Do you favor increasing, or decreasing, the Federal Regulatory powers of the Federal Government?

I believe that State and Local Governments are better able to handle many problems in ways more consistent with the wishes of the public than the Federal government can. For that reason, I have voted against many bills which would expand the regulatory powers of the Federal government into areas which had been within the jurisdiction of the states. In fact, to help discourage new federal regulations, I have co-sponsored legislation requiring the full disclosure of the costs of federal regulations before they can be considered or enacted.

May a coal miner who continues to work in, or around, a coal mine collect Black Lung benefits?

A working miner may now file a claim and obtain a benefit determination while still working in coal mine employment. However, in order to receive Black Lung benefits, generally the miner must terminate coal mine employment within one year after the determination of eligibility is made.

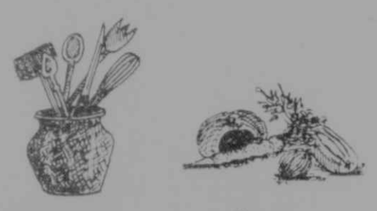
Gasoline Suppliers Continue To Lower Octane Ratings

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced today that three more gasoline suppliers have notified his office that they will no longer market gasoline with an octane rating of 95.0 or more, the level recognized as "premium" in Maryland. Mr. Goldstein also said the Federal Department of Energy has agreed to begin an investigation of the octane drops.



Chevron, Gulf and Texaco join fifteen other gasoline suppliers in dropping their highest octane level below what may be legally advertised as "premium" in Maryland. Only Sun Oil and Mobil continue to offer a gasoline product with an octane rating of at least 95.0.

"Maryland was the first State in the nation to bring this octane drop to the attention of the Federal Department of Energy. Using the most impartial national figures, we estimate there are approximately 162,000 automobiles in Maryland which actually require premium gasoline for efficient operation," Mr. Goldstein said.

Drivers who are using a lower octane gasoline and detect a "knock" or "ping" in their engines should switch to a higher octane fuel. Prolonged use of the lower octane gasoline under these circumstances can result in engine damage.

"I have been notified by the Federal Department of Energy that the Office of Enforcement will investigate the drop in octane levels to determine if violations of Federal regulations have taken place," Mr. Goldstein said. "I have advised the Federal authorities that Maryland's records are available to them and we will assist them in every way possible."

Oil companies are required to register the specifications for products they sell in Maryland. The State Comptroller's Office noticed a widespread plunge in the octane level for "premium" gasoline when ten oil companies registered specifications of less than 95.0 for their highest octane product in the February-March 1978 period.

Cooking Corner

by Mariane

With increasing numbers of women working outside the home, and with fast food readily available, the average family is spending as much as 25% of its annual food budget on restaurant and instant meals. Nationwide, it is estimated that 215 billion dollars is spent yearly on restaurant and instant or quick meals.

There seem to be, at least, two schools of thought about quick cook foods. The supporters say that time and effort are saved by using instant foods, mixes and pre-packaged foods and these supporters are often right. Those opposed to cooking any other way than "from scratch" say vitamins and minerals are removed from instant foods and preservatives are added to these foods. Now, I refuse to take sides in this issue because each side has some pretty good argument for feeling the way they feel. If a shopper checks labels to be sure of just what ingredients are in the packaged foods they are buying, they can find foods which will put a nutritious meal on the table in a half hour or so. For instance, I wouldn't want to eat T.V. dinners every night of the week but they certainly are handy on the days when finding five free minutes is about as likely as my finding a diamond mine in my front yard.

The following recipe is from "The Up With Wholesome, Down With Store Bought" Cookbook. It should make everyone happy because it saves time and money but it has no preservatives. It's similar to a popular "cover and bake" chicken mix.

YOUR OWN BATTER AND BAKE MIX

Ingredients and Directions for Basic Mix:
5 cups all-purpose flour
5 teaspoons baking powder
1 Tablespoon onion powder
1 teaspoon thyme
1 teaspoon paprika
1 Tablespoon granulated sugar

Shake all the ingredients in a double-thick plastic bag. Fasten and store on a kitchen shelf until needed.

1 large egg

Preheat the oven to 400 degrees. Shake the bag of Basic Mix to incorporate all the ingredients. Measure 1 cup into a small, shallow bowl. Stir in the milk and egg with a fork (Do not overmix; batter should be slightly lumpy).

Rinse the chicken and pat dry with paper towel. Dip only the skin side of each piece in the batter; coat fairly thick. Place the chicken pieces, batter side up, on a well-greased cookie sheet and bake for 50 minutes or until golden brown. (Basic Mix will yield enough to make batter for five 2½ pound chickens).

SOUTH SEAS MARINADE

½ cup each vegetable oil and soy sauce
¼ cup dry sherry
4 cloves garlic, peeled & minced
1 teaspoon chili powder
1/8 teaspoon black pepper
1 cup canned crushed pineapple plus 1 cup pineapple syrup from can

Mix all ingredients, except the pineapple and syrup, in a jar, shake to blend and pour over beef, pork or chicken. Marinate for 3 hours. Remove meat from marinade and broil until cooked.

Mix marinade left with the pineapple and syrup. Boil over medium heat for 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve hot with the broiled meat.

NUTRITION NOTE: Whether you bake, broil, fry or boil meat, the protein content remains the same. However, the fat content and calories need not remain the same depending on your method of cooking. Broiling, for instance, removes a lot of fat and resulting calories from meat.

TIP OF THE WEEK: Garlic, onion or fish odors can be removed from your chopping board by washing the board thoroughly and then keeping it wet for 10 to 15 minutes with a solution of ¾ cup of liquid chlorine bleach per gallon of warm water. Rinse and dry well. This solution can be used to disinfect and deodorize counter tops and other surface areas in the kitchen also.

Straight Talk About Aging

Beware The Con Artist

Too smart to be taken in by a con artist? Don't be so sure. Most people think you have to be naive or stupid to be taken in and that "it can't happen to me." But it can and it does — to the tune of billions of dollars a year.

It's almost impossible to spot con artists. They are well dressed, sociable and respectable looking. And they have one important advantage over other criminals. The confidence man gets to pick the time, the place and the person he is going to work his scheme on.

Unfortunately, swindlers frequently pick older people, those over 65, to victimize. Frauds against the elderly, especially widows, are steadily increasing. What's more, police officials say there are now as many confidence women at work as confidence men.

If the professional con artist is hard to spot, the con itself is not — especially if you are familiar with the more popular schemes. Let's look at two of the most common ways in which swindlers prey upon the elderly.

The Pigeon Drop. Sixty-seven-year-old Mrs. Jones is gardening in her front yard when an attractive woman, call her Miss Smith, engages her in conversation. Soon another woman, Miss White, approaches with an envelope containing a large sum of money which she says she just found. A note says the money was earned through the sale of pornographic pictures.

Miss White thinks they should keep the money and split it three ways, saying, "After all, it was gained through illegal means."

Miss Smith agrees and suggests she check with an attorney friend she knows to make sure this is permissible. She soon returns with good news that it's all right to keep the money, although the attorney advised her they should protect themselves by placing "good faith security" in his office.

Miss White suggests that each withdraw $1000 from her bank account. They do so and meet in front of the attorney's office. All the money is placed in a single envelope and Miss Smith volunteers to take the money into the office.

When she returns, she tells Mrs. Jones, our victim, that the attorney wants to see her. Mrs. Jones goes into the office, only to find there is no attorney. When she returns, Miss Smith and Miss White — and her $1000 — are gone.

Another old trick is the Bank Examiner Scheme. Mrs. Doe, a widow who lives alone goes to her bank and fills out her deposit slip or withdrawal slip. A man beside her, seemingly writing a slip, copies her name, account number and the amount she is depositing or withdrawing.

A day or two later, Mrs. Doe gets a telephone call from a man who identifies himself as a vice president of her bank. "Mrs. Doe," he says, "as a longtime depositor of ours, may we call on you to help us — in strictest confidence, of course? We suspect one of our tellers of embezzling."

Mrs. Doe is eager to help. "Correct me if I am wrong," the swindler continues. "You deposited $223.50 just two days ago. Right?" Of course he is right, and his intimate knowledge of her account precludes any suspicion. Now he says, "I don't know if you've been a victim, Mrs. Doe. What does your bank book say?" Mrs. Doe replies, "$6412.60." In relief the voice on the telephone says, "Good. That jibes with our record." Now he knows the exact amount of Mrs. Doe's account.

"What we would like you to do," he says, "is to withdraw $5000 in cash, please, so we can trace serial numbers and fingerprints. Police detective Harry Brown and his partner will come to your house, give you a receipt, then take the bills for laboratory examination. And let me add, Mrs. Doe, in the event of an arrest and conviction, a $500 reward will be credited to your account."

Almost invariably, Mrs. Doe is flattered and excited. Everything goes as scheduled, and that's the last Mrs. Doe sees of her $5000.

Remember, you can't spot a con artist by his looks. It's his business to appear honest and sincere — otherwise he wouldn't be in business. But there are some things you can do to avoid being fleeced. (1) Don't expect to get something for nothing. (2) Never discuss your financial situation with strangers. (3) Never withdraw cash from your bank account at a stranger's request. (4) If you are swindled, don't be embarrassed about reporting it to the police.

Workshop, Seminar Planned April 25

The Garrett County Committee to Promote the Employment of the Handicapped is sponsoring an Architectural Barrier Workshop and Awareness Seminar on Tuesday, April 25, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Garrett Community College's McHenry Campus in the Administration Building. The workshop and seminar will kick-off the Committee's Architectural Barrier Survey. Buildings housing government agencies and retail stores will be surveyed in 1973 and 1974 respectively.

The Architectural Barrier Workshop's purpose is to train and inform individuals who are volunteering to be Survey Team members on the proper ways of conducting the survey. The workshop will be held in the Administration Building at the Garrett Community College's McHenry Campus from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m.

The Architectural Barrier Awareness Seminar, to inform and assist building owners, government agencies, and retail store owners on ways of making their facilities more accessible for the handicapped individuals, will be held in the Administration Building from 1:30 to 4:00 p.m.

The topics to be covered at both workshop and the seminar are: Architectural Barrier Problems in Garrett County; Cost to Building Owners in Eliminating Architectural Barriers; Tax Credits for Eliminating Architectural Barriers; and Architectural Barrier Legislation.

Both sessions are open to the public. For more information call Dan Elmlinger, 334-3330 or 334-3137.

BSA Appreciation Dinner Slated For Next Wednesday

W. R. (Dick) Bryan, executive director of community services for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, will be the featured speaker at Potomac Council's Boy Scouts of America Appreciation Dinner to be held Wednesday, April 26, at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club, Cumberland. In making the announcement, Dr. Robert D. Brodell, president of the council, and Willis V. Smith, Scout Executive, said the dinner will begin at 7 p.m.

The Appreciation Dinner is a tribute to the many volunteer adult leaders who direct the packs, troops, and posts in Allegany and Garrett Counties in Maryland; and Mineral, Hampshire, Hardy, and Grant counties in West Virginia.

A highlight of the dinner will be the presentation of Silver Beaver Awards to area volunteers by Leonard C. Schwab, Committee Chairman. The Silver Beaver Award is the highest award bestowed on an adult involved in the Scouting program.

Dr. Robert W. Bess, Wood Badge coordinator for the council, will also make some awards to local Scouters who have completed requirements for this award.

Robert W. Moreland will lead the group singing, accompanied by Mrs. Ivan Hall on the piano. Reverend Adam E. Grim, Pastor Centre Street United Methodist Church, will have the invocation; and Reverend Martin E. Feild, St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland, will give the benediction.

David Young, Westernport, Council Commissioner, is serving as chairman of the dinner committee, assisted by Carl Slemmer and Ivan Hall of Cumberland; Pat Fischetti, Oakland; and David Malone, Fort Ashby.

Scouters from throughout the Council have received invitations and tables will be reserved for all scouters from a particular unit to be seated together.

The speaker is a civic and industrial leader; also a past president of Lions International, he is a member-at-large of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America. He travels over 125,000 miles each year and makes more than 150 personal appearances as part of his industrial and Scout work. He is a graduate of the College of Wooster and did graduate work at Ohio State University and Harvard.

Reservations must be made with the Council Office, Mr. Young said, by Friday, April 21.

VOLUME 102 | OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1978 | PER COPY 15c | NUMBER 9

Speak Up!

Communication is one of the major ingredients to just getting along. Our country, along with the rest of the world, seems to suffer from a lack of it.

This communication gap exists between our elected officials and the voting public. It exists between man and nature. It exists between nations. It exists between management and workers. It exists between teachers and students, and between peer groups, both young and old.

One of the most fertile grounds for this lack of communication is in the home. It can be devastating to a family. The number of broken families continues to rise at an alarming rate. Most psychologists say that a great number of divorces are caused by this failure to communicate by spouses.

Communication is the key to understanding and acceptance. Unfortunately, many people either do not know how, or they are afraid, to communicate. Often times communication means admitting weaknesses about oneself or handing out criticism to someone else. This is difficult, but it is vital to any healthy relationship.

The ever-present "gap" between parents and teenaged offspring is also largely due to a lack of communication.

Once again, this problem is nothing new. It is quite human and human beings change little over the years. But just because it is inherent, this doesn't mean that we can't fight it. Better communication is something that all of us (not just Bell Telephone) should attempt to achieve.

Garrett County Playhouse to Open Doors On July 5

The Garrett County Playhouse opens its doors on Wednesday, July 5, at the Blue Barn Beckman's Peninsula, Deep Creek Lake.

The opening production will be Alan Ayckbourn's, "Absurd Person Singular," a recent comedy of Broadway and London's West End.

The six-week season will include "An Inspector Calls" by J. B. Priestley, "John Loves Mary" by Norman Krasna, "Chase Me, Comrade" by Ray Cooney, "The Rude Mechanicals" by Milburn Mehlhop and "Mixed Doubles" by Fred Carmichael.

Each production will play Wednesday through Saturday beginning at 8:30 p.m.

The 1978 season will be launched with a benefit dinner on Monday, July 3, time and place to be announced.

Season Subscriptions are still available by contacting Rev. Manning Smith.

Special School Board Meeting Slated At NHS

The Garrett County Board of Education will be holding an evening meeting on Tuesday, May 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Northern High School Cafetorium. The public is invited to attend this meeting and individuals present will have an opportunity to ask questions and share concerns they may have relative to the public schools in Garrett County. The regular business meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education will be held on May 11, at 1:00 p.m., in the Board Office in Oakland.

Sponsors Seek Dairy Princess Contest Entries

All Garrett and Allegany County young ladies between 17 and 23 who live or have lived on a dairy farm are eligible to enter a Dairy Princess program being instituted this year.

Robert O. Glotfelty, representative of the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, announced that his organization will co-sponsor the program with the extension service.

Mrs. Caroline Ganoe, chairman for the Area I Dairy Princess Committee for the two western counties, reminds would-be entrants that the rules for eligibility appeared in last week's edition of The Republican.

All eligible candidates will be receiving a Dairy Princess application in the mail this week. All young women interested should complete the brief form and forward it, along with a photograph, to Mrs. Ganoe, Route 2, Box 546, Frostburg, Md. 21532, so that they are received by Monday, May 15, for consideration.

Mrs. Joyce Bishoff, Dairy Princess Training Coordinator, stresses that "This is not a beauty contest." Purpose of the Dairy Princess program is threefold: to promote the use of dairy products, motivate producer interest and concern in effective marketing, and to generate greater mutual interest and understanding among dairymen, cooperatives and milk processors.

Mrs. Dot Leuba is assisting

Snow Removal Costs Set Record

The winter of 1977-78 was costliest on record for the three counties comprising District 6 of the State Highway Administration, according to figures compiled by the office of John D. Bushby, district SHA engineer.

The three counties, Garrett, Allegany and Washington, had more snow than for the winter preceding.

Total cost of snow removal and ice control amounted to a staggering $2,135,000, highest on record. Costs of oil, gasoline, diesel fuel and chemicals and abrasives were all higher than the previous winter.

Garrett County was recorded as having 47 storms with a total accumulation of 168 inches of snow. Heaviest snowfall was measured during four storms this year beginning January 8 and ending January 23. During these days 46 inches of snow were measured by SHA.

Of the 47 storms, six resulted in sleet, ice or freezing rain.

Allegany county had 47 storms with a total of 108 inches accumulation in Frostburg, 72 in LaVale, and 76 in the Town Hill section.

In Washington county, there were 24 recorded storms with accumulation of 30½ inches in the Hagerstown area; 49½ in the Boonsboro area, and 64 inches in the Hancock vicinity.

The 168-inch total for Garrett County was 15 inches higher than the previous winter season. The Frostburg area had three and one-half inches more than the previous winter.

However, for the area east of Frostburg through Allegany County and extending into Washington County, amounts of snowfall were double or more than double the accumulation of snow received during the previous winter.

In Garrett County, a number of days were listed when some roadways were either blocked or one-way traffic instituted. High winds caused heavy drifting along such roadways as State Route 495, U. S. Route 219 and U. S. Route 40. The National Freeway was kept relatively open at all times with only a few instances of one-lane traffic or slowed traffic due to poor visibility.

The extremely frigid temperatures made the work of keeping highways passable more difficult.

Funds Allocated For Senior Centers

The sum of $54,000 has been allocated to the Western Maryland Area Agency on Aging to equip senior citizen centers in Garrett, Allegany and Washington Counties.

The money, supplied by the Administration on Aging through the Maryland Office on Aging, will be provided on a 75/25 matching fund basis.

Joel Shoap, acting director for the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland, said applications should be submitted by interested agencies and/or organizations.

Federal regulations required that funds be used solely for acquisition, alteration, renovation of facilities and for the purchase of appropriate equipment for senior citizen centers.

A series of management training sessions for professionals in agencies for the aging in the western portion of the state is scheduled in Cumberland May 18-19. Three Charged In Grand Larcenies

Three young Cumberland men are being held in the Allegany County jail on bails of $10,000 each on charges of breaking and entering and grand larceny in Allegany and Garrett Counties.

District Court Judge Miller Bowen set bails of $5,000 each late last week on Michael Lee Kasecamp, 19; James Howard Finzel, 19, and Thomas Edward House, 21, on charges of breaking and entering and grand larceny in Allegany County.

The three also are being held on $5,000 bond for similar charges in Garrett County, but specific charges against the three have not been released by police.

Allegany County charges were filed for the breaking and entering of Frost Elementary School March 5 when the three allegedly removed a color television set and a cassette tape recorder from the building.

The three also waived extradition to the state of Pennsylvania where they are wanted on fugitive warrants for receiving stolen goods, breaking and entering and grand larceny.

They are wanted for an alleged December 14 break-in of a school in Salisbury, Somerset County, when a color televison set, tape recorder, amplifier, turntable, microphone, four speakers, and an educational record were stolen.

Casselman Bridge Slated For Repair

Sealed bids for the repair and rehabilitation of the historic Casselman River Bridge near Grantsville will be received by the Garrett County Roads Department until May 8, according to Herb McCrobie, administrative engineer.

The project will consist of the following:

Bids are sought for rehabilitation of the existing stone arch bridge and wingwalls including dismantling and resetting designated areas of existing stonework, repointing existing masonry, replacing existing concrete parapet cap with a stone cap, pressure grouting certain areas and constructing an exposed aggregate concrete deck slab.

In addition, the work will include grading, installing of drainage, paving and landscaping of bridge approaches, including construction of an entrance road, service road and parking area, and incidental work as specified.

Mr. McCrobie explained that the project will restore the bridge, as nearly as possible, to its original state. The bridge was originally owned by the state but was given back to Garrett County after Route 48 was opened.

Del. DeCorsey Bolden is one who has been instrumental in obtaining funds for the rehabilitation. In 1972, Bolden requested and received $10,000 from the capital budget to begin a preliminary study. In 1974, $323,000 was appropriated by the House Appropriations Committee for the project. Del. Bolden is a member of the House Committee.

American Avocet Birds Spotted Here For First Time

The first recorded sightings of American Avocet birds in Garrett County occurred Monday afternoon at Broad Ford Lake, with 32 of the large birds spotted wading along the shoreline.

The birds, normally seen along ocean shores during their migrations, are 17 to 20 inches long, including their long upturned bills, and have a 30-inch wingspan. They are strikingly unusual, black and white wings and a rust-colored head.

The birds were first spotted about 5 p.m. as they waded, looking for insects or crustaceans which form a part of their diet. When they left, the flock headed northwest.

Two of the birds were spotted in Allegany county two years ago, but this was the first sighting in Garrett County. The bird's usual breeding grounds are in central Washington state and lower western Canada.

Commissioners Develop HUD Fund Proposals

The Garrett County Commissioners held a second public hearing on the Housing and Urban Development Agency's Community development block grant during Monday's morning session in the Courthouse.

A preliminary hearing was held three weeks ago to solicit potential projects. From the list of requests from various agencies and communities compiled at that time, the commissioners have drawn up six high-priority projects which they hope will be funded. The county has been told that up to $400,000 is available for approved HUD projects.

The six high-priority proposals are Kitzmiller water project; Gorman water project; chemical fire-fighting trucks for Oakland and Grantsville; elimination of architectural barriers to the handicapped at both Garrett Community College centers and at Garrett County Memorial Hospital; $30,000 toward purchase of a new bulldozer for the county landfill; and a 5 percent administration cost, to cover the administration of the above programs if funded.

Other projects which were not included in the priority list were a request from the town of Oakland for repair monies for the town's reservoir at Crook Crest; a request by Kitzmiller for street repair, and a Community Action Committee request to continue its housing rehabilitation program.

HUD changed guidelines for this current fiscal term, to allow either housing projects, community development or economic development projects. In preparing the list of priorities the Commissioners attempted to concentrate on community development, and hoped all six funding requests would be acceptable to HUD.

The last two grants from that agency have been housing oriented, according to the commissioners.

In matters discussed during the afternoon, bids were opened for five vehicles for the Garrett County Sheriff's Department. Apparent low bidder was Shaffer Ford Sales, Oakland, with a price of $4,889.67 each. Other bidders were C&M Pontiac, Casselman Motors, Grantsville Ford and Sharps Chevrolet.

Bob Shaffer, Mrs. Ann Abrahamson, Miss Kathryn Speicher and Leon Butcher, of the Garrett County Committee of Child Abuse, met to brief the Board on their program and its positive effects. They also told the commissioners of their planned Parent Aid, or Visiting Friends, project and of the success such a program has had elsewhere in reducing the number of instances of child abuse.

C&P Open House Set For Sunday

The community relations team of the C&P Telephone Company announced it will sponsor an open house in Oakland to enable area residents to see the new electronic switching system which was placed in service in October.

The new equipment is a computer type solid state operation with the capacity to switch calls at the rate of 36,000 per hour. The electronic switching system was installed in an addition to the rear of the telephone company building at 325 E. Oak Street at a cost of more than $2,300,000.

Nancy Nemith, business manager, is in charge of the arrangements for the open house. Mrs. Nemith expressed the desire that the public will come out to see how C&P serves the county.

Guided tours will be conducted between 1 and 5 p.m. on Sunday, April 30. Included in the tours will be a number of displays and exhibits featuring the latest techniques in communications and some of the most modern equipment. There will also be a demonstration of new services the electronic switching system provides that are now available to customers.

Parent Aide Program Scheduled

by Jim Willis

The Garrett County Team on Child Abuse, which is composed of members from the Health Department, Department of Social Services, the Board of Education, Juvenile Services, the Head Start program and the Child Development program, recently organized a Parent Aide Program which is scheduled to begin next month.

The Parent Aide program will utilize the talents of 14 volunteers, as "visiting friends." The volunteers are, Leon Butcher, Dr. Mark Sugar, Liz Hart, Kathy Wright, Jane Rentschler, Al Coviello, Bill Ferry, Wayne Wilt, Bob Shaffer, James "Smokey" Stanton, Roxanne Winslow, Linda Wengerd, Kathryn Speicher, Mary I. Love, Rudy Cvetnick, Bill Carlson and Ann Abrahamson.

The purpose of a Parent Aide is to: provide nurturing consistency and availability to parents who have deficiencies in their own parenting background; reduce individual and family isolation (a particular problem in rural areas); provide families with an opportunity to develop long-term, non-professional relationships; teach basic living skills, i.e. household management, budgeting, scheduling, etc.; act as a model for appropriate parent/child interaction; work with families on how to deal effectively with systems such as Welfare clinics, Social Security, job and housing applications.

The 14 volunteers aides will donate varying amounts of time while exemplifying a "good neighbor" policy. Additional volunteers not working in a Parent Aide capacity may provide transportation or emergency child care services.

Volunteer Parent Aide programs are emerging across the country and research indicates that they are among the most effective programs implemented in preventing child abuse and neglect. A county in New York reports figures indicating a 60-80% decrease in the number of days children spend in foster care due to a Parent Aide program.

The Garrett County Department of Social Services has shown a sharp increase in the number of reports of abuse and neglect. It is projected that the number of reports will increase another 36-40% during this fiscal year.

Ann Abrahamson, Director of the Child Abuse Team, stated that, "The value of volunteer programs is that they can be run on a minimal budget and are based on the sincere concern of members of our community. Being a volunteer, seeing a family benefit and change because 'I' reached out, can really make a difference in the volunteer's life too. So many people complain about feeling bored, useless and depressed, when being a volunteer could revitalize us — make us feel good, useful and alive again.

Mrs. Abrahamson further outlined the qualities Parent Aides need to possess in order to be effective. "Aides must be persons who enjoy meeting people and they should have good interpersonal skills. It is important that the aides be persons who are non-judgmental, the types of families they will encounter may have value systems different than their own. They must be able to maintain enthusiasm for the family's ability to change, and for that task they will need to have successfully surmounted crisis in their own lives. A sense of humor and the ability to see the positive side of life and people is essential," she said.

The Garrett County team has developed several training modules to provide the potential aides with skills and group support they will need.

Some of the skill-building areas include, Effective Parent/Child Interaction, Crisis Response, Self-Assertion, Setting Limits, Understanding Community Resources, Communication Skills, Child Development and Family Dynamics.

The training focuses on the abusive family which includes verbal or emotional abuse as well as physical abuse. The aides are familiar with the characteristics of the abusive family as identified by Dr. Helfer and Kempe: parents were abused as children, either emotionally or physically; parents did not receive adequate nurturing as they grew up; parents are isolated, therefore they have no resources in time of crisis; a crisis in the family precipitates the abusive incident; there is a "special" child who is the victim of the abuse; parents have unrealistic expectations of the abused child.

The Aides will become a part of the total treatment perspective and function as a member of the team of professionals who are co-ordinating all of the family's support systems.

The new program provides an excellent opportunity for the Parent Aide to personally learn and grow while offering educational and growth experiences to those in need.

Heavy Fines Paid In Fire Arms Case

Firearm charges drew heavy fines and several charged in drug cases received suspended sentences in District Court. Judge Lewis R. Jones fined others and handed down additional suspended sentences during the week ending April 25. One man is being held for trial in Circuit Court.

Olen Fay Orendorf, Star Route, Grantsville, had pled guilty of possession of a deadly weapon and possession of an unregistered rifle at a trial March 7 when a presentence investigation was ordered. Monday, Orendorf was fined $100 on each of the two charges and $15 costs. Orendorf and Matthew Wayne Durst, Amish road, Grantsville, each pleaded guilty of possession for marijuana and a controlled dangerous substance at the March trial with investigations ordered. Monday, Durst was given a two-year suspended sentence on the second count and a one-year suspended sentence on the first count and was placed on probation for two years under supervision. Orendorf was placed on probation for one year before judgment.

Robert Edward Sampson, Naples, Fla., is being held on $1500 full bond on charges of daytime burglary and grand larceny. Following a hearing in District Court the case is being transferred to Circuit Court. The charges grew out of alleged taking of a radio, shotgun and other goods valued at over $500 early this month from Homer L. Bennett at Deer Park.

Jay Kamineck, RD 4, Deer Park, pleaded not guilty of unlawful disposal of sewage at McHenry last August. At Monday's trial, he was found guilty and fined $50 and costs.

Everett Allen Fratz, RD 1, Accident, pleaded guilty of disturbing the peace in Oakland in March. He was fined $50 and costs. A 30-day sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for one year under supervision. Charges of resisting arrest and battery were stetted in plea bargaining.

Barbara Holtschneider, RD 4, Deer Park, was charged with false pretense by passing two worthless checks last August in Mt. Lake Park, last November the case was stetted and she was to make restitution. Full restitution had not been made by the end of March. Monday she pleaded guilty and paid costs. A ten-day sentence was imposed on each count, to run concurrently. The sentences were suspended and she was placed on probation for one year.

David Patrick Shaffer, Swanton, and Gary Allen Ferguson, Deer Park, pleaded guilty of petty larceny and grand larceny of a CB radio and goods of Ralph E. Jacks, at Rosedale, last October. Ferguson also pleaded guilty of larceny of items at Loch Lynn last October. At the trial in January, a presentence investigation was ordered in all cases. Sentences were handed down Monday. Shaffer was given a two-year suspended sentence for grand larceny and placed on probation for two years under supervision. On the petty larceny a one-year concurrent sentence was suspended also, with probation the same. Ferguson received a one-year sentence for grand larceny and six months for petty larceny, to run concurrent. After he has served 20 days of the sentence it is to be suspended and he is to be placed on probation for two years under supervision. On the third charge of larceny, Ferguson, received six-month suspended sentence to run concurrently with the others, probation the same. He also paid additional court costs of $15.

Richard A. Schuback, Lutherville, pleaded guilty of fishing without a license and was fined $20.

Fishing in a designated trout stream during closed season for stocking, $30: Edward J. House, Cumberland, and Paul O. Bowser, RD 1, Friendsville.

Fishing without license in possession, $10, Bruce Elliott Hash, Ft. Meade.

Two charges against Elmer T. Jones, Baltimore, were dropped due to insufficient evidence: having a loaded firearm in a vehicle and failing to appear on a written promise.

DSS Schedules Appreciation Dinner

April has been designated as Maryland Action for Foster Children Month, according to a recent statement by the Maryland Department of Human Resources.

The Garrett County Department of Social Services is planning an appreciation dinner for Garrett County foster parents, in conjunction with Maryland Action for Foster Children Month. There are presently twenty-four foster homes in Garrett County licensed by Social Services. These homes are providing care for fifty-seven children.

The purpose of Maryland Action for Foster Children Month is to increase public knowledge of the need to improve services and care to foster children, to aid in the recruitment of foster parents, and to focus attention on the educational and recreational needs of foster children. Many activities have been planned throughout the state, including workshops, seminars, and meetings for prospective foster parents.

Working with local Departments of Social Services to develop activities and programs for this special month is the Maryland Action for Foster Children Committee, chaired by Dr. Kyra Hewitt. This is a voluntary statewide citizens organization whose purpose is to inform the public of the special problems of the child who cannot be cared for by his own parents.

"The Maryland Action for Foster Children Committee," Secretary Batterton said," has been commended by National Action for Foster Children and by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for being the first action committee to organize and carry out a viable statewide program. Maryland Action for Foster Children is being used as a model for the rest of the nation."

Nationally, there are more than 350,000 children who must live apart from their parents in foster homes. These children range in age from babies to teenagers, and many are handicapped emotionally or physically. At the present time, there are approximately 11,000 children in foster care throughout the State of Maryland. Many children await placement in foster homes.

Any family interested in providing foster care should contact the local Department of Social Services.

Letters to the Editor

REMINDER — Unsigned letters to the editor will NOT be printed under any circumstances. Letters exceeding 300 words will also not be printed.

Sir:

I would like to make a very serious accusation.

The coal miners went back to work. They laugh about the free food stamps they got. One miner I know even got Community Action to put storm windows and doors on his $35,000 home while the miners were on strike.

My husband and I get only $256 a month to live on. We pay $62 a month for food stamps. We pay our bills. But since the miners have gotten a raise, everything in the stores has raised in price.

This hurts elderly people too. Why do we as free citizens have to pay for all these strikes?

Sincerely,
Mrs. O. E. Weimer
Deer Park

Dear Editor:

I would like to apologize for the part I played in the burning of the ticket booth at Northern High School. I regret the image it leaves on Southern High School. I know it is good to have high school rivalry, but an act like that is totally out of line. I hope that in the future, Southern and Northern High Schools can keep a good, competitive rivalry, but keep all aggressions on the sports field.

John Toston, Jr.

Dear Editor:

There is a need for safe, reasonable housing in Garrett County. We feel one solution would be for elderly people with ample living space to sublet or rent a room to tenants. In Garrett County there are a number of elderly residents who have more room than they can care for. Tenants renting from the elderly can share the expenses and chores. If we can get people to respond to the subletting concept it will serve a dual purpose.

I urge anyone interested in including their empty rooms on the rental list kept by the Garrett County Community Action Committee to contact me. I can be reached by calling the Community Action Committee at 334-9431 or by visiting the office at 360 West Liberty Street, Oakland, Maryland.

Sincerely,
James Ford
Housing Worker

Dear Sir:

We had the privilege of having a young lady from Middletown, Md., in our home as an Honor Band student, here to participate in the ninth annual Western Maryland Regional Honor Band.

We didn't have much time to get acquainted with her but we enjoyed what time we did have. She introduced us to her parents Saturday night. They had to be very interested in her to drive that distance.

The concert Saturday night, April 15, was just terrific. What an honor it was for Garrett County to have the Honor Band here.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Tasker

Dear Editor:

Along the roadways of our streets and roads are strewn beer and soda cans, bottles, and paper refuse that mar the beauty of the area.

Last week I collected over one hundred cans and bottles thrown onto the side street of Mt. Lake Park where I live.

If each concerned citizen would collect a mere ten cans and deposit them in the roadside garbage containers, we could clean up litter from our roads in short order.

We should all pitch in to keep Garrett County free of litter.

with the educational program which will help young ladies learn how to address a group of dairymen at public meetings, to familiarize the girls on how to represent local dairymen at various consumer group functions, and how to prepare and conduct various educational skits which will portray the image of the dairy industry to the public.

Mrs. Leuba will also assist with helping the young women project a positive appearance, display their individual personalities, goals, and aspirations, sharpen their knowledge of the dairy industry, and prepare a short talk about some aspect of the dairy industry at the Dairy Princess Banquet.

The banquet will be held Thursday, June 8, at Will o' the Wisp at 7 p.m. Dairy Princess candidates, accompanied by their mothers, will have an opportunity to learn about the banquet and banquet etiquette by attending a dairy-related evening dinner meeting, with friends and relatives encouraged to attend to support their local candidate.

The Area 1 Dairy Princess will receive a cash scholarship of $100 while the runner-up will receive a similar scholarship for $50. Each applicant will receive a gift of appreciation for participation.

Deputies Seeking Purse Snatchers

A young woman living in Mt. Lake Park had her purse grabbed while in the Southern Laundromat April 24.

According to the deputy's report at the Sheriff's Department, Sharon K. Fulk was in the laundromat, with her purse beside her on a table, when two juvenile males approached her from behind and grabbed the purse. The two escaped with the property, containing car keys and her wallet with approximately $25 cash, numerous cards and her driver's license.

Coal Mining Courses Scheduled At GCC

The Maryland State Board of Higher Education recently approved Garrett Community College's program of instruction in Coal Mining Technology with a starting date of September, according to J. Janssen, Acting President. The program is designed to prepare students for deep and surface mining employment. Emphasis is given to multi-tasks competencies in the operation and maintenance of the equipment and systems used in mining activities.

Specialized instruction will include mining methods, safety procedures, engineering graphics, and hydraulic, electrical and mechanical maintenance of equipment. Both associate degrees and certificates will be offered in coal mining technology.

In addition to the credit instruction, non-credit mining courses are offered periodically by the Oakland Center as special training needs arise. Persons interested in mining training may contact Ed Hayduk at GCC.

Five Mailboxes On Rt. 42 Damaged

Five mailboxes were damaged during the night of April 16, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's department which was called to investigate.

Mailboxes and support posts were pulled down and damaged.

All the boxes were on Star Route, Friendsville (Route 42).

Owners were Harland Tichnell and David Enlow, both deputies with the sheriff's department; Blanche Lewellen, Paul Frazee and Melvin Dunithan.

The sheriff's department is also investigating a breaking and entering at the Grantsville Elementary School, when someone broke a glass with a rock and entered the building. Nothing has been reported missing, and damage to the property amounted to $11.

Gene Helbig, Alder Street, Oakland, reported that between April 16 and 22 someone had taken a ½-horsepower water pump from a hunting camp on the Mt. Nebo Road. Mr. Helbig is one of the co-owners of the camp. Loss value was set at $150.

Christina Capel, Route 1, Accident, reported that between 11 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. April 21, someone had entered her home, but no items were discovered missing. Entry was made by kicking a screen from a door and prying open a window. Prying at the window caused the glass to break, with an estimated $40 damage to window and frame.

Emergency Medical Technicians treat Cindy Callis, 16, Mt. Lake Park, who suffered a head injury in a single car accident Saturday afternoon on the Underwood Road three miles south of Oakland. Another passenger, William Cogley, 13, Oakland, was treated for a neck injury. The driver, Ronald Cogley, 16, and another passenger, Timothy Ford, 13, suffered minor injuries. The car was traveling north at a high rate of speed, dropped off the right side of the road and struck a tree. Cogley was charged with having no Maryland license, a registration violation, and negligent and reckless driving. State Trooper Ron Lewis investigated. In the foreground of the photo are, left to right, Carla Kisner, Morgan France and Carol Savage, all of the Southern Rescue Squad; Miss Callis and Ronald Cogley. The Oakland Fire Department was also called to the scene.

HEAVE - HO! — You'd never believe what overwhelming opponent was on the other end of this rope — a dozen fourth and fifth graders who victoriously pulled this group of parents and children over the center line. The tug-of-war was part of a physical education program highlighting the Dennett Road PTA meeting last Thursday evening.

A. D. Naylor, Inc. To Celebrate Grand Opening Beginning Tomorrow

The owners and employees of the A. D. Naylor Company, Inc., one of the oldest businesses in Oakland, will be celebrating the Grand Opening of the new Naylor store located on Third Street, April 27-May 6.

The A. D. Naylor Company was established in 1884 by Alonzo Drake Naylor. The first Naylor building, pictured above, was a blacksmith shop, located on Liberty Street, formerly owned and operated by Charles Sincell. After Mr. Sincell's death, Mr. Naylor purchased the business from Mrs. C. Sincell and soon added wagons, sleds and farm implements to his inventory. As his business grew, Mr. Naylor began providing plumbing, heating and electrical work.

In 1898, on a piece of adjoining ground on Liberty Street purchased from Henry Weber, Mr. Naylor expanded his business still further by constructing a large, three-story building.

Naylor's Hardware was located in the three-story building until it, and an adjacent building which housed Naylor's Appliances, were totally destroyed by fire on September 3, 1975.

For approximately two years, Naylor's was located in a building on Liberty Street just a few hundred yards west of the original store. The company moved into its present new building on Third Street, pictured below, several months ago. The new building, which provides 32,000 square feet of floor space, was constructed by William A. Shirer, Contractor.

A. D. Naylor Company Inc., is presently owned by Arthur, Howard and Allen Naylor, all three grandchildren of A. D. Naylor.

Rescue Personnel Participate In Simulated Crisis

Some 100 members of the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, Georges Creek Ambulance, LaVale Rescue Squad, Frostburg Area Ambulance Service and Tri-Towns Rescue Squad participated in exercises Sunday afternoon to develop skills in dealing with a major crisis.

The simulated disaster involved people at a meeting at the Frostburg Community Center injured when a gas heater caused an explosion, followed by a second explosion. Fourteen "victims" were hurt in the explosions.

The rescue team members present were to determine the types and extent of the injuries, the best treatment for those at the scene and what to do en-route to the hospital.

The event, which lasted from 1 until 5 p.m., tested the knowledge and the training the teams have. Make-up experts Dottie Folk and Doris Beal, both of the Northern Rescue Squad, applied the make up for the injuries.

Injured were taken to Frostburg Community Hospital. The nine teams were given a critique after the transport to the hospital. The triage was carried out under the direction of the Emergency Medical Services, and all local rescue teams and ambulance squads had been invited to participate.

THE HENHOUSE FIVE, minus one, provided musical entertainment for Cub Scouts and their guests during Sunday's circus at Deep Creek Fire Hall. "Hens" were Fred Bowser, John Miller, Tim Umbel, and Mike McGee. This was the second circus sponsored by Scouts from Pack 80, Accident. The circus was co-sponsored this year by members of Pack 45, Friendsville.

WORKING ON A MERIT BADGE? — Jon Garner, Jr., was a most alluring belly dancer complete with bells, sequins, and finger castanets as part of the fun at the Cub Scout circus Sunday at McHenry. The circus was co-sponsored by Packs 80 and 45. No doubt this will be a charming keepsake in a few years for young Garner.

Battling it out during Sunday's Cub Scout circus with "wooden" clubs were these clowns, Bozo and Bunky, in reality brothers Mark and Fred Glotfelty. Clowns were only a part of the many surprises in store for spectators as the second Scout circus was performed before a full house.

Cub Scout Circus Has Large Crowd

Circus acts of all descriptions provided entertainment for over 150 parents and guests of Pack 45 and Pack 80, Cub Scouts of America Sunday at Deep Creek Fire Hall.

Ringmasters were Rev. Fred Illick, Accident, of Pack 80, and Bill Miller, Friendsville, Pack 45. Following all acts, Cubmasters Paul Kolb, Pack 80, and Fred (Butch) Bowser, Pack 45, presented advancements to the scouts. Cubs and leaders received registration cards.

Following the awards presentations, Doug Futch and Jeff Glotfelty were welcomed into Boy Scout Troop 82 by Paul Frank III and Danny Davis. Webelos awards were presented to Tim Everly and Jeff Glotfelty.

Among the acts were Mighty Mike Smoot, strongman; Kent Yoder, magician; Buddy and Tim Dolan, Bobo and Lozo; Tim Illick, Uncle Sam the Tall Man; Woody Futch, bear tamer, and Gordon Noble, bear; Maharajah Mark Robeson, snake charmer; Jon Garner, Jr., belly dancer; Greg Brenneman and Bobby Bornschlagel, Garrett County's funniest horse; Fred Glotflety and Mark Glotfelty, Bozo and Bunky the clowns; Bob Ghrist and Robert Mansfield, Tutti and Fruitti; Brad Hull, Great Gunther the lion tamer, and Scott McGee, the lion; tumbling tumbleweeds, Greg Iden and Eric Martin.

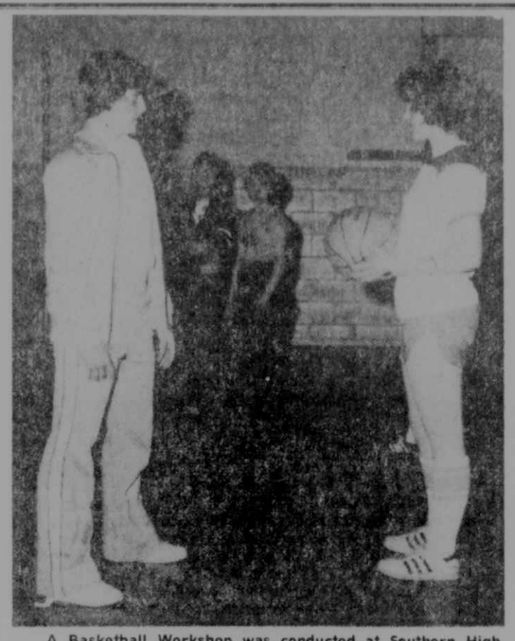
SGCAA To Host Morgan Wootten

Morgan Wootten, basketball coach of Dematha High School, Washington, D. C., will be the guest speaker at the Southern Garrett County Athletic Association's Annual Banquet. The banquet is scheduled for May 16 at the Wisp.

Wootten is perhaps the most respected high school basketball coach in the country. His DeMatha teams have held the number one ranking in the Washingtonarea for fourteen of his twenty-one years at DeMatha. His teams have compiled a 571-84 record and one of the most amazing statistics is that for sixteen years in a row every graduating senior on his teams has earned a college scholarship. He is the author of two books and has hosted television and radio shows in Washington, as well as conducting nurherous clinics at campuses and camps throughout the United States, Canada and South America.

Wootten is the chairman of the selection committee for the McDonald's All-American High School Basketball Team and he is the first high school coach to have two of his former players make the same United States Olympic Team.



Tickets for the banquet are available from any Athletic Association member.

A Basketball Workshop was conducted at Southern High School last week by Roxie Dale of Garrett Community College, assisted by girls' varsity team members, Chris Shaffer, Lisa Stark, Kim Trickett, Bonny Early, Carol McCracken and Lois Filemyr. Thirty girls attended the sessions designed to sharpen their basketball skills such as shooting, dribbling and defensive/offensive techniques. Helen Rostosky, physical education instructor commented, "I feel it was very successful as I could see daily improvement in skills. It should help us in our girls varsity program next year. It also helps in physical education classes . . . the interest was there." Pictured is Roxie Dale, left, giving Sue Snyder some tips on "How to win games and influence opponents."

It's good to know that your child is never alone in an emergency.
Not if you have phones and teach your child how to use them properly.
Just take a few minutes and show your child where the emergency numbers are located in the front of the phone book.
Better yet, write down certain emergency numbers and keep them near your phones. For the fire department, the police department, your family doctor, and the operator.
That's right, the operator. If a child becomes confused or panics, simply dialing "0" can alert the operator, who knows how to handle an emergency.
If your child is preschool age and can't read, point out where "0" is on the dial and how to dial it.
The friendly voice on the other end is a reassurance that someone will always be there, just in case.
Of course, also make sure your child knows never to play with phones, that they're not toys.
Rather, they're a way to save time. And money. And even lives.
Clip the coupon and send for our new, free colorful brochure that tells you how you can use your phones for all they're worth.

Miss Maude Sisler, left, and her brother, Donald, right, display a quilt Miss Sisler designed and made to be presented to Red Skelton, center, last fall. The quilt, depicting the first six flags of the colonies, will be used as part of Mr. Skelton's television and nightclub act finale. Miss Sisler is from Mt. Lake Park and Palm Beach Isles, Fla. Her brother, Don, is a long-time friend and Army buddy of the actor, and sells Mr. Skelton's paintings in his shop in Florida.

Maude Sisler, of Mt. Lake Park and Palm Beach Isles, Fla., has been awarded a finalist medal in the Great Quilts of America contest.

The award-winning quilt, designed in an antique cars motif created by Ms. Sisler, was one of nearly 10,000 entries that were received in the competition sponsored by the U. S. Historical Society, Good Housekeeping and the Museum of American Folk Art.

Mrs. Jinny Beyer, of Fairfax, Va., won the national award with her Ray of Light Medallion quilt.

Quilts were judged on overall beauty and attractiveness, design interpretation, color selection and combination, appropriateness of materials used, quilting technique and workmanship and originality of design and interpretation.

One quilt was chosen from each state to appear in the March edition of Good Housekeeping magazine. Quilts had been entered in June of 1977.

Miss Sisler's finalist medal was the second recent recognition for her quilts. She presented Red Skelton with a quilt she designed and made, depicting the first six flags of the U. S., and Mr. Skelton will now be using the quilt as part of his show's finale. He is a good friend of Miss Sisler's brother, Don, since both were in a military hospital during World War II. Mr. Skelton's pictures are sold in Florida through Don's shop.

County Racers Have Bad Luck

Some of Garrett County's entrants in Morgantown Speedway racing Saturday night had bad luck with mechanical problems and fender-benders.

Dewey Wakefield's car started sixth in the heat race for semi-lates, and finished second. The car started third in the feature among 22 entries, and finished third.

Randy McCartney was also entered in the semi-late running but did not finish in the heat race. In the feature, he started 19th but did not finish as his vehicle was involved in a four-car pileup. In the consolidation race he started ninth and came in fourth.

Frank Lewis, veteran driver in the late model events, started eighth in the heat race and finished sixth. In the feature he began from number 16 position and finished sixth.

Mechanical problems plagued both dune buggy drivers from the county. Neither Skip McCartney nor Randy Murphy finished.

Holzshu recently accepted a coaching position at West Liberty and Kevin is his first recruit. Kevin graduated from GCC this spring with an AA degree in business. During his basketball career at GCC he broke the single game scoring record with 36 points, and the single season scoring record; he led the Lakers with an 18.5 PPG average last season, was named to the All JUCO Conference first team, the All Region first team, and he played in the Region's All Star game.

Uriah Heep's Innocent Victim is the twelfth LP to the group's credit. Heavy metal rock 'n roll fans won't be disappointed by the smooth, clean lines of their particular brand of hard rock.

Several cuts from side one, including "Free 'n Easy," "Keep on Ridin" and Flyin' High," deserve special applause because of the superelastic vocals of Heep's new lead singer, John Lawton.

The flip side "skips" in a few places, but overall, Lawton and another newcomer, bassist Trevor Bolder, leave an indelible mark on Innocent Victim, placing it on top of the Heep!

Observes 80th

For the celebration of her 80th birthday on April 26, Mrs. Lydia Cross, Star Route 1, Oakland, (Sand Flat) was visited by her daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Young, and friend, Mrs. Evelyn Lambert, both of Rockville.

Mrs. Cross was joined for dinner on April 22 at Cornish Manor by Mrs. Young, Mrs. Lambert, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jennings and Ms. Catherine Howland, all of Waynesburg, Pa.

Mrs. Cross has resided in the Oakland area since 1971, after her retirement from the Potomac Electric Power Company, Washington, D. C., where she was employed as an telephone operator for 25 years.

Mrs. Cross' birthday has a special significance for her as a granddaughter, Ms. Gail Ann Young, Boulder, Colorado, was born on the same date.

During periods of time not spent in school, Groves has been a regular part-time employee of Peters Fuel Corporation of Oakland.

This past semester Groves was honored to be the first student from Garrett County to be chosen to participate in the Public Affairs Internship Program sponsored by Frostburg State College. Elwood was selected to run on a "Wallace" delegation ticket for the Democratic National Convention with the endorsement of Governor Wallace.

Groves is a member of the Garrett County Historical Society, Knights of Pythias Garrett Lodge #113, National Rifle Association, and Woodmen of the World. Being involved in various segments of Christian lay work, Groves is also an active member of Mt. Top Christian Assembly.

God cares.

You are worth caring about. No matter what. We believe that because the Bible says it. And our own experience convinces us: our church is filled with people who have known despair, heartache, sickness, guilt. Yet each one has found a way to the caring God. Before this ad was placed we started praying for you because we care too. Give us a call. We'd like to share.

Presented with love, The Assemblies of God.

Vorster Announces Acceptance of Plan For Nambia Rule

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Hoping to remove the threat of economic sanctions and end a yearlong split with the United States and Britain, Prime Minister John Vorster has announced his acceptance of a Western plan for independent black rule in Namibia.

Vorster's acceptance, announced Tuesday and apparently timed to coincide with a U.N. General Assembly debate on the Namibian question, meant the uranium-rich territory could become independent by the end of the year provided the plan also is accepted by the militant South West African Peoples Organization.

(SWAPO leader Sam Nujoma, at the U.N. to attend the special session on Namibia, was noncommittal. "It is his (Vorster's) problem. We have made our position clear," Nujoma told reporters.)

"If the international community truly wants peace in the territory, the way is now completely open to achieve it," Vorster said in a parliamentary address.

He said the former German colony — which Pretoria still calls South West Africa but the rest of the world calls Namibia — could become independent by the end of the year after U.N. supervised elections in line with the Western plan.

That plan was put forward by the five western members of the U.N. Security Council, United States, Britain, France, West Germany and Canada.

They are also South Africa's major trading partners and the threat of economic sanctions against the white-ruled republic was implicit in the yearlong trilateral discussions between SWAPO, Pretoria and the so-called Western Five.

Vorster's acceptance placed the onus for a similar response on Nujoma, leader of the Soviet-backed guerrilla group operating in Namibia.

African delegates at the U.N. pointed out that there were still differences over some points of the Western plan as Vorster accepted them and Nujoma's position.

But they said that these could probably be worked out in subsequent negotiations.

The disputed points included Vorster's insistence on retaining Walvis Bay, Namibia's only deep-water port, and his condition that the present police force maintain law and order during the transition to independence.

One major concession was Vorster's agreement to withdraw the estimated 12,000 South African troops in Namibia if the proposed Namibian assembly, whose members would be elected in voting supervised by the United Nations, asks him to.

His condition, accepted by the Western Five, was "that there should be complete cessation of hostilities, including mine layings, killings, abductions, etc., before any reduction in the South African forces takes place."

If accepted by Nujoma, the Western plan would spell the end of 58 years of South African rule over Namibia — the last 32 of them in defiance of the United Nations, which canceled Pretoria's 1920 League of Nations' mandate over the former German territory in 1946.

New Treatment Brings Remission In Cancer Cases

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A combination of drugs and chemotherapy has eradicated leukemia symptoms in 80 percent of the children undergoing the program, the director of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital said Tuesday.

Dr. Alvin Mauer said 300 children have undergone the 2¼-year program and 80 percent of them no longer exhibit symptoms of leukemia and are able to resume normal lives.

Some of the children, most of whom live within a 200-to 400-mile radius of Memphis, have been off treatment for 10 to 12 years with no recurring symptoms of the lymphocytic leukemia, which strikes nearly 2,000 a year, Mauer said.

But Mauer refused to call the program a "cure."

"The words cure and breakthrough are buzzwords," he said. "What we are trying to determine is how can you finally say to a patient and parent that past a certain point, (the chance of) a relapse is small, if it exists at all?

"In 1962, most people thought that there was no hope of ever finding a cure for leukemia. Now we have some hope."

Mauer said none of the children freed of symptoms for six years after treatment was discontinued have suffered relapses. He said recurrence of the disease after such a period of time is "unusual, especially with lymphocytic leukemia."

"As best as we can define the word 'cure,' we have developed a treatment that will afford a child a chance to lead a normal productive life," the doctor said.

Leukemia causes bleeding problems and infection complications. Mauer said the treatment program, developed over 16 years of research, centers on clearing the blood.

When the disease is diagnosed, children are given three drugs that flush the leukemic cells from the blood and bone marrow.

Once the remission process begins, additional drugs are combined with radiation treatments to clear the leukemic cells from the nervous system.

In the final phase, two drugs — 6-Mercaptoparine and Methodtrexate — are administered.

The review of the treatment program at the Memphis hospital and its results will be presented by Dr. Steve George, head of the St. Jude's biostatistics section, before a meeting of the American Society for Clinical Investigation at San Francisco Sunday.

Trade Deficit Drops Again In March

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S trade deficit with other nations dropped to $2.78 billion last month — almost $2 billion below February's record imbalance — because of a big reduction in oil imports, the Commerce Department reported today.

Despite the better showing in March, the United States posted a $9.68 billion deficit in the first three months of this year, compared with $6.21 billion for the same period in 1977.

February's record $4.5 billion deficit was spurred by large increases in oil imports, Japanese cars and allegedly illegally underpriced steel.

The March figure was nearer January's $2.4 billion deficit that economists say more accurately reflects actual conditions. March was the 22nd consecutive month in which the United States imported more foreign goods than it exported.

But Treasury Undersecretary Anthony Solomon says the worse is now over for the United States. Solomon predicted Tuesday that the national deficit would be smaller for the rest of the year.

The trade deficit has important inflation and employment meaning for the United States.

When Americans consume more foreign goods than they sell overseas, the value of the dollar lessens and all prices go up. The consumption of foreign goods also bites into markets of domestic producers, which can lead to less output and fewer jobs.

This condition was reflected last summer when foreign steel producers sold goods below cost in the United States. Domestic manufacturers and union leaders said illegally underpriced Japanese and European steel led to 60,000 steelworkers losing their jobs.

The trade picture in April ought to show more improvement than March since the United States took major actions to restrain domestic inflation and to protect the dollar from further devaluation.

Erlichman Will Be Released On Parole Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Ehrlichman is one sunrise away from freedom today, while two other convicted Watergate conspirators apparently are nearing release on parole.

Ehrlichman, Richard Nixon's chief domestic adviser, is scheduled to be released Thursday from the minimum-security federal prison camp at Safford, Ariz., after serving 18 months of his reduced 1-to-4 year sentence.

Meanwhile, a parole interview is scheduled next week for H.R. Haldeman, Nixon's former chief of staff. John Mitchell's lawyer sought to expedite a similar interview for the ailing former attorney general.

Judge John Sirica originally sentenced Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman to 2½ to 8 years in prison for conspiring to obstruct justice in the Watergate case, but later reduced the sentences to 1-to-4 years.

Carter Says He Will Insist On Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter says he will insist on a $25 billion tax cut despite strong congressional support for a smaller reduction.

Carter told a nationally broadcast news conference Tuesday that in his judgment, a $25 billion reduction in taxes is "about the right figure" and would not be inflationary.

If the proposed tax cut were to be blocked "it would mean that we would have a million people out of work by the end of the first 12 months after the tax reduction would have been enacted."

Carter also made a strong pitch for tax reform, which appears doomed in Congress this year.

To stress his point, he cited the case of a surgeon who took a $14,000 tax credit for his yacht last year and a businessman who charged off 338 lunches last year, more than $10,000 in so-called business lunches.

He said such cases were "a gross abuse of the average American family" and were the kind of problems his plan hopes to correct.

Carter blamed congressional resistance to his reform proposals on "an unbelievable number of highly qualified, very intelligent, very effective lobbyists trying to induce the members of Congress to preserve those special privileges for people who have them, because they are so powerful and so influential now and in the past they could carve out for themselves some special deal in the income tax laws of our country at the expense of the average American family."

The president had another busy day on tap today, starting with a meeting with the congressional Black Caucus, followed by meetings with AFL-CIO President George Meany on labor reform. He also was meeting with congressional and intelligence advisers on an intelligence agency charter.

Italian Politician Shot This Morning

ROME (UPI) — Gunmen shot a prominent local politician in the legs today in a Red Brigades-style ambush outside his home and doctors said he had 11 bullet holes in his legs.

Police said three or four attackers opened fire on Christian Democrat Girolamo Mechelli, former president of the Lazio regional government, then fled in a green car.

Mechelli, 55, was rushed to hospital. Doctors said despite the 11 bullet holes, his condition was not critical.

"I was boarding my car when I heard shots and felt an acute pain in my legs," Mechelli told reporters. "I fell on my back and I saw two people, one of them wearing a white raincoat, walk away without too much hurry. On the other sidewalk another man went in the same direction."

Mechelli's wife, who looked out of her window seconds after the attack, said she saw her husband on the ground and first thought he had slipped on the rain-slick pavement.

Citizens Urged To Review Social Security Records

It is a good idea for people in the area to check their social security record every three years or so to make sure that all their earnings are being correctly reported, James E. Robertson, Social Security District Manager in Cumberland, said this week.

People can get a free postcard form for this purpose at the Cumberland office. All a person has to do is fill out the card, stamp it, and send it to the address on the card. In return, he or she will receive a statement of the earnings reported to the person's social security record.

The statement will show actual yearly earnings for the past few years, along with a summary of the earnings reported to the record since the person began working in jobs covered by social security.

Also, Mr. Robertson continued, if the person is 55 or older, he or she will receive an estimate of the retirement benefits payable at 65 based on current earnings and benefit rates.

There is a reason why a person should check his or her record about every 3 years, Mr. Robertson added. That is because corrections cannot generally be made in reported earnings more than 3 years, 3 months, and 15 days after the end of the year in which the earnings were reported.

A person who thinks there is an error in reported earnings should get in touch with the Cumberland Social Security Office, Mr. Robertson said. He or she should bring whatever evidence they have that shows the correct earnings. This might include Forms W-2 (Wage and Tax Statement), pay slips, tax returns, statements from employers, and similar evidence.

Anyone wishing to file an application for Social Security retirement, survivors or disability benefits, Medicare, Supplemental Security Income or Black Lung Benefits, or anyone wishing free information or free pamphlets about the above Programs, should telephone the Social Security Office at 724-0970.

For those wishing to write or visit, the Cumberland office is at 316 Paca Street and is open Monday through Friday, except National Holidays, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Small avalanches rumble in the distant mountains as the spring thaw advances. Every hemlock sprig is bursting with new growth. In the sky as in the river there is life and motion, restlessness and questing. Peace . . . without stillness.

Doesn't that tell us something about our own quest in the world God made? Peace without stillness is one of the supreme longings of mankind. It seems to HAPPEN when every thing or person realizes his mission and pursues it.

Next Sunday you'll have a precious opportunity to join your neighbors at church. That's where folks are seeking — and finding — their mission in the world God made.

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE OTHER ANANIAS

Lesson for April 30, 1978

Background Scripture: Acts 9:1-31
Devotional Reading: Philippians 3:3-11

There are three men with the name of Ananias in the Book of Acts. One of these, the husband of Saphirra, was struck dead as he was discovered in the midst of attempting to deceive the apostle Peter. His example hardly provides the name with a good impression.

Rev. Althouse

Another Ananias appears near the end of Acts when Paul appears before the Sanhedrin. While Paul is speaking, this Ananias, the high priest, orders him struck across the mouth and Paul turns on him, calling him a "white-washed wall" (23:1-5). Although he occupies a place of great religious prominence as high priest, this Ananias hardly improves the image of the name in Acts.

A damascus disciple

The third Ananias in Acts, however, is a different man altogether. We know very little about him except that he is one of the Lord's disciples in Damascus at the time when Saul journies there to continue to harass the church. Of course, on the Damascus road Saul has an experience in which he is struck blind.

Luke tells us that God spoke to Ananias in a vision and this tells us that Ananias was at least a man who was receptive to God's presence. Although he probably did not seek visions from God, he did seek God's will and he was open to the leading of the Spirit. Thus, when God speaks to him, he hears and responds.

Thus, although we know little about this Ananias, what we do know makes him distinctive. Although God speaks to many people and would send them visions, visitations and voices, many never hear or see because they are not expectant and open.

"Here I am, Lord," Ananias responds when God calls him. Some of us might reply with a more cautious, "Yes, what do you want?" or an annoyed, "What is it this time?" When Ananias heard his name called, however, his answer indicated his commitment to the Lord.

An evil reputation

Ananias must have been floored when he realized what it was that God wanted him to do. The last man he wanted to visit was this Saul of Tarsus who had an evil reputation as a persecutor of the church. We can sympathize with the objection Ananias raised.

Nevertheless, God prevailed upon him to do precisely what he ordered for this Saul would be "a chosen instrument of mine to carry my name before the Gentiles and kings and the sons of Israel" (9:15). Despite Ananias' personal fears and misgivings, he subjected them all to God's will. If God ordered it, he would do it.

We can be certain that he carried out his mission with some fear and trembling. Despite God's assurances, it was hard to overcome his feelings. But he did it and because he did, Christianity gained its greatest missionary and apostle.

That is the last we ever hear of the other Ananias, but it is enough to gain our admiration, respect, and emulation.

DRUG WARNINGS NOW REQUIRED!

A Food and Drug Administration rule requiring that women taking estrogen be given written brochures describing the risks and benefits of the female hormone has already taken effect. Some 8 million U.S. women take estrogen during and after menopause.

FDA says the warnings are needed because of widespread estrogen use and studies linking the use of estrogen-containing drugs to cancer of the uterus and to birth defects. Drug manufacturers are required to print the brochures and supply them to pharmacists and other dispensers of estrogen drugs.

POPULAR CULTURE:

Mirror of American Life XIV:

Editor's Note: This is the 14th in a series of 15 articles exploring "Popular Culture: Mirror of American Life." In this article, sociologist Bennett M. Berger of the University of California, San Diego, discusses the variety of life-styles in America and the impact of the counterculture of the 1960s. This series was written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

POPULAR CULTURE AND AMERICAN LIFE-STYLES

By Bennett M. Berger

Popular culture embraces far more than the TV shows, movies, magazines, books, newspapers, recordings, sports, and other theatrical events that engage our time and attention.

It also includes the games we play, the pictures on our walls, the clothes on our backs, the furniture in our homes, and the food we consume, from McDonald's hamburgers to organically grown rice.

From the enormous variety of such things that are available, we select some (but not others) to watch, read, listen to, hang, eat, wear, sit on, play with, and otherwise buy or participate in.

Our selections usually have some consistency or coherence to them.

If one knows a person's taste in TV or music or cuisine, one can predict with some probability what his or her taste is likely to be in reading, clothes, or movies. The particular pattern of selections constitutes an individual's (or a group's) style of life, for "style" in anything refers to recurrent motifs or patterns which make a variety of objects or events recognizably "like" each other in some sense.

But how or why people go about selecting their life-styles in the ways they do requires an understanding of their resources, for their selections (and therefore their life-styles) are strongly affected by such things as their income, education, and age, as well as by other features of their social background.

Sociologist Herbert Gans has pointed out, for example, that shows appealing to the lowest "taste-publics" are gradually disappearing from network TV because the younger generation of even the lowest income groups is far better educated than their parents were, and their tastes are consequently more sophisticated.

As the size and characteristics of audiences change, so does the popular culture.

The "Counterculture"

Some of the most interesting changes in the popular culture over the past decade or so have been introduced through the so-called "counterculture," a taste-culture promoted mostly (but not exclusively) by the young. But even so unusual a life-style as this can be understood in terms of the social backgrounds and circumstances of the people who shared it.

They were, in a sense, a leisure class: well educated, with no direct experience of financial insecurity, with disposable incomes provided largely by parents. Unbound by institutional commitments to job, family, community, or career, they were free to "do their thing," which they did with great abandon.

The culture they created was dominated by an antipathy to the impersonality and bureaucratic character of middle-class life which, in their view, had preprogrammed them for bland corporate lives in mass-produced suburbs. In its place they substituted a culture of "liberation," which took a variety of forms.

Sexual freedom asserted liberation from restraints on physical pleasure. The psychedelic drugs were used to transcend the conventional limits of consciousness and achieve breakthroughs to the perception of "other realities." Exotic, ecstatic, and occult religions were used for similar spiritual purposes.

Their music, too, was ecstatic: enormously amplified guitars producing sheets of sound composed and played by the young themselves in rhythms alien to most of the older generation. Its lyrics preached love, sex, drugs, and criticisms of "Establishments" who repressed liberation.

Dress and personal adornment had flamboyance, flash, and glitter, or expressed other modes of disavowing conservative, middle-class clothing.

Residences were often communal, putting sometimes large groups in intimate daily contact with each other in "intentional families," providing a kind of continual mutual psycho-therapy in which utter "openness and honesty" were affirmed as liberation from repressed guilt and shame.

Add to these the great moral crusade of the civil rights movement and the movement against the most detested war in the history of the United States, and a political dimension was added to the cultural rebellion of the young against an "Establishment" identified with war, death, repression, money-grubbing, and the oppression of colonial peoples at home and abroad.

Permanent Revolution

Although the distinctive life-style of the "youth culture" of the 1960s was severely weakened, its influence is still visible throughout other American life-styles and taste-cultures.

Sexuality is now more open and candid in books, magazines, films, and storefront massage parlors. Marijuana became so widespread that many states have "decriminalized" (if not legalized) it. Flamboyant clothes and jewelry are now a familiar part of middle-class male dress, even as blue jeans and work shirts become chic and expensive.

Life, which appealed to everyone, is gone, but Rolling Stone and New Times, which appeal to the heirs of the counterculture, are successful magazines.

Encounter groups and similar instant therapies are available every weekend as recreation at countless community centers. Communal experiments in solar heating and waste disposal are now part of a mainstream environmentalist movement.

The "hippies," who loved wilderness and went "back to the land," were a vanguard that has produced the first net increases in rural population in many decades. Natural food-stores are everywhere. Students carry their books not in briefcases or book bags but in knapsacks made for hitchhiking or camping in the wilderness.

Bob Dylan or The Rolling Stones may never have a prime-time TV series, but Sonny and Cher had, as well as other performers who adapt elements of counterculture music to more traditional pop forms to create a mix that successfully appeals to much larger audiences.

Transmitting Culture

Those who adopt a particular life-style frequently attempt to influence other groups to adopt that culture and pass it on. "Country and Western" music, formerly part of a taste-culture limited largely to Southern and Western rural people, has in recent times been transformed into a music with national, even international, appeal.

Obsolete or declining styles in popular culture may be revived through fashions for nostalgia, as happened recently with ragtime music (through the film "The Sting") or rural family life ("The Waltons") or the teen-age culture of the early 1950s ("Happy Days," "American Graffiti").

Formerly stigmatized life-styles (for example, the urban black ghetto) may achieve subcultural legitimacy through TV shows like "Sanford and Son" or through soul music or "Afro" styles, which transform something once regarded as unattractive — kinky hair, for example — into something attractive, even beautiful.

Such changes are the more or less temporary outcomes of perpetual conflicts over the "politics of culture." So long as the moral or aesthetic standards of some groups are offensive or threatening to the standards of other groups, these struggles will continue. Conflicts over sex or violence on TV are only the most blatant examples of much more widespread (and more subtle) struggles over what should be legitimately available in the popular culture.

The diversity of popular culture and life-styles, then, represents the diversity of American social groups. At the same time, it is as true of popular culture as it is of other "goods," that the interests of some groups are better represented than other groups, and the less well represented groups continually make claims that will be resisted by the more established groups.

Out of these struggles over cultural pluralism, one can hope that some balance can be achieved between the common culture that defines us as Americans, and the plurality of life-styles that defines us as the particular kinds of Americans we are.

New Jersey Man Hurt In Mishap

A New Jersey man was listed in "guarded" condition late last week in Sacred Heart Hospital in Cumberland following a one-car accident on Route 40 in Garrett county, near Turner's Dairy.

Tfc. R. B. Westmoreland of the Garrett detachment of the Maryland State Police reported that the injured, Richard L. Culton, 21, Frenchtown, N. J., was a passenger in the vehicle driven by Edward W. Shelton of Fairmont, W. Va.

The police report said Shelton was traveling east on Route 40, at an apparent high rate of speed about 7 p.m., when he lost control of his car. He hit a telephone pole and then continued over an embankment. The trooper reported the car was a total loss.

Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad responded and transported Culton, who sustained multiple injuries, to Cumberland.

I fail to see anything amusing about amusement parks. Maybe I'm un-American, but I'll never understand why anyone would shell out hard earned money to be jiggled, jostled, tossled and turned at 70 m.p.h.!

There is one ride which I dread above all others. I'm not sure what it's called, but I affectionately refer to it as "The Stomach Pump." This ride is an adaptation of the Ferris Wheel. The attendant straps you in cages that perform a complete 360° swivel as the main wheel rotates. Meanwhile the butterflies in your stomach are doing a polka routine.

This ride doesn't nauseate me — I have a cast iron stomach. Unfortunately, someone in my compartment always gets car sick. Once the car is upside down, everything in your pockets conveniently plummets out. Finally the car rights itself, and there you sit with a quarter wedged in your left nostril.

After that "thrill" you should proceed to the roller coaster with neck brace in hand. A roller coaster leaves you breathless — and screaming for a priest. I spend the entire ride holding onto the kid in the seat ahead of me who waves his arms when he should be holding on for dear life.

Next we have the "bumper cars," popular with prospective whiplash victims. The cars are little metal compacts with rubber girdles that are powered by a metal pole which touches an electrically charged ceiling. When the juice is turned on your car goes careening around the enclosure trying to score fender-benders — it reminds me of the parking lot at Heck's. It helps to grab onto something for support. I grabbed the metal pole one-time and was nearly electrocuted.

Let us not forget the "Fun House." For five tickets you get to stumble through a pitch black structure equipped with mirrors, blood-curdling screams and a cardiac intensive care unit. Strange ghouls and macabre madmen jump out at you with machetes and hangman's rope. (I think I've just described Liberty Avenue in Pittsburgh). And they call it "fun"?

I even dislike the merry-go-round. Listening to a calliope's rendition of "Over the Waves" time after time is almost as torturous as watching Gilligan's Island reruns or attending a Shaun Cassidy concert.

I also object to the "horses" on the merry-go-round. With every attention to detail, the manufacturers have included stirrups — for three year olds. That means I ride with my chin resting on my knees. The saddle was also intended for a three year-old's derriere, and I find it extremely unpleasant going up and down while sitting on the saddle horn. They also tell you that if one can grab the brass ring, one can have a free ride. One should not attempt any such thing. One could get a dislocated shoulder of have one's wrist stretched around the 30-foot diameter of the merry-go-round.

There's another contraption at every park that resembles a big barrel. After everyone is in place, the darn thing starts spinning, pasting you to the wall with centrifugal force. Then the floor drops out! There you stand with your lips next to your right ear, praying that the floor will come back up. The next time you opt for this ride, pry your head loose for a second and look down into the pit after the floor's left — it's not a pleasant sight, (need I say more?).

I must direct my last comment to mothers everywhere. Take this down, it's important: Five year-old children and great big globs of cotton-candy are not compatible! I'm tired of trying to comb the stuff from my coif. I also dislike sitting on a chocolate dipped ice cream cone, and orange slush does not look good on a ban-lon shirt.

Personally, I think refreshments should be disallowed from amusement parks. For one thing, they're messy. Secondly, they're over-priced, and besides that, they taste awful. I recently tried cotton candy for the first and last time. It tasted like the stuffing from an old Sealy Posturepedic mattress.

Better yet, maybe they could ban amusement parks altogether.

Corliss Diary Part Of Company Archives

A copy of the diary and photographs taken during the 1919 trip of Frank R. Corliss and his wife Catherine to South America with the Aluminum Co. of America have become a part of the official archives of the Company.

The late Mr. Corliss was the first civil engineer to arrive in Oakland in 1922 for construction of Deep Creek Lake.

Permission to use the memorabilia was given to Adrian C. Smith, international attorney for the Alcoa Aluminum Company of Pittsburgh, Pa. by Stella Corliss Caroll, daughter of the late Mr. Corliss.

Boat Owners Are Urged To Check Crafts Before Use

Harry L. George, Chief of the Marine Division of the Natural Resources Police, offers this advice:

"On the first beautiful day, folks should resist the urge to jump in a boat which has been idle all winter and go for a ride.

"It should be thoroughly checked for things like bilge pumps, gas line leaks, punctures in the hull and other deficiencies which could have developed while the boat was not in use."

Without pre-season precautions, marine safety officials agree, a boat operator could well find himself between Scylla and Charybdis on his first day out.

"Of great importance," said Chief George, "are personal flotation devices. Boat owners should make certain the devices still work and that they are in readily accessible places on board."

Anyone seeking specific advice on proper checking over of their vessels can seek it from any Marine Division officer or by calling Marine Division headquarters in Annapolis or Easton.

Another suggestion to avoid trouble is to take the free home study Basic Boating Course offered by the Marine Division.

The course consists of an updated booklet containing safe boating procedures, rules of the road, water skiing regulations and other such information for safety afloat.

Applicants then take an open book exam. Those who complete the test successfully, and more than 20,000 have during the past four years, receive a certificate, a jacket patch, a wallet-sized card and a safe boating decal for their vessel.

DNR Reports Lots Of Fishing Activity

Open trout streams are being fished quite heavily with good results, the Department of Natural Resources announced late last week.

According to DNR, Garrett County streams are producing fair catches to the continuous angler's action. Fishing in Savage River and Piney Run Dams is slow with water conditions high and clear.

Potomac River fishermen in Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties are enjoying good fishing for largemouth bass, catfish, and carp using minnows and worms. Trout streams in these counties are closed.

NO HUNTING OR TRESPASSING

Bausch & Lomb, Inc., will not be responsible for any injuries or liabilities incurred as a result of trespassing on its property. Snowmobiles, trail bikes, motorcycles and hunters are prohibited on the company's property. Trespassing will be prohibited on all of the company's property except those areas considered public access areas.

HUNTSMAN

1. Air goes directly to the burning logs from the Huntsman's down damper.
2. Secondary air from the upper damper is drawn into the flames, providing added oxygen to burn volatile gases.
3. Exhaust air must go around the top baffle into the upper chamber, while the top of the firebox contains fire heat for increased efficiency.
4. Heavy duty firebrick liners help retain high heat needed for efficient burning.

The Almanac

Today is Wednesday, April 26, the 116th day of 1978 with 249 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning star is Mercury.

The evening stars are Mars, Venus, Saturn and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

American naturalist John James Audubon was born April 26, 1785.

On this day in history:

In 1607, the first British colonists to establish a permanent settlement in America landed at Cape Henry, Va.

In 1869, federal troops shot and killed John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Abraham Lincoln, near Port Royal, Va., despite orders to capture him alive.

In 1944, the federal government took over the Chicago headquarters of Montgomery Ward after the mail-order company defied a ruling of the National Labor Relations Board.

A thought for the day: Thomas Jefferson, third president of the United States, said, "Delay is preferable to error."

April 30 Last Day To Place 1976 Corn In Reserve

Maryland farmers have until April 30 to transfer their 1976-crop corn and sorghum under loan into the Grain Reserve Program, according to Paul A. Crowl, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee. He also reminds farmers that May 31 is the final day to obtain price support loans on 1977-crop corn and sorghum.

Working with the Feed Grain and Wheat Set-aside Program to improve the prices farmers receive for their crops, the Reserve Program isolates grain from the market until prices rise to stated levels, or for three years. Farmers receive advanced storage payments annually of 25 cents per bushel for wheat, corn, barley and sorghum, and 19 cents per bushel for oats. While in the reserve, the grain is subject to the same storage requirements as grain in the regular Price Support Loan Program. It can be stored either on the farm or in commercial warehouses, Crowl said.

Nationally, about 91 percent of the 330-million-wheat reserve goal had been reached as of April 17. A survey of ASCS field offices during this period showed that 300 million bushels of wheat had been placed in the reserve. ASCS is currently accepting applications for the Set-aside and the Grain Reserve Program.

Goldstein Reports March Tax Revenue Up 24 Percent

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced late last week that State and local income tax revenue for the month of March 1978 totaled $55,055,177, an increase of 24.23 percent over the $44,316,991 collected during the same month last year.

For the first eight months of the current fiscal year, State and local income tax revenue amounts to $899,724,508, a 15.37 percent increase over the $779,835,069 received during the comparable period of Fiscal Year 1977.

"This revenue does not include the money received with individual tax returns during April 1978. Last year, that additional revenue helped to set a record for the amount of income tax collected during a single month," Mr. Goldstein said.

The Comptroller noted that approximately 950,000 refund checks have been mailed to Maryland income taxpayers. "Each check averages more than $169. A total of $160.7 million has been refunded to State income taxpayers so far this year. Those taxpayers who filed last minute tax returns and are due a refund check can expect a six to eight week wait for their checks."

CHILDREN AND SPORTS

By Dr. M. S. Sugar, Garrett Medical Center, Oakland

In recent years organized competitive sports have become popular with children less than 12 or 13 years of age. There are many benefits to be derived from these activities in young people, but also the potential of great harm. Close supervision by coaches and well-trained parents and volunteers is extremely important and safeguards must be taken to insure the safety and well-being of each child. Sports should be selected that are tailored to the needs of growing children.

The positive value of sports should always be kept in mind. These include the benefit of physical fitness and the value of recreational physical conditioning as a life-long habit. Physical exercise is necessary for good health and families should strive to engage in physical activities together as in integral part of family life. It would be hoped that young children do not end up in organized competitive team sports solely by default at an early age when such activities may not be appropriate for their needs.

Several questions should be asked by parents of young children who want to join a competitive team sport.

1. Does the child really want to participate?
2. Does the child know he may be a bench warmer?
3. Is the child ready to tolerate losing?
4. How do the parents feel about possibly dealing with a child on a losing team?
5. What will the family do if the child decides to drop out or quit?

Parents should be aware of any unsafe practices and equipment in the sports program their children are involved in. They should know if those persons in charge are qualified to supervise a sports program. They should make some judgment as to whether the sport chosen is suited to their child's ability and maturity. Only then can we be sure of children getting the most from their sports experience.

Mathias Tries To End Marriage Tax On Working Couples

Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) recently introduced legislation to abolish the so-called "marriage tax" on working couples who pay higher income taxes than single taxpayers.

It is estimated that each year more than 13 million married, two-earner couples filing joint returns pay higher taxes than they would if they were single and living together.

"While many people blame society's ills on the breakup of the family," Senator Mathias explained, "working couples frequently are advised by tax consultants that they can save money by divorcing and continuing to live together."

"This tax on marriage — or as some have called it, the sin subsidy — runs against the entire tradition of our tax policy, and against the deep-rooted traditions of our society," Mathias said.

To rectify the situation he has introduced a bill which gives married persons the option of filing their income tax statements under tax rates applicable to single individuals.

Mathias said his legislation "will not provide a lower rate for married couples but will equalize the tax rate so that men and women who happen to be married will not have to pay more taxes than single people."

In addition, the bill permits married persons filing separately to take advantage of the credit for employment-related expenses, such as child-care, as do single taxpayers. However, married persons who prefer to file jointly would be unaffected and single taxpayers would not incur any greater tax liability.

Because of inflation and as part of the movement toward improving the economic, social, and professional status of women, he noted, many marriages have both spouses contributing to family income. However, under present income tax laws, "two-earner couples" face higher tax rates than single persons or married couples with only one person working.

"The marriage tax affects people at all income levels," Mathias said, pointing out that two married workers, employed at about the minimum wage, "must pay over 62 percent more than if they were single."

This is "so irrational" he said, "that many people find it hard to believe it exists, yet it does exist under present federal law."

Although similar bills to eliminate the tax on marriage have been treated by Congress as a matter of low priority in the past, public interest in the problem is rising, Mathias said.

The most accurate fertilizer spreader you can buy

The Vicon Spreader uses an exclusive fast-action spout moving back and forth at 540 times per minute to give even, rectangular coverage instead of the usual circular pattern. That means increased profit because you get uniform fertilizer coverage, resulting in better stands and higher yields.

Give the Vicon fertilizer spreader a try. It costs no more than others. But it's better.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whitacre To Celebrate 47th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whitacre, Route 5, Oakland, will celebrate their forty-seventh wedding anniversary on May 7, 1978.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitacre (Joe and Evelyn) were married on May 4, 1931 at Deer Park and, with the exception of a short period immediately following their marriage, they have resided at the present Whitacre farm on the Oakland-Sang Run Road.

Mr. Whitacre was born in Keyser and attended schools in both West Virginia and Maryland. He retired from the Garrett County Roads Department in May 1970 and since that time has occupied himself as a "gentleman farmer."

Mrs. Whitacre, the former Evelyn Sines, was born in Oakland and attended schools in the area. Evelyn spends much of her time in her flower garden.

The Whitacres are the parents of five children, Delores (Mrs. Lawrence Proulx), Robert Whitacre, Helen (Mrs. Richard Sines), Sheldon Whitacre, and Sandra (Mrs. Kenneth Jamison) all of Oakland.

In addition to the five children, they have seventeen grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. The Whitacres have also raised twenty-one foster children for which they have received numerous letters of praise from the State of Maryland appropriately signed by the governor.

In recognition of their parents, the five Whitacre children are providing an open house for all family and friends on May 7 from 2:00 - 4:00 p.m. The open house will take place at the Whitacre farm on the Oakland-Sang Run Road.

"Skip" Schwing Returns To U.S.C.

Franklin B. (Skip) Schwing has returned to the University of South Carolina campus in Columbia after spending several days of oceanographic field research in Florida with a group of marine science students. The group measured several physical characteristics in the Indian River estuary near Ft. Pierce, Fla., including water depth, currents, temperature, and salinity. The data will be used to determine if the relationship between water level and current velocity changes through the estuary.

A senior in Marine Science, Schwing has participated in several field studies, including a $600,000 National Science Foundation study to determine if estuaries act as nutrient traps. He is also working with Dr. Bjorn Kjerfve in the analysis of much of the data with the use of a series of computer programs.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Schwing of Accident, Schwing is also a member of Mortar Board, the senior honorary society. He is a Dean's list student; and because of this fact recently had breakfast with Gerald Ford at the university.

Precession

The fact that the earth's axis wobbles has been discussed earlier. Caused by the gravitational pull of the sun, and the moon, the wobble causes the earth's distance from the sun to vary over a 23,000 year period. Presently the earth's perihelion is in January. This shortest distance between earth, and sun will gradually increase over the next 10,000 years so that the earth will be at perihelion during the summer. As this occurs, summers will become warmer, and winters will become colder. The earth's motion along its orbit, because of the wobble, causes the equinoxes to occur a little sooner each year. This is the precession of the equinoxes.

Moon

Passing through Last Quarter phase at 4:02 p.m. on Saturday, the moon is wanning all week. Moonrise will be 11:04 p.m. tonight. Next Tuesday moonrise will be at 3:48 a.m.

Mars is among the stars of Cancer, near the Beehive Star Cluster, high in the sky at sunset. Jupiter is high in the west at sunset among the stars of Gemini. Saturn sets about 2 hours after midnight with the stars of Leo. Uranus is faint, visible near the brightest star in Libra in the east sky about 3 hours after sunset.

Daylength Increases

Thirteen minutes more daylight will be available by the end of the week. Sunrise was at 5:26 a.m. this morning. Sunset will be 13 hours 4 minutes later at 7 p.m. Tuesday the sun will rise 8 minutes earlier not counting the extra hour later due to daylight saving time. Sunset will be 5 minutes later on Tuesday than it was today, again not counting the hour later of daylight savings time. Sunrise will be at 6:18 a.m. while sunset will be at 8:11 p.m. next Tuesday.

Scouting's highest award of Eagle was presented to Neil Walter, 16, the third of son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil E. Walter, Rockville, on February 28. Neil is the third son in his family to receive the Eagle Rank.

The presentation was made at a banquet at Millian Memorial Methodist Church, which sponsors Boy Scout Troop 219. Neil and his two older brothers, Mark, 18, and James, 21, are or were members of Troop 219.

Neil is a junior in Peary High School, Mark is a senior at the same school and James is a senior at the University of Maryland, majoring in Aerospace Engineering.

Accident Resident Outshoots Marine Instructor During Seabee Duty

Norris W. Rush of Accident, a Naval Reserve Seabee, recently became something of a celebrity at the Quantico, Va. Marine Corps Base while serving his two weeks' annual military duty. He scored four points higher than his Marine instructor while firing for qualification with an M-60 machine gun.

"The instructor fired before I did," Rush said, "so I knew I did pretty well. But I was surprised at the score." His 160 points on the range qualified him for the rating of Expert, a designation he also holds for the M-16 rifle.

It was only the second time Rush had fired the M-60, the first being a short time after joining the Seabees on active duty in 1973. As far as "tricks of the trade," Rush said he really didn't have any. "I just did what they taught us to do. Once you've got the basics down, though, you just have to develop your own technique."

An Equipment Operator Second Class with the Seabees, Rush's combat-related training, such as that at Quantico, is balanced with training in his specialty as a heavy equipment operator. In Accident, he drives a fuel truck for W. H. Fratz, Inc.

While on active duty with the Seabees, he served in a number of locations, including Okinawa, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Spain and Diego Garcia, an island in the Indian Ocean. Returning to civilian life last October, he affiliated with the Cumberland detachment of Reserve Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 23 in January. He and his wife, Sandy, were married in March, 1977.

At Quantico with his 600-man Battalion, Rush also participated in a variety of combat training exercises, including a full-scale, day-long war game which simulated the Seabees' defense of a construction area from an "aggressor force" of Marines.

Asked about the reaction of his instructor to his high score, Rush said "he just smiled — we were all pretty busy." Rush has yet to fire a pistol for qualification.

May 1 Proclaimed Save The Children Day In Maryland

Acting Governor Blair Lee has declared May 1 "Save the Children Day '78" at the request of the Save the Children organization, an international child assistance agency.

The Save the Children agency, headquartered in Westport, Connecticut, plans to focus public concern on needs of poor children, their families and communities throughout the world, and to serve as an annual occasion for rededication to serving the needs of children everywhere.

In schools throughout the United States children will compose letters to world leaders asking for new efforts toward world peace. In many areas, children will plant trees and undertake clean-up projects, and in the 17 countries where Save the Children maintains field offices there will be observances appropriate to each country's traditions and cultures.

Save the Children works in 230 communities in the U. S., helping people in Appalachia, inner cities, the rural south, and among the American Indians and Chicanos. The 46-year-old organization also assists children and their families in overseas areas, including Bangladesh, Cameroon, Columbia, the Dominican Republic, Indonesia, Mexico, and Lebanon.

THE WHEELS OF MAN.

And, if the guy who invented the wheel could see it we think he'd be mighty proud of what Puch's done with his handiwork.

The Puch has pedals like a bicycle and a motor like your motorboat. Which means it can whip you around town in great style without worrying about things like being out of breath, or cardiac arrest.

Remember the sports car you had? It's that kind of fun.

The upkeep is low. And if you ride it 1500 miles next year your fuel bill will be about $15!

Come on in, ride one, and see for yourself: it's been a long time since this much fun made this much sense.

Jack Parsons Wins Backgammon Title

The second annual Garrett County Backgammon Championship was held Saturday, April 15, at the residence of Rodney Glotfelty, with nearly twice the number of entrants of last year's tourney.

Several favorites were eliminated in the early stages of competition. The championship round found Linda Janes, last year's winner, again contesting for the title, but unexpected entrant Jack Parsons captured the title and first place prize money.

The Rules Committee announced several changes in the handling of future tournaments. These changes are available to members by contacting a member of the rules committee.

Rusty and his wife, the former Gladys Bolyard, reside at Route 1, Box 147B, Oakland. A retirement dinner, honoring Mr. Evans for his service and dedication, is forthcoming.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Q. We would like to buy a home and feel that we can afford payments of $200 per month. How do we find out how much of a loan this payment will cover what price home this will buy?

A. Most lenders will loan you between 70% and 80% of the value of the house you are buying; therefore, assuming you have approximately $6,000 in cash, you should be shopping for a modest home in the price range of $28,000 with a mortgage of $22,250 in mind (20 years at 9% interest). We suggest you make an appointment and discuss plans with your banker and then see a REALTOR of your choice.

A visual presentation was given by Tina Kepple on the right quality of hay to feed dairy goats. The remainder of the meeting was spent studying the feeding of dairy goats, and a discussion of record keeping and goat training.

The next meeting will be held May 16 at 7:30 p.m. at Kepples. Visual presentations will be given by Robyn Hutzel and Susan Wright.

Among those attending the April meeting were Tom DeBerry, Teresa Wright, Robyn Hutzel, Susan Wright, Tina Kepple and Louise Gay.

HPC Approves 2 New Projects At Recent Meeting

The Executive Board of the Health Planning Council of Appalachia Maryland, Inc. (HPCAM) convened for its monthly meeting on April 24 in Cumberland. Newly elected chairman, Ronald Screen, presided.

Two new projects were approved based upon recommendations from advisory committees. Those projects were "Provision of Direct Audiology Services" for Allegany County; and "Psychiatric Day Treatment" also for Allegany County.

Project Developer Ann M. Smith up-dated the Board on the status of the 1978 Project Package. She reported that no changes in priorities were recommended at this time, however one project has been deleted from the investment package. That project is the year 02 continuation for the Friendsville Health Center. The request for the deletion was initiated by the applicant. It was also reported that at this time it is uncertain whether or not the "Allegany County Satellite Health Center" will be included in the 1978 Project Package due to its late submission.

Administrator James A. Carlisle briefed the Board on several issues including the status of the Health Systems Agency's (HSA) application for designation; the Appalachian Regional Commission's reaction to the future of HPCAM with relation to the HSA; a request for the three counties to provide matching funds for the HPCAM 1979 operational grant; and an update on the Grantsville Area Health Center. The Executive Board voted to defer a project description for the Grantsville deficit application in the 1978 Project Package until more detail can be provided on the intent of the project.

The Board also heard a letter received from Garrett Memorial Hospital explaining plans for construction. The letter was meant to provide information so no action was necessary.

Those in attendance at the meeting from Garrett County were Mrs. E. I. Baumgartner, Dr. Harold Ashby, Merritt Feather.

The next Executive Board meeting will be May 22, at 10:00 a.m. in Cumberland.

VFW Post To Install Officers

Garrett County Memorial VFW Post #10077 will install the following officers on Sunday, April 30, at the Post Home on Rt. 135 at 2:00 p.m.:

Charles Ahern, Commander; Darrell Rexrode, Senior Vice Commander; Richard Coddington, Junior Vice Commander; Arlie Hinebaugh, three-year Trustee; Earl Boyce, Chaplain; Don Ahern, Quartermaster. Marvin Thomas and John Kisner were nominated to fill the vacancy of a two-year trustee. A vote for this office will be taken just prior to the installation.

Adjutant Arlie Breedlove stated that Third District Commander James Baker and his staff will conduct installation ceremonies.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet one hour earlier and prepare a buffet luncheon to be available after the installation and meeting. All members are invited to attend.

State Highway Projects Slated

Maryland Route 495 (Bittinger Road) in Garrett County will be resurfaced from Rock Lodge Road to North Glade Road beginning May 1.

The $1,231,954 contract was awarded to H. J. Williams Company of York, Pa., it was announced last week by M. S. Caltrider, state highway administrator.

The project includes modification of drainage structures and installation of guardrail on the seven miles of roadway.

Another contract recently awarded to Montgomery Construction Company, Laurel, is for $191,448. It provides for surface treatment of various state roads in Garrett and Allegany counties. The secondary roads will be sprayed with tar and sprinkled with stone chips.

John D. Bushby, district engineer for Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties, will supervise both projects.

The Maryland Board of Public Works, consisting of Acting Governor Blair Lee III, State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein, and State Treasurer William S. James, last week ordered the State real estate tax rate cut three cents to 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation for the taxable year beginning July 1, 1978.

The Board of Public Works is required by law to set the State real estate tax rate by May 1st each year. Revenue produced by the State real estate tax is used to pay the principal and annual interest costs on Maryland's General Obligation Bonds.

"We are able to cut the tax rate because of cooperative efforts to limit bond issues by the Board of Public Works, which sells Maryland General Obligation Bonds, and the General Assembly, which must authorize bond issues, as well as an increased emphasis on a pay as you go policy for some State construction projects," Mr. Goldstein said.

The 20 cent tax rate is expected to yield $71,941,072 in estimated tax revenue on an assessable tax base estimated to be $35,970,536,000 for Fiscal Year 1979.

In addition, an estimated $43.8 million in General Fund revenue will be used to defray the cost of principal and interest payments for General Obligation Bonds during Fiscal Year 1979.

Maryland's General Obligation Bonded Debt will total approximately $2,172,960,000 as of June 30, 1978. Of that amount $1,152,345,000, or 53 percent, is repayable by State agencies, political subdivisions, and other agencies.

Beer Tax Revenues Relate March Record

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein reported this week that beer tax revenues for the month of March, 1978 totaled $637,683, a March record. A total of 7,036,944 gallons of beer were delivered to retailers during the month of February, 1978, also a record for that month. March tax revenues are based on February beer deliveries to retailers.

The March, 1978 beer tax revenues were 14.47% higher than for the same month last year. Distilled spirits tax collections totaled $1,184,037, an increase of nearly 5% over those revenues from March, 1977. Wine and cigarette tax revenues posted declines from last year.

"For the first nine months of Fiscal Year 1978 distilled spirits and wine tax revenue both show increases over the same nine months of Fiscal Year 1977. Beer tax revenues are almost even with collections at this time last year and ciagarette tax receipts are within 1.65% of collections at this time of 1977." Mr. Goldstein said. "Beer tax revenues, spurred by the growth in the month of March, 1978, should begin to increase as warmer weather arrives."

Total alcohol and tobacco tax revenues for the first nine months of Fiscal Year 1978 total $58,554,325, compared with the $58,989,259 collected at this time last year.

Computer Now Surveying For No-Passing Zones

Computerized survey system is helping determine, at the present time, which sections of highways in Garrett and Washington counties should be designated as no-passing zones.

The State Highway Administration has awarded a $43,354 contract to the United Traffic Service Corporation of Vanderbilt, Pa. to establish no-passing zones on 1,143 miles of previously unmarked county roads throughout the state. The two counties are among the eight counties in the state where the contract is currently being implemented.

A new computerized system is allowing crews to survey an average of 100 miles of roadway per day, to determine the safe distance on a highway for passing. The older traditional method involved work crews walking along the highway using targets to determine safe distances for passing. Only about 10 miles could be surveyed in a day.

The State Highway Administration hopes to receive additional federal funds to upgrade no-passing zones on all two and three lane undivided highways in the state, approximately 3,900 miles. Survey work on these roads is expected to begin in June or July.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Luther Keller who passed away one year ago, May 1, 1977.

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart
That loved us well and true,
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you
You are not forgotten loved one
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more.
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.

Sadly missed by children and grandchildren

EPA Has Low Rating . . .

What this country needs is another government regulatory agency! We need a regulatory agency that will regulate the actions of the present regulatory agencies.

The ludicrous antics of the ever unpopular OSHA (Occupational Health and Safety Administration) seem to have trickled over into the Environmental Protection Agency. Some of the EPA actions are hitting pretty hard here in Garrett County.

The EPA now has its talons in the backs of Westvaco and the Sterling Processing Company (see feature on page 27). The agency is imposing unwarranted, unjustified restrictions on these companies, which ironically, are two companies which have spent a combined total of millions of dollars over the past few years to not violate any of the pollution laws. They have literally bent over backwards.

Westvaco has continually monitored the amount of pollutants in the air (with their own expensive monitoring equipment) and has never yet violated any of the EPA rulings. Yet, even though the coal being burned by Westvaco is not polluting the air beyond all legal restrictions, EPA now says Westvaco must stop burning Western Maryland coal. If the appeals by Westvaco are unsuccessful, the entire plant will be forced to shut down.

The philosophy behind agencies such as the EPA is truly worthy. Someone must see that industries are forced to limit the amount of pollution produced by them. We all want clean air and clean water for ourselves and for future generations. However, the power of the EPA, like so many of the government agencies, is getting way out of hand. Such an agency turns into a real monster when it begins to destroy an industry with such a fine record as Westvaco. It must be stopped.

The job of this agency is to attack polluted air and water. Now it is even attacking clean air and water.

Title I Parent Advisory Council Prepares Budget

The Garrett County Title I Parent Advisory Council held its regular meeting last Friday at the Board of Education. Sixteen parents were present representing six schools.

The Council prepared its budget for parent activities to be included in the project application. Next year, Title I will be serving children in all elementary grades (kindergarten to fifth grade)in seven schools.

Juanita Swauger, vice-president of the PAC, has been appointed to a state-level task force on Guidance and Counseling. This group is responsible for developing a plan for guidance services in both elementary and secondary schools.

The meeting also included a program on "Self-Concept," presented by Scott Ward. Mr. Ward involved the group in activities to create an awareness of personal needs and values and discussed how these affect human behavior.

Sue Pagenhardt, Joyce Rodeheaver, and David Miller reported on the State Conference which they and six other local resource teachers attended on April 19 and 20, in New Carrollton. Garrett County was selected as one of the presenters at the conference of about 300 resource teachers and conducted a workshop on its home-school program. Using slides, the staff showed how the home learning program is planned, operated, and evaluated.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, June 7.

Cancer Information, Test Kits Available

Contributions for the American Cancer Society's annual fund drive in Garrett County are still being collected by volunteers as they wrap up the door-to-door canvass.

County drive chairmen Pauline Faucett and Pauline Parrack also wish to remind citizens about the Hemoccult test, which can help detect colon-rectal cancer when it is in an early, highly curable stage.

The simple-to-use test kits are available free of charge at the Oakland pharmacies, Englander's, Gregg's, and Proudfoots, from all health department offices, and from Deist Pharmacy in Grantsville.

The test, which can help detect the presence of blood, should be returned to the place obtained for reading. Participants will be notified of the results by mail, and all test results are confidential.

Colorectal cancer is the most common internal cancer, striking some 101,000 Americans each year, most over 40 years of age. The American Cancer Society estimates that two-thirds of all cases of colorectal cancer could be cured through early detection and prompt treatment by a physician.

Garrett County Teachers Ratify New Contract By Overwhelming Margin

Member teachers of the Garrett County Teachers Association have overwhelmingly ratified a new contract with the Garrett County Board of Education.

President Robert Yunker reported a 93% vote in favor of ratification. Final tally was 164 in favor of the new contract and 12 against. The school board is expected to take action on the new pact in the near future.

The mediated contract settlement was worked out by utilizing the provisions of state school law in teacher negotiations with the aid of a three-member impasse panel headed by neutral member, Charles Mullin, Pittsburgh, an arbitrator/mediator of the American Arbitration Association. Chet Elder, UNISERV (MSTA-NEA) service agent for Harford and Cecil County Teachers Associations represented GCTA on the panel and Ralph Burnett, school board attorney, represented the County Board.

A new teachers' salary scale for next year was agreed upon, representing a 9% adjustment over this year's scale as well as improvements in fringe benefits and working conditions of county teachers, noted Yunker.

The new base salary will increase $400 above this year's $8,800 to $9,200 and maximum salary at the 16th year of experience for teachers with advanced teaching certificates and master's degree will go from current $14,350 to $15,110 or a $760 annual salary increase. Two longevity experience steps at the 20th and 25th year of teaching experience will increase $810 and $860 respectively.

Fringe benefit improvements include increases in the Board's share of dependent coverage for basic hospital-medical insurance, life insurance, maternity benefits, and extra duty compensation. In addition, improved or new leave provisions, increased planning time for elementary teachers, increased leave for Association business including processing teacher grievances, more in-service opportunities, improved voluntary transfer policies based on seniority, layoffs based on seniority and certificate endorsement, and teacher options, pending budget action by the county fiscal authorities, for bi-weekly periods and teacher credit union payroll deductions were obtained.

President Yunker noted that the economic terms of the ratified pact must now await fiscal action by the county commissioners on the School Board's budget request for operating the county school system next year. This action is now pending.

The GCTA President commented that "the Association is confident that the county commissioners and the school board both recognize the reasonableness of this contract settlement and will fund the total economic terms for some 200 county teachers servicing the county's school-age children."

The total comprehensive agreement will be signed early next month by officials of the GCTA and the school board. All terms are effective July 1 or September 1 of this year.

Man Gets Five Years For Arson

A five-year jail sentence is given a man for arson as noted on the docket of Circuit Court for the week ending May 1. Another pleaded guilty of forgery and others received suspended sentences.

Mark John Johnston, RD 1, Friendsville, was sentenced to the Commissioner of Correction for five years following a presentence investigation by Judge Fred A. Thayer. Johnston pleaded guilty of arson at a trial March 17. He was charged with burning a storehouse and barn, the property of Blaine Frantz Inc. at Friendsville last July.

James Boyce, PO Box, Kitzmiller, pleaded guilty of forgery at a trial last Tuesday. Judge Thayer ordered a presentence investigation and released him on his own recognizance pending sentencing. Boyce was charged with making a check payable to his own name over the forged name of Beverly White, last June near Oakland.

Two men, Steven Wayne Bradley and Charles R. Paugh, both of Westernport, pleaded guilty of larceny of furs belonging to George R. Reeves and Vernon Wilson in December, at a trial Friday. Both were sentenced to the Commissioner of Correction for two years and fined $200 and costs each. Both sentences were suspended and they were placed on probation for two years under supervision. Each is to pay half of the restitution of the stolen goods and pay fines and costs within 30 days.

Mary Louise Bittinger, RD 2, Swanton, pleaded guilty of daytime housebreaking of the house of M. S. Butler on New Germany road in December. A charge of grand larceny was dropped. On the housebreaking charge, she received a one-year suspended sentence. She was placed on probation, under supervision, for one year.

Groups Urged To Participate In Lake Clean Up

Local youth groups who wish to earn funds for projects may join in the second annual clean-up of Deep Creek Lake, sponsored by the Deep Creek Lake Business Association. Many of the businesses in the association have indicated a willingness to sponsor groups who will help in the clean-up campaign May 13.

Various county and lake agencies will be cooperating in this year's project, including manpower help from CETA and the forestry camps, the Department of Solid Waste and the Garrett County Roads Department. Ruddply Rafters has indicated that they will supply a truck and a driver for the campaign.

Members of the Department of Natural Resources lake patrol will be reporting hazardous floating and submerged debris for removal by state park workboats. Sunken docks can be raised with help from Penelec's local representative, Mr. Weeks, 334-3985.

Trash bags are available free to all those helping in the cleanup. For further information contact Betty Gibellino, 387-5596, Wanda Carpenter or Ivan Rowe.

Trash collected may be taken to any of the following collection points: north shore of Deep Creek Lake bridge, at Bailey's Cottages; the three local state parks, to Bill's Marine Service, Harvey's Superette, or to the county roadside waste containers.

GREAT DAY FOR RIDING — Area cyclists had a perfect day for riding Saturday afternoon in the second annual Bike-A-Thon, sponsored by the Garrett County Association for Retarded Citizens. Nearly 70 riders of all ages participated in the event which was held to raise money to support a group home to be constructed in Garrett County for the mentally retarded. A similar ride was held in the northern end of the county and a total of $3,800 has already been collected.

Extra-Curricular Policy Explained By School Board

The Garrett County School Board sent out a draft copy last week of proposed guidelines designed to provide more system-wide understanding of the role of extra-curricular activities such as interscholastic athletics, club programs, field trips, etc., in the total program of the school. Copies were sent to all schools for distribution to interest groups in the schools and copies were mailed to all PTA groups in the county.

Dr. William H. Buser, Superintendent, indicated the Board will conduct a hearing on this item at 4:00 p.m., Thursday, May 11, at the Board of Education Office. Interested groups and individuals are asked to notify Mrs. Lucile Ludvigsen (334-8121) if they want time to present comments in this area. Dr. Buser also indicated it would be helpful if written comments were made available to the Board at that time.

Other agenda items will include a discussion of resolutions developed by the Garrett County Board of Education for consideration by the Maryland Association of Boards of Education at the fall conference. Resolutions on Transportation, Funding Equity, New Programs, and the State Budgetary Process will be considered.

Byron Bill Would Aid Area Roads

Almost 4,500 miles of Maryland interstate and federally aided primary and secondary roads would be eligible for increased financial assistance under legislation cosponsored by Rep. Goodloe Byron. Most of the increases would be earmarked for resurfacing, reslocation and rehabilitation.

The Surface Transportation Assistance Act also includes an expanded bridge replacement program and raises funding for construction of bikeways and urban mass transit programs.

"In general, the Federal share of funding under this proposal will be increased to 80 percent for highway construction programs with a 90 percent Federal match for bridge replacements and ARC projects," Byron said.

The Sixth District Congressman cited completion of the National Freeway as one of the major programs which may be accelerated by passage of the bill. Other highway projects mentioned by Byron included Route 135, the Oakland By-Pass, Finzel Road Interchange, and the Route 219 bridge at Deep Creek Lake in Garrett County.

Three Killed In Mill Run Crash

Three young people from Pennsylvania were killed in a one-car accident four miles north of Friendsville, on Route 53, one minute after midnight May 2, according to Maryland State Police.

The dead were identified as Terry Lee Lytle, 23, Ursina, Pa., Patricia House, 18, Confluence, and Sue Ann Lytle, 16, also of Confluence.

Injured in the crash were Kevin William Lytle, 15 brother of Terry Lytle, and Richard Franklin Flowers, 41, also of Ursina. The two injured persons were apparently riding in the back seat. They were transported to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where they were treated and released.

Police said Terry Lee Lytle was driving the car. The report indicated the car was traveling at a high rate of speed when the driver apparently lost control. The car slid against a guardrail of a bridge over Mill Run, tore the railing out and then plunged over the side of the bridge, hitting a large rock in the stream.

Police said the group had been visiting in Friendsville and were enroute home when the accident occurred.

The Board is now in the process of tabulating the bids, through the county insurance consultant Henry Duke, and will defer awarding the bid until the analysis is completed.

Robert Ford, chairman of the Commission on Aging, and Mike Flynn, director of the Garrett County Bus System for the Commission on Aging, presented a series of reports to the Commissioners showing results attained in cutting operating costs for the system. The number of routes has been lowered and other changes made based on volume of usage.

W. Marshall Rickert, county administrator, presented results of an analysis of the bids for providing new cars to the county sheriff's department. Shaffer Ford Sales will be awarded the contract as they were low bidder meeting all specifications. Cost will be $4,880.67 each.

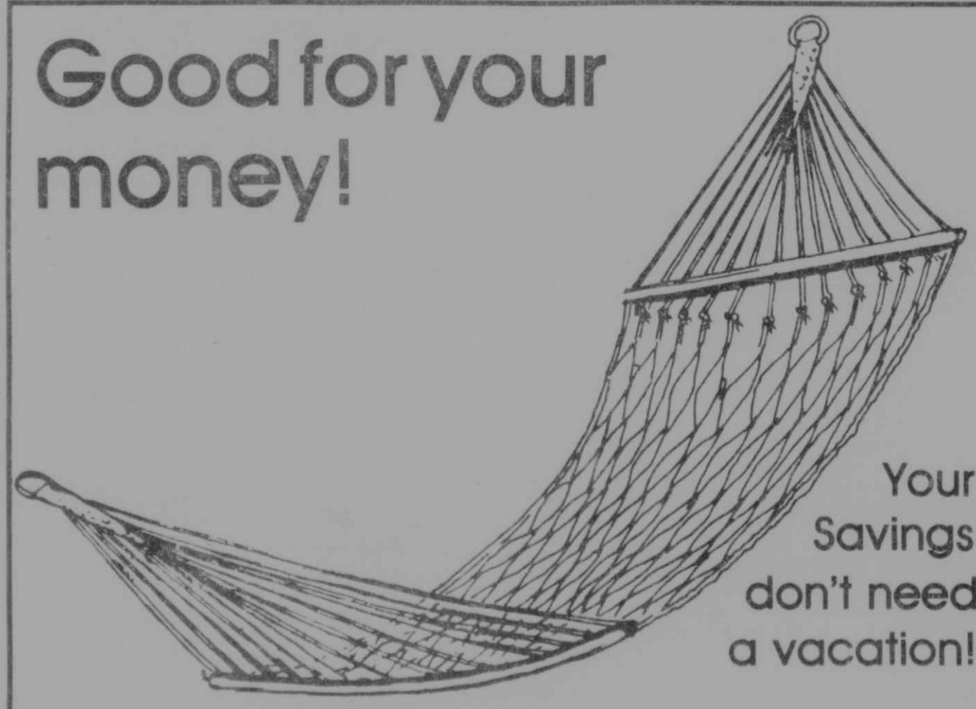
We Apologize!

to our many faithful friends and patrons of so many years, for all the doubts and mis-information the past few months have produced concerning our sale. It has been a difficult time, but change is never easy. The H. Weber and Sons Co., begun before the turn of the century by Henry Weber and his sons, has undergone many changes, but it does still exist.



The Retail portion of the business, which came into being long after the company was originated, has been purchased by employees, and as of January first this year, will be known as FLOWERS BY WEBER'S. It will continue to serve faithfully, as in the past, all your floral needs. From funeral work to weddings to hospital cheer, to the perfect gift for that special someone, all being done by a very talented crew of new owners.

The H. Weber and Sons Co., still owned by Weber's, is housed, at least temporarily, in the greenhouses. It will revert back to the original concept of the company, namely: wholesale and a local source of Spring bedding and vegetable plants. The greenhouses will not be open to the public except during sale of these items in May, June and possibly July.

– Again, may we say we are sorry for the confusion. We sincerely hope we can continue to serve you in the future with the same integrity you have come to know and depend upon during the past one hundred years.

SHS Juniors Show Real Talent

"The Murder Room," a three-act British farce by Jack Sharkey, presented by the members of the Junior Class of Southern High School last weekend may well have been the finest dramatic production ever performed in the history of the school. The play itself is uproarously funny to begin with and the acting by the young cast members was nothing short of fantastic.

The six juniors comprising the cast displayed a professionalism that is rarely found among high school students. This was the first major production for all six of the group, but one would have thought that all were seasoned actors and actresses.

It is indeed unusual for a high school group to even attempt a play which requires a British accent by the performers. However, the cast mastered it to the last "bloody" syllable.

Each player maintained his or her role and stayed in character 100% of the time. There was no off-the-cuff ad libbing which is often found in a high school production. Not a single line was forgotten.

There were also many tricky, on-stage motions and bouncing about in total darkness, all of which came off without a hitch.

The entire effort revealed a great deal of dedication by these young people and their director, not to mention literally hours and hours of long, tough practice.

It's difficult to single out any particular cast member as performing above any of the others. Lyz Grant, who had the lead role of Mavis Hollister, performed with extreme poise and professionalism. Lisa Thayer, who portrayed Lottie, the housekeeper, utilized her role to the fullest and kept the audience rolling in the aisles. She displayed a unique, real talent for drama. Cathy Graham, as the dopey daughter, Susan, also grasped her role in the way that I'm sure Sharkey would want her to. Drew Bailey, who had the task of a dual role as Edgar Hollister and the constable, performed as if he were a graduate of one of Britain's finest dramatic schools. Once again, real professionalism. Sam Ingram, who played police inspector, James Crandall, was outstanding as he mastered the arrogance, the humor and the professionalism of the stereotyped Sherlock Holmes. The performance of Paul Ammann, who portrayed Barry Draper, Susan's boyfriend from the United States, added the necessary touch of rather satirical Americanism which rounded out the comedy.

The talents and skill of Ms. Jane Avery, the director, were vividly demonstrated by the performance of her cast. While the students indeed have talent and obviously worked quite diligently, expert directing is what made the performance a superior one instead of just a good one.

The only upsetting thing about the entire production was that the audience was too small. It's unfortunate that so many people missed it. The talent of Garrett County youth is way above. Those who missed it though, will have the opportunity to see many of the same faces in next year's senior class play at Southern High. (It's still hard to believe that they are only juniors).

One ton of marijuana and $1 million were found and seized in a Baltimore County cave recently.

Joe Lock, Mt. Lake Park, displays his cycling skills as he participates in the second annual Bike-A-Thon held Saturday. Money raised from the ride will be used to support a group home to be constructed in the county for the mentally retarded. Joe rode a total of 30 miles.

SMALL BUSINESS IS A BIG BUSINESS — The Garrett County Commissioners Monday proclaimed the week of April 30 to May 6 as Garrett County Small Business Week. The commissioners and other local officials have co-operated with the Institute for Small Business of Frostburg State College to establish a local office in the Oakland Community Center. The office will provide the services of professional management consultants to area small business owners and prospective owners. Pictured reviewing the proclamation are, left to right, front row, Garrett County Commissioners, Wayne Hamilton, George Edwards and Don Bender; back row, Tom Jones, Director of the Garrett County Development Corporation; James F. DeCarlo, Jr., Director of the Institute for Small Business; David H. Berry, Management Assistance Specialist for the Institute; and Don L. Zink, Senior Management Assistance Specialist for the Institute.

Letters to the Editor

REMINDER — Unsigned letters to the editor will NOT be printed under any circumstances. Letters exceeding 300 words will also not be printed.

Dear Editor:

Once again the citizens of Garrett County, conservationists, environmentalists, hunters and fishermen are under attack. The proposed coal preparation plant on the four hundred (400) acres of Swallow Falls State Forest is a direct attack against our environment.

Now is the opportune time for every citizen to make his true feelings known to the individuals who control our state forests and the people who plan our park and fisheries department.

Ask your county commissioners, "why your county taxes are being used for private industrial and coal development?" Why should land that was donated to the state, by our founders (The Garrett Family) for conservation and environmental protection, be attacked by bulldozers and draglines?"

Talk with members of the Maryland Wildlife Federation, Trouts Unlimited, your delegate and state senator, and your county commissioners at the public meeting on Friday, May 5th at the Crellin School at 7:30 p.m.

Your strong support is needed to show the above that the people of this area really do care about what goes on in the county.

If you are a concerned citizen, head of or member of a group, I invite your letters of protest against this action. Let your voice be heard through this newspaper to help prevent our loss of state forest and park land.

Sincerely yours,
Howard W. Janoske

Dear Sir:

I am Mrs. Oley L. Weimer of Deer Park. I live on Rt. 38 between U.S. Rt. 219 and Rt. 135. I did not write the letter to you last week pertaining to the coal miners. We do not get food stamps.

Thank you,
Mrs. Oley Weimer

Editor's note: The letter to which Mrs. Weimer refers was signed O. E. Weimer.

Dear Editor:

First to your staff who had the time to observe and publish true facts as Nixon is Right (Feb. 16) my thanks.

In my mind what can we expect in our County — School drop-outs. Ask a teenager to quote the Lord's Prayer or pay respect to our great flag. The blame is down to earth home training. Mom and Dad's only noticeable act is to watch for the mail — where money will be delivered to buy food stamps and a "gracious" amount left over. Then if they can't or attempt to pay fuel or electric, Community Action will pass out a $55.00 — plus.

Yet have you observed these couples in our markets? Believe me it is not staple foods — why not soap, deodorent, shampoo etc. (Yet why should these lazy well nourished people work? Were they born with a "Silver Spoon?") Garrett County is offering a "Silver Spoon" to anyone who will eat from it — at taxpayers' expense — also (quote — past article who would like the Deputys' job) — (quote) always criticized, rarely praised, Well Written!! It takes a very dedicated man to hold a deputys' job — Praise and imperfection's as some may see are immaterial to a much needed and should be appreciated Sheriff's Department.

A Taxpayer

Dear Mr. Editor:

I tremble when I see the things that are coming into our county.

Has the devil really gotten us so misled that we think snake charming is innocent child's play?

The Bible says the serpent will bite without enchantment, Ecc. 10:11. Are we going to let the devil tell us these things are not so.

The devil always has tried to get people to believe him instead of God. He tells them they are gods or that he is god and Jesus is not God. For the sake of our children's souls let us not be deceived by this.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Homer Mellott

Learn how you can secure a brighter future for your family.

During the coming months, Mr. Marvin G. Graham, Vice-President and Trust Officer, will be visiting our branch offices in your area. He will be pleased to discuss with you, the many Trust Services our bank can provide.

We extend a cordial invitation to you to visit with Mr. Graham. He will have some valuable free literature to give you. He will discuss ways you can secure a brighter future for your family through careful planning. Naturally, legal advice and the preparation of documents will be sought, as appropriate, through your attorney.

So, consult the schedule below for the time and place that is most convenient for you. If you wish, a specific appointment may be made during the scheduled morning hours. Just contact the Branch Manager to make the arrangements. Or, you may meet with Mr. Graham at your convenience during the afternoon hours. There is, of course, no obligation.
